

Physical Culturists Must Heed Morals, Is Bishop's Warning

By Rev. Dr. Wilhelm Baron von Capitaine. (Cologne Correspondent, N. C. W. C. News Service). Cologne, July 1.—Physical culture is highly desirable, and will always have the encouragement of the Church, but it must not be permitted to become a cult in which ethical and moral considerations are thrust out, Bishop Schreiber of Meissen declared in the principal address at the German Catholic teachers' convention at Frankfurt. Prominent speakers from all over the country addressed the teachers.

C. E. A. Would Restore Regard for Authority Through School Room

(By N. C. W. C. News Service) Pittsburgh, July 10.—A call to Catholic educators to train the children of the country to obedience and respect for lawfully constituted authority was sounded in resolutions meeting here. "Such instruction," the resolution declares, "to be effective, must be based on religion, because religion is the basis of all morality, and back of authority, whether civil or ecclesiastical, is the authority of Almighty God."

(By N. C. W. C. News Service) Paris, July 10.—The chapel of the French military hospital of Val-de-Grace, one of the most famous institutions in Paris, has been robbed of many of its treasures, including a cross of the Legion of Honor bestowed by Napoleon on Baron Larrey, a surgeon, and other valuable mementoes from distinguished soldiers.

Education Crisis Is Impending In North Ireland

(By N. C. W. C. News Service) Dublin, July 12.—The Orange Festival on July 21 is expected to be a day of great political significance this year in view of the recently developed Protestant opposition to the education policies of Sir James Craig's Government of Ulster. The Orangemen have definitely taken their stand against the Craig-Londonderry policy and the situation is regarded as serious enough to involve a possibility of the fall of the Craig Ministry. A report is current that Lord Londonderry, whose policies as Minister of Education have aroused the enmity of Protestants and Catholics alike, has offered to resign from the Cabinet. The same report, however, goes on that Premier Craig is unwilling to lose the only member of his Parliament who has any influence in England and that if Londonderry is forced out Craig will go with him. Should that happen, it is regarded as probable that the other Ministers will try to carry on under a stop-gap government for the time being rather than risk the turmoil of a general election in the present state of public opinion.

Dr. Cardauns, German Catholic Editor, Dead

By Rev. Dr. Wilhelm Baron von Capitaine. (Cologne Correspondent, N. C. W. C. News Service). Cologne, July 1.—Dr. Hermann Cardauns, who was largely responsible for the greatness of the Cologne Volkszeitung and for years was its chief editor, is dead at Bonn, where he was in retirement. He was an eminent Catholic layman. Born at Cologne in 1847, Dr. Cardauns intended to become a professor at the University of Bonn, but since he was a Catholic and the Kulturkampf was raging at the time he never realized that ambition. Instead, he became director of the Cologne Volkszeitung, and his pen made that journal famous throughout the world. Shortly before the war he was forced to retire because of advanced age.

(By N. C. W. C. News Service) St. Paul, July 10.—The Rev. Dr. Rudolph Bandas, of the Archdiocese of St. Paul, is the first American priest to be awarded the degree Master of Sacred Theology (S. T. M.) from the University of Louvain, according to an announcement made here. Father Bandas has just completed four years of post graduate study in theology abroad, one year of which was spent at Rome and the other three at Louvain. The S. T. M. degree is one of the most respected of Catholic scholastic honors.

French Catholic Journalists Urge Sunday as Rest Day

(By N. C. W. C. News Service) Paris, July 13.—The Chamber of Deputies has received a bill the provisions of which would extend to all the personnel of the press the benefits of the law of the weekly day of rest. In this bill the day is granted by rotation, so that none of the newspaper offices need be closed a whole day every week. The directors of an inter-denominational newspaper syndicate having given their approval to this plan, the syndicate of Catholic Journalists, which numbers 300 active professional members, decided to enter a protest against some of the conclusions. The Paris Correspondent of the N. C. W. C. News Service, M. Martial Massiani, was delegated to appear before the Labor Committee of the Chamber to voice this protest. He had no difficulty in demonstrating to the Committee that apart from any question of religion, the most solid arguments of a technical, professional, moral and social order demanded the designation of Sunday as the weekly day of rest.

The two prelates are old-time friends. They spent the time in Chicago visiting the University of St. Mary of the Lake and other institutions of the archdiocese.

Quaint Irish Charity Begun In 1792 to Be Brought Up To Date

Dublin, June 28.—Visitors to Dublin have sometimes noted elderly gentlemen wearing frock coats of a rather blue shade and old-fashioned tall hats. They are the occupants of Simpson's Hospital, one of the very quaintest charities of Dublin. Early in the eighteenth century, a Kildare boy who had tramped to Dublin fell exhausted outside a shop in what is now known as Parnell street, and was immediately helped inside by the proprietor, whose partner in business he eventually became.

TULSA'S SCHOOL BIGOTRY FLAYED BY PRESBYTERIAN

Protestant Editor Attacks Ban On Catholic Teachers As Unconstitutional and Absurd—Praises Religious Schools. Tulsa, Oklahoma.—Following announcement by President Duncan of the Tulsa Board of Education that it is the policy of the Board not to employ Catholics in the schools, an editorial denunciation of the intolerant ignorance embodied in this policy, coupled with expressions of appreciation of the value of private primary schools, has been printed in the Tulsa World. The editorial is signed by T. A. Latta, Editor-in-Chief of the World, a Presbyterian. Mr. Latta summarizes the opinion of the Board of Education by asking, "Could there be anything more unconstitutional in spirit, more absurd in fact . . . ?"

Advocates Religious Schools

The editor of the World declares himself to be a firm advocate of religious training as a part of the education of children in the primary grades, but says that such training has no place in the public schools. It should be given, he says, in private schools and he intimates that, in his opinion, other denominations would do well to imitate the Catholic practice and establish their own schools. He writes: "If a Catholic teacher in our public school system should be so much as a hair seek to influence her or his class to Catholic religious philosophy, I would be first to recommend the discharge of such a teacher. But I would take precisely the same position in respect to a Presbyterian, a Methodist or an Episcopalian or any other sect. The point is that the public school system is a part of our political system and is therefore subject to the rights and obligations and the privileges of the Constitution."

Analyses School Strife

"If I had the privilege and the opportunity of sending my young children to a denominational school—where religious matters were given their proper comparative standing in the course, as in the old missionary schools or Catholic parochial schools—for example, I would pay the price and send every one of them—probably to a Presbyterian school, for the simple reason that I myself have sprung from a long line of Presbyterians who believed in precisely the same school philosophy practiced by the Catholic Church today," Mr. Latta writes. "But if I must patronize the public schools, then my sense of decency and constitutionalism forbids me from asking that the public schools, maintained alike by Protestant, Catholic and Jew—and even Buddhist and representatives of the various cults of the Far East—be turned to any such service."
