

WORLD'S DEBT TO SCIENTISTS

Birth of Perils and Privations... Add to the Sum of Human Knowledge.

In the early days of maritime ventures and discovery the ventures would only be undertaken under the lure of gold...

Men dare for science and not for gold. Men endure all sorts of hardships and perils in order to add their bit to the sum of human knowledge...

GOLF CREDITED TO SCOTLAND

Not Original There, the Game Was Brought to a High Degree of Development.

A sport similar to modern golf originated with the Dutch, but the game generally is identified with Scotland...

In Scotland golf formerly was solely a "gentleman's game," reserved to few men, whose wealth made great courses possible...

Italian Had "Klick" Coming

The Italian workman in the backwoods of America was warned to look out for rattlesnakes. He was assured, however, that a snake would never strike until after sounding the rattle...

A lifelike portrait of the quaint "milk" carrier, Thomas Hobson, to whom we have indirectly the phrase "Hobson's choice," has recently been obtained by the British National Portrait Gallery...

Claude's Waves

There is a most beautiful picture of Claude Lorraine, which he studied from nature. He was not a painter, but a poet and a philosopher...

CALEB WINS

By DOROTHY DONAHUE

(Copyright 1921, Western Newspaper Union.)

CALEB started the car and stepped back to regard the quivering, choking, consumptive but useful little animal—with dubious eyes.

There were three things upon which the elder and younger Evans felt most disturbingly to agree. The first was Lornie's name.

Lornie had a girl. The girl was another innocent subject for deep thought on the part of both father and son.

Out in the country, after miles of struggle in deep, soft mud ruts, the brand-new car of Lornie's gave it up.

Gwendolyn twisted in her seat and flushed angrily but did nothing useful.

Lornie looked up at her. She had shrieked that "Anything!" It might have been the unharmonious voice of a sleep-provoking cat.

"Go ahead and wait," Lornie said, ungraciously and abruptly.

"Really?" Gwendolyn offered, her head high. Blue, furious blue eyes, swept the car and the soiled Lornie.

"H'm, Lornie," Caleb looked sideways at his son. "Not very polite, now, is it? Better get in back, don't you think?"

BAKERS WORKED IN CAPITOL

Loaves Kneaded in the Imense Cellars, While Construction of the Dome Went On.

One usually thinks of the capitol at Washington as a place where the nation's legislative business is transacted.

"During the darkest hours of the Civil war, while the capitol basement did service as a military bakery, Lornie insisted that there be no suspension of the building of its dome.

"While bakers kneaded war loaves below, hammers were busy every working day on the giant dome above."

BEDS OF OTHER GENERATIONS

Those In Use Centuries Ago More Sumptuous, but Less Comfortable Than Couches of Today.

A drastic law of Nature requires that we spend nearly a third of our lives at insensible rest, and it is a normal consequence that we should have become connoisseurs of that piece of furniture which comforts or annoys our sleep—our beds, remarks the Kansas City Star.

Hundreds of generations have been before our time, and all of these countless people slumbered as we do; and, however, upon box springs and hair mattresses.

Revolutions and insurrections are no new thing for Rio Grande do Sul, Brazil, a fact that can be best appreciated, perhaps, when it is pointed out that Giuseppe Garibaldi, liberator of Italy, and one of the most famous revolutionaries...

HAS GOOD IDEA FOR DIARY

Man Finds Loose Leaf Eliminates Personal Historian's Worry and Is Sure Chronicler.

Arthur Blinks has a most satisfactory way of keeping a diary. More than once he had started off the new year with a nice fresh volume, determined to let not a single day go by without making some entry.

"Thus I have a record of keen interest to myself that is not cluttered up with a lot of boring, uninteresting memoranda just because the space was there and had to be filled each night."

CIVIL WAR GAVE RED CROSS

How Fredericksburg Inspired Clara Barton With Idea For the Famous Organization.

The Civil war had scarcely started when Clara Barton voluntarily abandoned her business of teaching school in a New Jersey town and enlisted as a nurse in the hospital of the Union army.

Beecher a Horticulturalist. Henry Ward Beecher, the celebrated American clergyman and orator, at one time had considerable fame as an authority on matters bearing on that subject in the pioneer days of western horticulture.

These papers have a higher literary value than is usual in horticultural writings, and are still entertaining and suggestive, says the Detroit News.

Grape Juice Stayed Typhoid. The grape is the oldest fruit known to history. It flourished on the hillside of Palestine, and in lands antedating Judea it was cultivated.

Billy's Little Hint. Billy had a new suit, and the most wonderful thing about it was that there were pockets in the trousers something he had never had before.

WHERE DOBBIN LED

By MOLLIE MATHER

(Copyright 1921, Western Newspaper Union.)

RICHARD STANDISH congratulated himself upon the silence and beauty of the situation. Here his problems might be solved; the intricate workings of the plan which troubled him brought to successful fulfillment.

"Well, now!" she exclaimed. "If we haven't moved next door to fighting people—distingling to you what you'll do with this and that, and you an architect. If Dobbin does wander into her back yard, need she write an impudent note?"

Richard, perplexed, brushed the hair from his forehead. "Dobbin?" he questioned.

"Dear Miss O'Neil: Pardon our wandering steed for trespassing. The liverman did not inform us of his fondness for potatoes. We will endeavor to keep him stabled, notwithstanding the fact that we have no stable. If, however, he should again roam from the shed that shelters him you are at liberty to use any means at hand to drive him from your garden."

Distastefully the housekeeper delivered the note to the red-headed woman in the opposite inclosure—who as ungraciously took it.

"That idiotic animal is in my garden this moment," he murmured about fifty dollars worth of potato vines and is cavorting toward the lettuce bed. Instead of writing silly notes come and get him.—Nora O'Neil.

Richard, in his absorption, was in no mood to be rudely ordered regarding an old horse. But in Mrs. Brewster's eye was the light of enjoyable battle. If he was to live in continued peace in this retreat he would have to see the irate woman meet her doom.

Richard had been gazing into the soft blue eyes. Eagerly he grasped at the possibility of the last regretful sentence. "Almost," said Richard; "then you think there might still be hope for the garden?"

"Why," his neighbor exclaimed, "you are kind. Mrs. Tyler, my helper while I'm here, led me to think that we were to have a hard time of it."

"Thank God for rotten weather; it makes us love spring."
