David Powell

Born in Glasgow, Scotland, of Welsh parentage, is the proud claim of David Powell, well-known star in motion pictures. Before entering the "movies" he had had several years of stage experience. He is distinguished as one of the best leading men of the day and has achieved world-wide reputation for his ability as an actor, his finesse, intelligence and general air of good breeding.

ART OF CONVERSATION DEAD

Telephone Has Killed Politeness and Murdered Repartee and Rejoinder.

It was, we believe, a spinster of experience, who observed that you can catch more flies with molasses than with vinegar. In the same way you can best make a conversation interesting by being a good listener and letting the other party talk about himself.

There is talk, and everybody talks at once, but there is no conversation; just as there is no etiquette, no table manners and a very widespread reluctance to say grace. Promiscuity used to be considered dangerous. Today no father or mother would be so foolish as to risk an inquiry concerning the company with which daughter had been out riding. Since they were not consulted and their objection would certainly not be heeded, the less known the sooner mended. But one thing is certain; daughter and her date did not converse while out riding. They may have stopped at a roadside and gotten something illicit, but they didn't exchange amenities at a roadside inn. But there we talk. It passes description, that's all.

MYSTERY OF THE JUNGLE

Elephants Have Secret Graveyard in Africa—Fortune Awaits Man Who Discovers It.

The statement has been made many times that no white man ever has seen the body of an elephant that died from natural causes either in Africa or India, and where they go when they feel the summons is one of the secrets hidden from the most persistent students of natural history.

One of the stories of that subject is that there is a secret graveyard in the mountains in the interior of Africa, entrance to which the elephants solemnly journey to find their tomb, and various stories have been told of the millions of value in ivory there if venturesome men could find the elephant sleeping grounds.—Ohio State Journal.

Any French Village.

See—I am old, but I am beautiful; my devout children have embrodered my robe with towers, steeples, crenelated battlements and belfries. I am a good mother; I teach industry and all the arts of peace. I nurse my children in my arms. I am their record. I have lived because I have hoped. Learn of me this blessed hope which saved the fatherland. Think in me so as to think beyond yourselves. Look at this fountain, this hospital, this market that the fathers have bequeathed to their children. Work for your children as your ancestors have worked for you. Each of my stones brings you a benefit and teaches you a duty. See my cathedral, my guildhall, my Hotel-Dieu, and venerate the past. But think of the future. Your sons will know what jewels you, in your time, have encased in my robe of stone.—Anatole France.

Ancient Egypt Had Wheels.

The wheel was old when Egypt was still a new nation, and of its actual origin there is no authentic record. One theory goes back to the distant period of cave-dwelling man, whose chief occupation lay in building. Prehistoric man dragged logs of timber from the forests day after day and piled them at an angle against the rocks, filling in the cracks with earth and rubble, thus affording himself shelter. It is thought that by using semicircular branches as runners underneath the logs it was found that they could be moved forward far more easily than by just lifting the dead weight.—Detroit News.

Delicate Job of Measuring.

A matter which has been puzzling scientists since the day of Ben Franklin and before is the amount and character of the electric current across the surface of the earth. The Carnegie Institute for scientific investigation, has cruised over a large portion of the Atlantic ocean, and measured or computed the magnetic force around several of the ocean paths. Reports of measurements around the entire United States show that a current of positive electricity of about 1-50 of an ampere per square kilometer was found to be flowing upward.

TASTY DISHES

A NICE way to serve cabbage, when one has plenty of time for its preparation is

Cabbage Rolls. Boll a small cabbage in salted water until the leaves are soft enough to roll without breaking. Drain and when cool enough to handle cut the leaves into six-inch squares. Mix one pound of chopped meat, one cupful of uncooked rice, one and one-half teaspoonsful of salt, one minced onion and a beaten egg, with a few dashes of cayenne pepper. Put a heaping teaspoonful of the mixture on a square of cabbage and roll into rolls the size of a finger. Have ready a large kettle of boiling water well salted, into it put a perforated kettle or colander in which the rolls may be placed to keep from touching the bottom of the kettle, as they burn quickly. See that the rolls are covered with water and cook covered for forty-five minutes or until the rice is done. Serve with drawn butter sauce.

Deviled Tongue Mold.

Take one pound of cold-broiled smoked tongue chopped coarsely, two hard-cooked eggs, one tablespoonful of mustard pickle and one large sour pickle also chopped, add one tablespoonful of mustard and three of mayonnaise. Soak two tablespoonfuls of gelatin in two tablespoonfuls of cold water, and when softened add two cupfuls of boiling water. When the gelatin is cool and begins to stiffen add to it the tongue mixture, and pour all into a wet mold. Let harden in a cold place and serve with parsley as a garnish.

Kipped Herring Salad.

Take one smoked herring, boil five minutes in water to cover. Drain, bone and shred it. To one-half cupful of the shredded fish, add two cupfuls of diced celery, one green pepper chopped, one-fourth of a teaspoonful of salt, one-eighth of a teaspoonful each of onion salt, pepper and paprika, one chopped hard-cooked egg, and enough mayonnaise to moisten well. Arrange on beds of lettuce and serve with more mayonnaise.

Uncommon Sense

OUR CURIOSITY

THERE are two kinds of curiosity, morbid and intelligent. The one is useless—even harmful. The other is the driving force that is behind all science and all progress. A man gets out of an automobile in a busy street to pump up a tire. A hundred people gather round to watch him. The same people will stand around a man who has fallen and injured himself, gazing at him, and interfering with those who want to aid him. They gain nothing by being there. They have seen hundreds of tires pumped up—scores of men fall down. Their curiosity only breeds rudeness and idleness.

THE UNWELCOME RAP

IN PERFECT fairness anyone has a perfect right to ring your front bell or knock at your door. An agent who comes to try to sell you flavoring extract may annoy you if he comes to call you to the door in the midst of a busy round of housework or when you are receiving callers, but he has really committed no offense. You owe him at least a definite but courteous refusal to buy.

There is always an effective way to dismiss an unwelcome caller without being rude. There are ways of rebuking admittance as effective as slamming the door in an intruder's face. If an agent comes and you feel that he is taking an undue length of time in stating the object of his call, you are entitled to interrupt him and ask courteously: "Will you please tell me briefly what I can do for you? I am very busy."

Sometimes housewives listen for half an hour to the glib speech of a persistent agent and then when at last the agent goes without having made any sales they blame, not themselves for having detained the agent and wasted their own time, but the agent. Now no agent ever really remains to take your time unless he feels that there is at least a chance of your purchasing his goods. And there is always a way politely to convince even the most brazen of agents that you will not possibly buy. It is never the part of kindness to yield to the request that you listen to an agent's sales talk when you know that there is not a chance of your ultimate purchase.

CARRIAGE AND MOTIONS OF THE HANDS

WHEN the hands hang limply at the side, and are heavy, thick and fat, you may deduce therefrom, generally, that the intellect of the possessor will be likewise heavy and "fat." All is density, and there is no use trying to raise the possessor of such a hand out of the depths of materialism. "When you read his or her hand," says one authority, "if you attempt a keen analysis, he will blink and stare at you. No use trying to lift him out of his trough of materialism. It can't be done. He wants to know his brother's name, whether he is married, how many children, how long he will live, whether he will be rich, and you cannot lift him above this plane."

Playing the Game. "I've got to do something to strengthen my hand in this political game," remarked Senator Borah. "Thought you were a stand-patter." "I am, as a rule. But you've got to show the cards once in a while in order to get proper respect the next time you have to bluff."
