OF COURSE DORIS WON OUT

What Was There for Mother to Say in the Face of Such an Argument?

They had been chatting since entering the bus, but the woman who sat opposite them on top, heard nothing...

"I don't think the girls of this century will ever stand for long skirts again," remarked the one in the green dress.

"Oh, mother shortened the skirt of Doris," she said.

The Personable Young Man

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD

"Bully good idea! Bully good idea!" Smith Taylor, genial proprietor of the popular Crystal Inn, slipped his thigh resoundingly.

"Wanted—Personable young man for pleasant and remunerative occupation. Must play golf and tennis and have snappy outfit of clothes. Apply."

"Now, let's see if that doesn't fetch an 'em!" he exclaimed triumphantly.

"Well fix that up, however," he decided easily, and wrote a long letter of explanation, terms of contract and so forth.

Transportation to Crystal Inn is long and involved, necessitating many different kinds of conveyances.

Taylor was beginning to see light. "Thunderation!" he cried.

"You tried?" asked Barry gleefully.

"I'll try," said Ellen, but Barry satisfied at what he read in her glance, beckoned the canoe at the nearest cove and came to her side.

Later Barry and Ellen went out on the lake in a canoe, exchanged confidences.

"Bad told me he'd hired you and it didn't seem fair, somehow, to the guests for you to be acting under false colors."

"You tried?" asked Barry gleefully.

"Oh Ellen, what you be my summer girl for always?"

"I'll try," said Ellen, but Barry satisfied at what he read in her glance, beckoned the canoe at the nearest cove and came to her side.

"You tried?" asked Barry gleefully.

25,000 Members of the Mechanics Savings Bank

CHRISTMAS CLUB for seven (7) years have been paid $775,000.00

You See! Those who have deposited $5.00 weekly have $250.00 for Christmas spending.

$3.00 weekly members draw a great big $100.00

$1.00 a week savers have $50.00 they would not have otherwise.

And 50 cent members have all of $25.00, which comes in right handy just now.

How Are You Going To Be Fixed Next Christmas?

The 1923 Club is now forming. Become a Member—it's the easiest and best plan ever devised—originated by this bank over 8 years ago, and it is every year becoming more popular.

It's money you'll never miss weekly; and you get it all back in one lump sum when most needed.

"Never again will I be short of coin at Christmas time" is the resolution you can easily make and should make.

TURTLES CANNOT BE TAMED

Creatures' Aversion to Man Has Been Found Too Deep-Seated to Be Eradicated.

The turtle has been called "the tiger of the reptile world," for it is so difficult to tame.

One kind, the great snapping turtle, always has its jaws aggressively open as quick as lightning in its movements, and can bite off a man's arm quite easily.

Even the common soft-shelled turtles, those that figure on the market at bazaars, appear to resent man's natural onsets and it is not easy to pick one up without being bitten.

Turtles, on the other hand, are quite affable creatures, and are tamed. Even the gigantic land tortoises of the Galapagos Islands soon learn to distinguish between men and animals.

Regarding these latter, survivors from a prehistoric age, Mr. Raymond L. Dinnars has much of interest to tell us in his book, "Reptiles of the World."

Their habits in love-making, for instance, are decidedly curious. The male wooes the female by stalking her, by diminishing circles, from time to time approaching her, raising his front self as high as possible on his short legs, and then battering his shell against hers with resounding thumps.

All crocodiles are dangerous, spiteful brutes. Those of the Nile are the fiercest, man-eaters, often coming out of the water to attack humans, and the same holds good of many of the Indian varieties.

Ever baby crocodiles are savage, snapping if they are approached, and they are always unsafe to handle.

Alligators, on the other hand, make a great show of ferocity, but may be approached boldly and captured by throwing a noose around the jaws. They apparently grow quite tame in captivity.

Apples Like Onions. An apple, an onion and a potato taste alike. It is necessary to see and smell them to detect the difference.

This is not a riddle but a fact stated by Dr. J. A. Hadfield in his lecture on "The Psychology of Fooding" at the National food exhibition.

Another statement he made that will astonish most people is that we do not smell chloroform but only taste it.

The mind has a powerful influence on digestion, he said, and instance the case of a man who became sick when he took milk simply because in his childhood he had been compelled to take medicine in it.
