Cotton Materials for Warm Weather

Many Charming Spring and Summer Fabrics Ready for Women's Wear.

Some of the spring and summer fabrics are most engaging, notes a fashion writer in the Portland Oregonian. Outside of the many silk crepes and lovely designs in knit materials there is a world of cotton materials that fairly sings spring and cool summer days.

Linen is more interesting than ever this year. The colors range from very dark browns and blues to light tans and lovely lavenders and the inevitable greens that are so much the thing worn. They make up nicely in tailored frocks with smart little round collars in contrasting colors and materials. Organdies and volles may be used for a softer note.

In the gingham textiles there are patterns of plaid and stripes and checks. Stripes may be made up with the stripes making the main feature of the dress, having an up-and-down stripe in the blouse contradict a stripe that goes around in the skirt with such subtle design that one does not realize the sharp contrast.

In the crepes of the cotton class there are delicious imported ones that come in very delicate colors of rose, green, blue, lavender, yellow and gray. Small squares and triangles are formed in some of the crepes with the use of a silk or blue thread that runs through the material.

Quite new and equally as pretty as new are the ratines. One of the most interesting is the ratine on a voile background. These may be had in large or small checks or stripes. Trimming may consist of the voile or ratine to match.

The sport ratine is a great favorite. In this one finds wide or more narrow bands or borders along one side of the material which makes up wonderfully effectively into whole dresses or skirts with the blouse of the plain. There is decided satisfaction in a dress of this nature.

If one wishes, there are the plain colors and also the heather ratines. Some are designed with dropped stitches to make the cross checks or bars of the nature of drawn work.

What of volles and Swiss dotted materials? Well, they are more varied than ever and one can hardly draw themselves away from the rows and rows of attractive patterns and colors. These make up so nicely with plain volles or lace.

Very dainty and demure are the Puritan prints that are ever new and fresh-looking. If for no other reason than to satisfy a longing for the dainty patterns and different colors and designs that may be worked up from this particular textile, one should have at least one or two dresses for street or house wear.

With all these to choose from and many more not mentioned there is ample room for original and distinctive choice of color and design.

White Pearl Buttons on Overblouse Suit

For street or afternoon wear, this smart black satin overblouse, trimmed and piped with white satin, is fastened with large white pearl buttons.

Winsome Accessories Appeal to All Women

With simplicity the rule, it follows that accessories loom large in importance and the woman of fashion selects every detail with rare discrimination.

Earrings have suddenly regained their prestige and are shown in a wide variety of new designs, most of which are quite long and of the filigree type set with semi-precious stones. Both powder blue, the new color, and a brilliant red called gypsy are a feature of costume jewelry.

The newest envelope bags have for ornaments of beads or brilliants which are attached to a tiny pocket just large enough to hold a gay chiffon handkerchief.
