A Success Secret.
The secret of nature's success is patience. A naturalist may go out into the woods to study the birds. He may walk and walk and walk and see no birds. But let him sit down on a log and wait, and let the branches are full of song. Those who pursue success never catch up with her. Success takes alarm at pursuit and avoids the stealthy pounce. "Seekest thou great things? Seek them not," but, "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness and all other things shall be added unto you."—Nelle Ripley Harris in Nauticus.

Criticism should never exasperate us. On the contrary, it should benefit us, and even occasionally amuse us.
