MEMORIALS
 Sooner or later we all have to come to the unfortunate task of selecting a suitable memorial for those of our family who have gone on before. We wish to recommend Mr. Charles Schied & Sons, who are located at 1142 Mt. Hope Ave. For years they have catered to the best of Rochester's people, in the matter of Monuments, Headstones, and other Markers for the ones who have gone on. Their work along this line equals the best of memorial work. Beautiful large monuments of granite, marble, slate and other materials are on display at their show rooms as well as other smaller pieces for Headstones and Markers.

If you are thinking of getting a suitable marker for your lot at the cemetery, what time could be more opportune than at Memorial Day time? If you are interested call them at Stone 3974 and they will be glad to discuss the suitable one for your pocket book and for your especial need.

Have That Leaky Roof Patched Up!
 Now that the Spring rains are over we hope and we have found whether the roof leaks, it is high time we had someone to fix it. Jacob Stehler who is located at 19 Woodford Street can take care of it in just the right way. He has been in the business for several years, and feels capable of installing furnaces, doing roofing of any kind, and putting ventilation systems that will work, besides doing all kinds of blow piping and factory work.

If you are building a new house call Mr. Stehler and get his ideas, and prices before you decide on anything definite. The furnace is one of the main factors in the house and needs to be considered first. He carries the best made. The ventilation of course is connected with the furnace to a great degree, and Mr. Stehler has a great many good ideas as to how the ventilation of a house should be carried out.

If you are at all interested in any service which consists of anything of this sort of work call him at your earliest convenience. Glenwood 3449-J.

Claims to Have Seen Owls Flying in Flock
 It is common knowledge that tawny, barn, and long eared owls have increased considerably in numbers in East Lothian in recent years, and there is no doubt that they are today far more numerous than most people have any idea.

Motoring recently after the fall of darkness along a byroad between Macmerry and Pencaitland, writes H. M. B. in the Edinburgh Scotsman, I drew the attention of my passenger to an owl flying overhead, and at the same time I slackened speed so that we might obtain a better view of the bird. We then noticed a second owl, and almost immediately a third and a fourth, flying over the field on our right. Indeed, it seemed that there was a whole flock of them, as we counted as many as six clearly visible against the sky at the same time. At first I thought that they must be peregrines, which often besport themselves thus after dark, but as the birds crossed the rays of the head lamps there was no doubting that they were owls—tawny or barn, I think the latter. Certainly they were not long-eared owls.

Long-eared owls are, to some extent, gregarious and sociable by disposition—that is, a number of them may gather irrespective of food or mating attractions. Such meetings are purely social, and in the case of the long-eared owl they may occur at any season, day or night; but I have never heard of a purely social gathering of brown or barn owls.

Advertising Pays
 John Romer, of Mechanicsburg, Pa., advertised for a calf that had been lost, strayed or stolen. The following morning he received a letter saying that the writer did not steal his calf, but had stolen it from him ten years ago. A $10 note was inclosed. While Romer went about town telling the story to his friends, some one slipped into his barn and returned the calf.

Both Birds and Animals Subject to Epidemics
 Dr. Herbert Fox, pathologist of the Philadelphia zoo and head of the Pepper laboratory at the university, has written a book on the diseases of wild animals and birds. For the last eighteen years Dr. Fox has been studying the tenants of the zoological garden—the only place in the world where such exhaustive work has been done.

Pulling a tiger's tooth or treating a humming bird for tuberculosis is all the same to this man of science, observes "Grand" in the Philadelphia Inquirer.

Dr. Fox has laid bare many startling results. Among others he found that tuberculosis was the foe which swiftly depopulated monkey cages. Epidemics afflict birds as they do men. The inference is drawn that extinct races of animals and birds were wiped out by disease.

A practical result of Dr. Fox's search is that monkeys and other animals and birds may now live for a far longer time in captivity than formerly. And his experiments on the epidemics among birds may give the real clue for the startling and sudden annihilation of our wild pigeons.

Wreck Byron's Home
 Latest among the famous literary landmarks of London to be doomed to fall before the building wreckers is Lord Byron's old home at 8 St. James' street, occupied by the poet more than a century ago. Oddest among a number of odd features of the house is a staircase built in a spiral shaft clear up to the roof, but so small that a good-sized chair can scarcely be carried up it. Most of the poet's furniture, apparently, must have come in by the windows.
