Nine Hundredth Anniversary Of Abbey Celebrated

By Rev. Dr. Wilhelm-Barnon von Capitaine (Cologne Correspondent, N. C. W. C. News-Service)

Cologne, October 6.—The 900th anniversary of the establishment of the ancient Benedictine Abbey of Brauweiler—now used as a secular house of correction—was celebrated recently with elaborate ceremonial in the beautiful church which was formerly attached to the Abbey but is now a simple parish church. The Abbot of Maria Laach, Dr. Hildebrand Herwegen, celebrated the pontifical Mass and Cardinal Schulte, Archbishop of Cologne, delivered the sermon.

In medieval times the Abbey of Brauweiler was one of the most important and wealthy foundations in Germany. St. Anno, Archbishop of Cologne and Count Bruno of Heimbach enriched the Abbey with gifts of rich farmlands in Pier. Later the monks' ownership of these lands was confirmed by the Emperor Lothar of Saxony and King Konrad III. At the time of the French Revolution the holdings of the Abbey were confiscated in the general program of secularization. The Prussian government, later, took over the monastery and established a house of correction there.

While the Benedictines in recent years have regained possession of several of their former monasteries and other properties, it is regarded as improbable that Brauweiler will be given back. However, the people of the vicinity were as enthusiastic in celebrating the anniversary as though the Abbey were still powerful and flourishing.

Men's Council Asked To Help In Campaign On Traffic in Opium

(By N. C. W. C. News Service)

Washington, D. C., Oct. 17.—One of the matters which will come before the Executive Committee of the National Council of Catholic Men at its meeting in connection with the convention here October 23 and 24 is a plea that the N. C. C. M. lend its aid in the campaign against illegal traffic in narcotics. Admiral Benson, national president, has received a request from the White Cross, international anti-narcotic society, that the Council place its influence back of the campaign. The White Cross seeks a petition from the N. C. C. M. to the International Opium Conference in Geneva asking the curbing of the traffic in opium. Such a petition would be placed with those of others from influential American organizations and forwarded to Geneva.

Plans are going forward speedily for the N. C. C. M. convention, and encouraging reports are coming in. Archbishop Curley of Baltimore and Bishop Hickey of Providence have written Admiral Benson, national president, expressing the hope that the convention will be a success. The Catholic Laymen's Association of Missouri has written that it will be represented by W. J. Kiely as delegate, and Joseph Hercules as alternate. Bishop Griffin of Springfield, Ill., has appointed James R. Ryan, a delegate to the National Catholic Welfare Conference, a delegate to represent his diocese. In his letter to Mr. Ryan, Bishop Griffin says: "We hope to organize the men of this diocese in the near future. Some time in November, I hope to have my work fairly well cleared up and will then give my attention to this organization."

Herriot Promises To Change School Plan In Strasbourg

(By N. C. W. C. News Service)

Strasbourg, Oct. 9.—The Municipal Council of Strasbourg, which has a socialist majority, has voted a resolution asking the government to replace the public schools of the city, which are still denominational schools, Catholic or Protestant, by schools for all children, regardless of creed, and including the children of infidels. M. Herriot replied by telegram to the effect that he would satisfy this wish within a few weeks. In view of this promise, the Catholic paper "La Croix" is waiting for further details before publishing any comment. It states that: "We cannot believe that M. Herriot wants to set fire to the powder in Alsace. If it is a question of a special case of families which do not wish any religion to be taught (in the cities, unfortunately, there are some such families) that is different."

On the other hand, several officials assure their readers that the intentions of the President of the Council regarding interdenominational schools are as follows:

The ministers of the various religions would be authorized to visit the school after the teacher has finished his courses to give religious instruction to those children whose families desire them to receive it. This would be done without the presence of the teacher. But the radical-socialist Ere Nouvelle admits that this is simply a step which would lead gradually, as in all the public schools of the rest of France, to the complete suppression of religious instruction.

General Council Of Upper Rhine Forwards Protest

Paris, Oct. 10.—The members of the General Council of the Upper Rhine (one of the three Departments of Alsace-Lorraine) voted 21 to 5 in favor of sending to Premier Herriot a copy of a resolution asking him to abandon his projects concerning Alsace.

The resolution is as follows: "The general councillors of the Upper-Rhine, observing the feeling caused by the announcement of the introduction of French secularization laws in those centers of the population which, since the return to the Mother Country, to which we desire to be assimilated on the material, intellectual and moral plane, have retained an unshakable faith in the reiterated promises given in the name of France, which guaranteed the respect of their traditions and religious ideas.

"They address an urgent appeal to the sentiments of justice and equity of the President of the Council and beseech him to make no decision concerning a possible modification of the religious and school statutes without previous agreement with the agencies qualified to represent the interested portions of the Alsacia population."

Protestant Towns Oppose New Laws

Strasbourg, Oct. 8.—Four more Municipal Councils have pronounced themselves against the introduction of secular laws in Alsace. The municipalities are those of Kauffenheim, Forstfeld, Roppenheim and Runtzenheim, and the remarkable part of these protests is that each of these towns has a strong Protestant majority.

Social Worker Should Uphold Religion, Says Head Of N. Y. Charities

New York, Oct. 17.—"It is a duty of every agency and every social worker to conserve and up-build the religious life of the individual or family with whom they are working," Father Robert F. Keegan, president of the New York City Conference of Charities and Correction, declared in his address here Tuesday at the fifteenth annual meeting of the Conference. Frank P. Cross, formerly director-general of Civilian Relief of the American Red Cross, presided, and on the program with Father Keegan as speakers were Bishop Lloyd of the Protestant Episcopal church, representing Bishop Manning; Dr. Ira S. Wife, of the Children's Welfare Federation; and George J. Gillespie, president of the St. Vincent de Paul Society of the United States.

"It is just as important to up-build the religious life of the family as it is to care for the education or the health of that family," Father Keegan declared. "It is fundamentally wrong to take advantage of the plight of an individual or a family in order to influence a change in their religion."

Father Keegan added that, happily, this evil is not wide spread in New York.

"A spirit of understanding, sympathy and charity running through all our thinking would do much to banish prejudice and intolerance," he said. The outstanding needs for our work in this city are a broader spirit of understanding, a deeper sympathy and a kindly charity. One of the hardest lessons of life is to learn not to judge hastily. Ninety per cent of adverse criticism serves no useful purpose. These are times when we must judge, and at such times we should judge wisely and when our worst enemies are not as bad as we think them."

Father Keegan said that the complexity of life today, with its multiplicity of social disabilities, demands expertly trained service, but reminded that experience as well as classroom schooling has a great value, and added emphatically that "social workers individually and as a class should bring to their task a spirit akin to religious consecration" and that "our charity, our social service, should be tempered with kindness and sympathy."
