Newman Bros. Grain Co.
In giving the manufacturing and business enterprises of the city of Rochester a retrospective survey, it is found that the scientific milling and mixing of grains for horses, cattle, sheep and hogs has been a potent factor in developing the industrial life of our city and its suburbs.

Pioneers in this work in Rochester, are the Newman Brothers Grain Co., who have their mill, elevators and main ware houses on Troup St., on a siding of the Pennsylvania Railroad. Equipped with every modern facility for handling and storing large quantities of grain, they have brought the mixing and separating of grains and by-products to a scientific basis, which only years of experience could accomplish.
Not only do they make a specialty of these heavier grains, but cater as well to the needs of the poultry feeds—an intermediate feed for partly grown chicks, and a very fine one for the baby in delivery trucks of the latest design, and carrying an enormous stock on hand, they have every facility for making almost the instant delivery of orders, and never fail to please their customers with prompt service and efficiency.
At their branch warehouse situated on the New York Central Railroad at Portland Ave., they also carry a heavy stock of feeds as a matter of convenience to their customers in that section. For the East side trade they have a branch store at 1126 Atlantic Ave.
Their slogan and chief aim has always been to give satisfaction to each and every customer, and to keep the quality of their goods up to the highest standard of reliability and merit. As a result, they have gained the unlimited confidence of their patrons and have built up a thriving and enterprising business which embraces not only Rochester, but a large territory throughout Western New York.
So anxious are the Crescent-Puritan Laundry proprietors to have Rochesterians visit the plant that they will furnish automobile transportation to all who have no convenient means of reaching the plant. Drop the laundry owners a card, stating that you would like to accept the invitation and they will arrange the transportation.

Here's An Opportunity To See
Modern Laundry in Complete
Operation
The Crescent-Puritan Laundry, Inc., 1630 Dewey Avenue, in co-operation with more than six thousand other laundries, invites co-operation in the national observance of "Visit Your Laundry Week," October 24 to 29. "Visit Your Laundry Week" has been dedicated the country over to better acquaintance between the laundry proprietors and their patrons. The owners feel that the public will be glad of the opportunity to know just what is going on in the establishment, to which it trusts much of its washday work. The owners invite everyone to visit the plant and see modern equipment in operation. The visit will show how clothes are washed, rinsed, dried, starched and ironed. For years laundrymen have been guarding the health of the home and community, carrying an enormous stock on hand, they have every facility for making almost the instant delivery of orders, and never fail to please their customers with prompt service and efficiency.
One of the features of the visit will be the method of washing and drying blankets and flannels. These articles are first rinsed for 10 minutes in luke warm soap water, then permitted to soak in a light suds make of the purest soap obtainable. The suds are then run off and the goods are given another run in a light suds, after which comes four changes of pure soft water. The soft water methods gives a sweet odor to blankets and flannels and makes them soft and fluffy.
