Raynor, Nicholas & Tuesdell

The Rochester office of Raynor, Nicholas & Tuesdell is one of the most successful brokerage offices in the city. An additional direct wire has recently been installed by them, touching all the branches. Every sale or quotation is now recorded in their office within a few seconds from the time it takes place on the floor of the Exchange. Stocks will be purchased by them for cash delivery, or on margin. They also make conservative loans on good, marketable securities held outright. The small customer receives the same courteous attention as the one dealing in larger lots.

As it is most important that the prospective buyer receive correct and conservative information, the men in charge of the office take it as a serious matter and give only the best and most careful consideration for investment information.

The Rochester office is under the management of Mr. Thomas R. Lewis, Mgr. and Herbert W. Day, Assistant Mgr. Both are men of mature judgment and years of business experience. Those dealing with them may well feel assured of the creditable manner in which their interests will be handled.

Holroyd

Among the established millinery houses of Rochester is one which has made for itself a reputation for stability in that it has been in the millinery business for over thirty years here.

Mrs. Louis Holroyd was located for many years at 404 South Avenue. Five years ago she moved her business to her present location at 97 and 637 Clinton Ave. north. Both stores are under her personal supervision thus assuring her customers of the best of service and every endeavor to please.

Mrs. Holroyd employs several milliners and practically all her hats are made in her own shops, thereby giving the individual style and touches so gratifying to the particular buyer. An especial effort is made to please those in need of mourning millinery and these orders are filled quickly. Quite a little stock is always ready to meet the most urgent needs.

The Eskimos of the Arctic have strange customs. It has proved difficult to convert them to the ways of the white man. Of the practical arts of the latter, the natives have adopted white boats and firearms. The methods of hunting are their own.

When a whale is captured, the boats of the hunters assemble at the scene as quickly as they can. The boats are pulled out, with snits up, each towing the other, the dead whale bringing up the rear, and the slow voyage homeward is begun.

When the whaling season is over, each successful hunter gives a nu-ju-ka-tak (celebration), with the rest of the villagers as his guests. There is feasting, blanket tossing, and a dance at the end of the program, which often lasts for days. All the old men and women, and the sick Eskimos, are guests of the prince of the whaling hunt. Those not able to walk are carried by the men or hauled on sleds to that part of the village selected for the feast.

Tall Mountains

At least 60 mountains in California rise more than 18,000 feet above sea level, but they stand amid a wealth of mountain scenery so rich and varied that they are not considered sufficiently noteworthy to be named, according to the United States geological survey, Department of the Interior. Yet if any one of these unnamed mountain peaks were in the eastern part of the United States it would be visited annually by millions of people. But California has several additional mountain peaks more than 18,000 feet high that have been named, or 130 in all as well as a dozen that rise above 14,000 feet.

A Running Start

Maurine and Billy are rivals in their school work. But Billy had received much the higher grade on an examination paper. As he turned triumphant toward the young lady after the results were announced, she gave him what is commonly referred to as "a nasty look."
"Huh," the little red-haired rascal boasted, "I can make an uglier face than you."
"Well, you ought to," she snapped, "look what you've got to start with!"
