Bon Voyage!

Not only his Catholic flock but a host of non-Catholic friends and admirers will wish our Rt. Rev. Bishop a safe voyage, a pleasant sojourn and a safe return to his native land and his home city.

Bishop Hickey has gone to Rome to pay his decennial visit to the Pope and to render report to the Holy See of the condition of the Church in the Diocese of Rochester. There is no question as to the report that the affairs of the Diocese are in excellent condition in every way. We are also fortunate in living in a part of the country where religious intolerance is frowned upon and where men of all creeds dwell together in peace and harmony.

Much credit for this situation is due to our Rt. Rev. Bishop. Without sacrificing one iota of ecclesiastical dignity and always standing for the truth, Bishop Hickey has stood shoulder to shoulder with his fellow citizens in every worthy civic movement.

May he be spared to us many years!

What He Had To Say

Just now when the nation is seeking out who to place at the head of the Government it may not be out of place to recall the words of Washington to his friend, General Lincoln: "Mount Vernon, March 11, 1789"

"Should it become inevitable necessary for me to go into the chair of government, I have determined to go free from all positive engagements of every nature whatsoever. This is the answer I have already given to a multiplicity of applications, and have assigned, as the true reason of my conduct, the predominant desire I had of being at liberty to act with a sole reference to justice and the public good. But without deviating from that line of proceeding, which I had chalked out for myself, I may be permitted to say to you, my dear sir, that you need not doubt my intentions are very sincere and very strong to serve you, if I can do it consistently with my duty to the public. This I say because I have known you in public life; for I do not intend to be swayed in the disposal of places by motives arising from the ties of friendship or blood."

How many office-seekers, these days are animated with the desire of being at liberty to act with a sole reference to justice and the public good? The public benefactor in modern times is the lucky candidate who distributes the spoils of office.

At the Democratic convention of 1912, Charles F. Murphy, John J. Delaney and Victor J. Dowling were inseparable. The first two are dead. The third is not so interested now in politics. He is the presiding justice of the First Appellate Division, New York Supreme Court.

Former Governor Nathan L. Miller has emerged into the sunlight once more. President Coolidge has appointed him on the Mexican boundary commission.

Senator Thomas J. Walsh is not only a clever oil investigator. He is an able presiding officer.

Klansmen held a public parade in Birmingham. They wore no masks in order to stimulate a riot and more publicity, the Klan asked protection of the state troopers. The hoped-for riot did not materialize. The people merely noted who the marchers were and cheered the troopers.

Scammer weather at last! But then the weather was not any day.

What has become of our old friend Kennebec Mountain Landis?

Even the President's family is not immune from sickness and death.

Archbishop Hanna has left Rome but he will not return to the United States until September.

Will Be Remembered

While there may be honest differences of opinion as to the advisability of permitting such an issue to be injected into a great national political convention, nevertheless the Ku Klux Klan played a stellar role in the proceedings of the Democratic National Convention in New York City.

Naturally, with many of the leading delegates in the New York convention from the South and regretfully he said, white men at there were far more Klansmen than delegates than at the Republican convention in Cleveland. At the latter gathering most of the Southern delegates were negroes who are ostracized and taunted by the Klan.

These Klansmen, naturally, were not anxious to bask in the limelight of publicity. They preferred to remain under cover in order to pursue their infamous propaganda by subterfuge methods.

But there were more determined and bolded Americans, who resolved to smother out the Klansmen. They insisted that the convention denounce the Klan by name.

Many thinking men—over-cautious because they wanted to win and not be willing to accept from both sides an anti-Klan, held out for a little of the road block or to reach from any position of the side.

For several days the battle raged in the Resolutions Committee. Even Executive Bryan pleaded with all his might for a mild plank and in honor by name of the Klan. Finally, by the close margin of a few votes, the convention denounced in form of religious intolerance and omitted reference to the Klan by name.

At this, the situation disposition changed and from afar, it looks to us as if a clear majority of the convention despised the Klan and all its works but lacked the moral courage, through fear of losing votes, to denounce it by name.

It is apparent, to all thinking men that the Klan, not as a secret fraternal organization, unashamed to be known of all men, proud to wear its insignia openly and fearlessly, as do the Masons, Odd Fellows and other organizations and all their orders, but a secret movement designed to proscribe the Catholic Jew, the Negro and all others who may fall under the dislike of the local squire or wizard. If unopposed, a religious warfare the most terrible of all battles—is more than likely to be the inevitable result.

Men of courage and determination, of all shades of religious persuasion unite to stamp out, once and for all, this menace to free government and time honored American traditions.

Addition to the Diocese

Before Bishop Hickey sailed for Europe, he announced that the vineyard and farm at Hemlock Lake, purchased by the late Bishop McQuaid had been sold to the Fathers of the Precious Blood, who propose to establish on this beautiful and desirable property a mission house of the order.

This will mean much to the Diocese of Rochester in years to come. The entrance of this noted Order can not but be of spiritual benefit to all and its advent is welcomed by all Catholics.

William Jennings Bryan may have started out as a radical but today he is a first-class example of a hard shell stand patter.

Anyway, there are thousands of persons who love Al Smith for the very crimes he has made.

To those who may have thought otherwise we beg leave to say that Senator "Pat" Harrison, of Mississippi is not named "Patrick" neither is he an Irishman. His full name is Byron Patton Harrison.

Senator Thomas J. Walsh is not only a clever oil investigator. He is an able presiding officer.

Quite Right

Predicting that the extension of the radio will result in shorter speeches and much shorter manufactured "ovations" to favored candidates in political conventions, the Rochester "Herald" very sensibly says:—

Obviously, manufactured applause is not applause, but mere noise. Emotional climaxes are momentary and not sustained, as the Europe Theatre plaques long ago discovered.

Political conventions in recent years have been subjected to a thorough test of the manufactured ovation. Managers of the political forces of candidates have endeavored to outdo one another in noise-making, and sustained enthusiasm. They as outlined the crowds for the first few miles, but since then the artificial character of the racket has been too evident to deceive the listeners. If in present convention, the roar that have rent the air have had to pass the critical test of analysis by an audience far removed from the actual scene, gathering its impressions of the convention by means of their waxed ears, the result has not been flattering to the carefully staged demonstrations.

Unless enthusiasm is spontaneous it is not enthusiasm, but mere physical exertion on the part of the demonstrators. The managers of the staged ovations in New York, were badly advised, for their efforts obviously have injured the cause of their candidates. If radio is the means of truthfully abridging manufactured demonstrations in political conventions, it will have served a highly useful purpose.

If you have not yet decided on a location for a summer vacation, be sure to ask if there are any available for religious observance.

Religious Training For Public School Pupils in Milwaukee

Milwaukee, Wis., July 5.—Provision for religious instruction of pupils in school hours here was voted by the Milwaukee School Board this week. Children will be dismissed one hour a week beginning with the next year, to go to the various churches for instruction, according to their religious faith.

Requests from parents or guardians are to be required, and a written form is calculated to guard against unfair use of the hour. Religious organizations of the city, parent teacher associations, women's clubs and members of the judiciary had urged the move.

A course in the Fundamentals of Religion, designed primarily to aid the public school teachers in handling the new courses in religious instruction provided by the recent act of the State Board, has been started at the University of Marquette.

The new Marquette course, according to the Rev. Joseph C. Flynn, S. J., director of the summer session will be introductory and general and will be equally valuable for adherents of any religious denomination. It will fit the public school teachers for the rigorous work in religious instruction.

Detroit Woman First To Get Decoration

Washington, D. C. July 5.—When the Pope recently was reported to have conferred on Mrs. Arthur H. S. Kent, of Detroit, the decoration Pro Ecclesia et Pontifice, it was said she was believed to be the first American woman to be thus honored.

Mrs. Josephine Hyrne Sullivan, of Detroit received the Papal decoration Pro Ecclesia et Pontifice in 1919, a year before her death.

She was editor of the Michigan Catholic. Others also have received the decoration, among them being Miss Julia McCann, of New York, secretary for twenty-two years to Msgr. Joseph Ferris, director general of the Society for the Propagation of the Faith, who received the cross, in 1922, in recognition of twenty years of service to the Society and its missionary work, and Madame Helene Padarawski, wife of the famous pianist in 1920, for her charitable work in behalf of Catholics Poland.
