HOLROYD

Among the established millinery houses of Rochester is one which has made for itself a reputation for stability, in that it has been in the millinery business for over thirty years here. Mrs. Louise Holroyd was located for many years at 404 South Avenue. Five years ago she moved her business to her present locations at 97 and 637 Clinton Avenue North. Both stores are under her personal supervision, thus assuring her customers of the best of service and every endeavor to please. Mrs. Holroyd employs several milliners, and practically all her hats are made in her own shops; thereby giving the individual styles and touches so gratifying to the particular buyer. An especial effort is made to please those in need of mourning millinery and these orders are filled quickly. Some little stock is always ready to meet the most urgent needs.

VIALL AND SON

George I. Viall and Son, 5 and North Water Street, are in a position, due to their very comprehensive knowledge of the business, to advise all in need of paints as to what is best for their particular needs. This firm carries a complete line of Roger's Paints and Varnishes. Also automobile top dressing, polishes of various kinds and floor waxes. Painters will find here a large variety of accessories to meet any of their requirements. Another feature of their business is a window glass department. Viall and Son have two delivery trucks, thus insuring prompt service in making deliveries to their customers. Phone Main 733.

It sometimes pays to be good, but it's always good to be paid. A good grievance is worth more than bad pavement.—Don Quixote. Men fall down because they miscalculate the width of the ditch. Some men would pay bachelor tax rather than become bachelors.

RAYNOR, NICHOLAS & TRUESDELL

The firm of Raynor, Nicholas & Truesdell, of New York, opened their branch at the Powers Hotel, 32 Main St. West, last June and are already well established as a representative Rochester concern. The local office is in charge of Thomas R. Levis as manager and Herbert W. Day, assistant manager, both of whom are local men and known well in the business circle. Raynor, Nicholas & Truesdell have both uptown and downtown offices in New York City—located at 30 East 42d St. and 42 Broadway. They are one of the largest firms on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. This firm are also the publishers of the Wall Street Digest, which is a clean, constructive publication of ultra-conservative policies—something different from the usual market letter, containing an analysis of certain stocks each week. The Rochester office gladly supplies all interested with a copy of the publication and they are always ready to give complete curb market quotations and service.
