

Wilbur And LeJeune Will Help Dedicate Catholic U. Stadium

(By N. C. W. C. News Service)
Washington, D. C., Sept. 26.—Secretary of the Navy Wilbur will make the chief address, and Maj. Gen. John A. LeJeune, Commandant of the United States Marine Corps, will have charge of the flag raising when the new Catholic University athletic stadium is dedicated here Oct. 4. University officials announced this week.

The dedication of the stadium which ultimately is to seat 60,000 persons and will be the largest structure of its kind in Washington will be made a gala affair, and some of the most prominent personages in Washington are expected to attend. The Catholic University-Quantico Marines game will provide the athletic part of the program.

Bishop Thomas J. Shahan, rector of Catholic University, also will make a short address, and the music will be by the United States Marine band. The Marines will move on the stadium en masse, coming in thousands and providing an exhibition drill before the game.

The new stadium is now virtually in shape to receive the thousands for the opening. Seats for 21,000 have been installed, and there is standing room for 10,000 more. Beautifully situated, within a stone's throw of the university buildings, it is constructed in a depression of ground where natural conformity has aided the builders generously. An innovation is the use of wooden seats and foot rests to avoid the common objection to most football stadia of cold seats and cold floors. It was designed by Louis El. Crook, professor of Theoretical Mechanics at the University, through whose series of innovations in stadium building one of the finest structures of its kind and class in the country has been provided at a cost that constitutes a record for economy.

A movement is now on foot, backed enthusiastically by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia and the entire body of merchants and business men, to make the stadium the scene of the Army-Navy football game every two years.

"Free Thinkers" Of France Against Religious Freedom

(By N. C. W. C. News Service)
By M. Massiani
Paris Correspondent, N. C. W. C. News Service

Paris, Sept. 16.—The National Congress of the Federate Union of "Free Thinkers" of France and the colonies has just taken place at Clermont-Ferrand. It has adopted a series of resolutions which show the spirit of liberalism and tolerance of the "Free Thinkers."

It was resolved:

To prohibit priests and monks from wearing ecclesiastical dress on the public highway, except at funerals.

To suppress the right to vote of priests and monks until they renounce their vows of chastity and repudiate the authority of Rome.

Work For Portuguese Extended In Diocese By Providence Bishop

Providence, R. I., Sept. 25.—The Rt. Rev. William A. Hickey, D. D., Bishop of Providence has expanded his work of caring for the Portuguese immigrants who land at his port to include a shelter house with dormitories and a cafeteria. This important work is being conducted through the Rev. Antonio P. Rebello, pastor of Our Lady of the Rosary church, who has been engaged in it for some time.

Already arrangements had been made for two of Father Rebello's women parishioners to meet incoming boats and lend assistance to immigrants. But the great problem was to provide a place where incoming women and children might wait, where relatives or friends do not meet them, and obtain individual assistance in their problems. The new shelter, which will have two dormitories, where the Sisters of St. Dorothy will care for the women immigrants, also will serve as a convalescent home for the women members of the National Council of Catholic Women as assistant in the work.

New York Archdiocese Appoints Director Of Industrial Relations

Washington, D. C., September 30.—Cardinal Hayes, Archbishop of New York, has appointed Rev. John J. Mitty, D. D., pastor of St. Luke's Parish, New York City, as his personal representative on industrial questions. Doctor Mitty is also to act as director of industrial relations. This is the first such appointment in the United States.

The appointment was brought about by the increased interest shown in the teaching of the Catholic Church on industrial questions. The work has grown to such an extent that Cardinal Hayes chose Doctor Mitty to take charge of it.

Besides keeping in touch with industrial movements and difficulties in the New York Archdiocese, Father Mitty plans to conduct education in the social teaching of the Catholic Church. He is gathering about him a number of priests and laymen who will help him in this work.

The appointment was made several months ago but has not been announced until now. At a small meeting called by the Social Action Department of the National Catholic Welfare Conference in Pittsburgh following the last convention of the Catholic Conference on Industrial Problems, Dr. Mitty was present and explained what he intended to do.

Those at the meeting were agreed that Cardinal Hayes and the New York Archdiocese had selected the best way to spread Catholic social teaching on industrial questions. They were loud in their praise of his move and they were hopeful that the New York appointment would be a precedent for other Bishops to follow.

They were in agreement that in spite of all that has been done so far to educate Catholics and the general public in the social teaching of the Church, great masses of the people still know little about the standpoint of the Church on industrial justice. Doctor Mitty's appointment and plan of work, if followed by similar appointments in every industrial diocese in the United States, would, they believed, bring home to Catholics in their parishes and organizations and to the public at large what the Church teaches about industrial relations.

They stated that the Catholic Church in the United States has in Pope Leo's Encyclical on the Condition of Labor, the section on industrial relations in the Pastoral Letter, the Bishops' Program of Social Reconstruction a body of fundamental teaching and recommendations which, if known and followed, would solve the labor problem and they were all agreed that the step now to be taken is to have a priest or layman in each industrial diocese who would head up the work of spreading Catholic social teaching on the industrial question.

Cardinal Dougherty Writes On Blessed Therese

His Eminence, Cardinal Dougherty, contributes to the Catholic Home Annual for 1925, just published, an inspiring article on Blessed Therese, The Little Flower, with reminiscences of her life as related to him by her associates, and various personal experiences, including a discussion of her virtues with the late Pope X.

Dr. James J. Walsh, Ph. D., the distinguished authority on the History of Medicine, exposes medical frauds, comparing the Church's divine mission of healing with the numberless forms of "faith cures." The development of Lent and Lenten customs is outlined by Rt. Rev. Magr. Hugh T. Henry, Litt. D.

Rev. Felix Ward, C. P., Rev. Martin J. Scott, S. J., Rev. Thomas Schwertner, O. P., write on timely subjects. Short stories by John Aymonough, A. Rev. Nell J. Boynton, S. J., Marlon Ames Taggart, and Jerome Harte Bosman appear. As usual, there are scores of illustrations, a number of short sketches, and a complete Catholic calendar.

It is an unusually well-balanced publication, representative of the best of all branches of modern Catholic literature.
