

The Friendly Path

THE PATH OF LIFE

NO ONE can confidently expect his life to follow a straight path. It is, therefore, always well to be prepared to change one's route when progress demands a change.

Too many of the trials of life result from unwillingness to admit mistakes. Family quarrels, business disagreements and the deplorable fights in church organizations may usually be traced to stubbornness.

Stupidity and stubbornness usually go hand in hand. The wise man or woman knows it is folly to follow the wrong path when the right one is found.

Sometimes it is necessary to force the stupid to change their course. This is not infrequently a disagreeable task.

Over in Germany not many years ago the Kaiser and his advisors refused to take the right course. They refused to listen to sound advice.

But now comes the glad news that the goose-step is gone, the allies agreed that the German armies must be disbanded and they have.

Sparrows to the Rescue. News of a remarkable case of bird intelligence comes from Manchester, London.

Several people at the Assizes noticed the peculiar behavior of a sparrow which was leaping from one of the chimneys and then falling to the roof as though injured.

On opening the door the next day the attention of the officials was attracted by the excited chirping of a number of other sparrows.

Ladders were obtained and an attempt made to climb to the roof and find that the legs of the sparrow were held fast by a piece of thread.

THE ROMANCE OF WORDS

"SLAVE"

IT BY no means infrequently occurs that national names become the type of particular qualities, characteristics or dispositions, as is well evidenced in the adjective "frank."

In much the same way we obtain the word "slave," the opposite of the Frank, or freeman.

A mere chance, mishap in war, is therefore responsible for "slave," and those old Slavic tribes, subdued, stolen and sold, have immortalized their record within the confines of a single five-lettered word.

Use for Mummified Cats. Some years ago a considerable trade was carried on between Great Britain and Egypt in mummified cats!
