WHO AM I?

I am always misunderstood.
I am no end of trouble.
I often come between husband and wife.
Women love me.
I am a friend in need.
Women regard me as the best thing going.
The banks betray me.
I am more dangerous in the hands of women than a gun.
I have made men weep.
I am a woman's check book.
I am the only thing in New York that...

UNITED IRISH SOCIETIES PLAN REUNION MARCH 17

United Irish Societies of Rochester are making elaborate preparations for their annual reunion and dance, at 15 South avenue on March 17. Padraic Pearce Council and the 19th Ward dance committee, St. Enda's Gaelic Society, Terence MacSwiney Club and the Gaelic Athletic Association have joined hands for the occasion.

The general committee consists of officers of the various bodies with Eugene Buckley, president of Padraic Pearce Council, as chairman. At the meeting of the council next Saturday evening at 46 North Fitzhugh street a committee will be named to extend a "road mile" (a hundred thousand welcomes) to all who attend. Strogen's orchestra will play for the reunion.

Editor of the Rochester Catholic Journal.
Dear Sir,
The following poem was inspired by the many needs a bird refuge would fill especially for the wild birds in the spring and fall migrations. The restraining arm of the law should stretch out and save the ponds and adjoining shores before it is too late. They were intended by Almighty God for a bird refuge. Freedom, tempered with Restraint gives us 100 per cent Liberty. The three together promote Temperance. The four stepping stones crossing the River of Life to the millennium.

Mater Eastman National Bird Refuge

First Verse
With watchful waiting o'erlooking Ontario's turbulent tide,
Safe in God's Halfway Stop, till adverse and stormy winds subside,
The birds of passage secure with me, have come into their own,
I break the leader's non stop flight, safely leading the wanderers home,
A newcomer makes a graceful call, surprising you and me,
Its great white swan, in the apex of the wild
I feed them and protect them, from the North King's dynasty,
And I keep the wild loon, look unsullied, from the pot hunter's steady clamp,
My ponds are filled with shimmering flags at their base succulent roots,
For the wild duck's inimitable tip up, diving for the tender shoots,
And my shores are lined with berries, from killing frosts immune,
A refuge for wild life, in every way I am opportune.

Second Verse
I'm Mater Eastman Bird Refuge, The Nature Lover's Paradise,
I make his life work light as his soul with the wild bird flies,
Surmounting all things earthly, and with thoughts of the faraway,
He's glad to be alive and penting, sunshine for the coming day,
From the beautiful in nature as his feathered friends I save,
For his fastidious eyes and longing, in triumphal flights over wind and wave,
To the land of the midnight sun, when the nights are epliptic,
That one bright spot and all it implies called home,
Be it in a mansion grand, or a bird's nest on the moor,
It never loses charm, or fails the heart to lure,
In sympathetic flights with duty though your station be high or low,
To make this world a better place, a little bit of Heaven here below.

Radio Is Helping in Reclaiming the Sahara

The conquest of the Sahara has been seriously begun. The development of the radio system enables the caterpillar caravans to keep in touch with the outside world and, if necessary, invite assistance. French engineers are now studying the system of arduous well-drilling in Australia, by means of which the central desert of that island continent is being slowly but surely conquered. The Australian territory is divided into eight principal arid basins covering a surface of approximately 472,000 square miles. The first artesian well was struck at Bingball in 1888. In 1904 there were 1,112 such wells in all Australia. Ten years later there had increased to 3,000. Today there are 4,428, of which 1,005 are spoiling wells, 1,651 non-spoiling and the remainder still under construction. It is believed that the same system could be applied to the Sahara, thereby reclaiming the land. If this be so it will insure the construction of the trans-Saharan railway, the plans of which are at present before the French parliament. Thus an immense productive territory will be added to France's colonial empire. Washington Post

Making Sugar From Beets

Cultivators who cannot raise sugar cane are interested in a process, devised abroad, for extracting sugar from beets. The process, designed especially for the amateur, is so simple that the tenderest can be not broken. The first operation is to remove all dirt by washing after which the beets are boiled in water until the skin peels off easily. They are next cut into thin slices placed in a pan, but covered with water brought to a boil once more and then left to simmer for ten hours. The cooking pulp is then put into a mesh bag and squeezed until all the juice is extracted. The juice is boiled down to a very thick sirup that makes a good substitute for commercial sugar. As the sirup will not keep for more than a few weeks, it is found advisable to make only a small quantity at a time. The roots, however, can be stored for a long period without deteriorating if they are kept dry and free from frost.

Where Judges Get Little

Austrian judges are the most poorly paid of all state officials. Those holding the chief positions, and most highly qualified, receive only 8,000,000 crowns a month—not much more than $30, and this after from twenty-five to thirty years' service. So poor, in fact, are some of the judges that they can not afford to buy their official robes or talars, and preside in court in the shabbiest clothing. The state is supposed to furnish them with talars, but has not done so for the last two years. Letter carriers, railway men, police men all receive their uniforms free but the judges must buy their own to go without.

Uncle Robert on Scouting

"Uncle Robert" Spero, doer of numerous good turns to the sick, shut in and poor of New York, is a particular admirer of the scout spirit. "The boy scout movement, with its code of service, unselfishness and respect for the rights and beliefs of others," he has recently stated, "has proved an inspiring interpretation of the great ideal 'Peace on earth, good-will to men.'"

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

MAKING PROGRESS

You may often be filled with wonder at the apparent ease with which some of your friends, of no pronounced ability, climb steadily and unerringly to the heights. To your mind they are deficient in mentality and power of endurance, yet, in spite of your doubts they keep mounting surely day by day, brushing aside difficulties with no discernible effort and holding fast to their places. Opposing forces do not daunt or discourage them.

They plan and execute. They refrain from boasting yet within their hearts there is an ironlike resolution to stay in the high ground they reach victoriously.

Often they are foolishly exhausted in body and spirit, but never are they in a mood to admit defeat. They know quite as well as you that their talents are limited and their faults many. It is this conscious knowledge of their frailties that makes them persist with out pause in their commendable effort.

While you are having jolly times at night among the bright lights, they are seeking in the solitude of their room the profound insights of wisdom, digging deep below the surface.

They have become students of biography following seriously the blazed trails of the noble men and women who only a few years ago passed over the highway to fame and left their signboards at the fatal crossroads. There all later travelers may stop, read and gather new courage.

It must be a shallow sort of human being indeed who cannot see the value of such observation and study.

But whatever it may be with regard to the frivolous and fan-loving, this idea of following step by step the rugged paths of the great, striving to comprehend their emotions and to emulate their examples, is not only profitable to the earnest student but extraordinarily inspiring.

What dullard seeking improvement fails to find encouragement in reading of such men as Washington and Lincoln?

Who does not glow with inspiration when he beholds blind Milton groping his way to the heights sublime?

Those who cry "impossible" are those who need most to familiarize themselves with the trials of the immortals who overcame and won imperishable crowns.

Simon Lake's Concrete Houses Quickly Built

Utilizing principles that he developed in designing concrete ships, Simon Lake, inventor of submarine boats, has perfected a method of manufacturing houses of any size and any style of architecture that is specified, from precast concrete slabs of standardized sizes, which he declares can be put up like Aladdin's palace, virtually overnight.

The Lake houses, their inventor writes in the Popular Science Magazine, may be of any type, from a small bungalow to a skyscraper, according to the architect's plans. The exterior finish may be brick, stone, shingles, stucco or whatever else is desired.

The houses are said to be rain proof, moisture proof, cold and heat proof, earthquake proof and all but indestructible, and their inventor declares they can be built for one-half the cost of brick or frame construction. Small houses, he says, can be built in a day.

Berlin Is Bicycle City

Berlin is now the leading bicycle city of the world having displaced Copenhagen as the town with the greatest percentage of cycle users. Every morning and evening the streets leading from the suburbs to the business center of the German capital are filled with hand workers, clerks and business men who have found that bicycles are cheaper and more dependable than the street cars and the elevated and underground railways. The enormous increases in traffic, coupled with drastic cuts in the service, have caused thousands of middle-aged residents of greater Berlin and nearby cities to ransack their garrets or cellars for the discarded cycles of their youthful days, either for their own personal use or for the purpose of selling them to eager buyers of second-hand wheels at from $10 to $20 apiece. Makers of bicycles are reaping a harvest filling the demand for their output at prices ranging from $30 to $40.

Women Workers in U. S.

There are today more than 5,000,000 women gainfully employed in the United States, representing an increase of 474,000 in the last ten years. This is nearly a quarter of the entire female population over ten years of age, while 20 years ago the proportion was nearer a sixth than a fifth. And we get this total increase in spite of the marked decrease in domestic servants, for in 1900 we had over 2,000,000 servants, while in 1920 we had but 1,012,000. Women are leaving not only their own homes, but other peoples'. In factory store and office young women find companionship and freedom out of working hours which more than compensates them for the better pay and lighter labors of long work, and we may expect this exodus from the older trade to continue at least until private service has been recognized and its status raised.
