Wise Solomon

Here is a story about a composition. The teacher requested her pupils—all boys—to write on a biblical subject. Here is what one boy wrote: "Solomon was a very wise man. One day two women went to him quarreling about a baby. One woman said: 'This is my child,' and the other woman said, 'No, 'tain't; it's mine.' But Solomon spoke up and said: 'Now, now, ladies; don't quarrel. Give me my sword and I'll make twins of you, so you can both have one!'"

Not All Honest

Battle's treasurer tried the honesty of the population on April 1. Iron wrappers wrapped in papers like those that contain 10 stacks of silver dollars were laid one after the other, under a teller's window. Scores of these packages up and handed them in at the window. But several wrappers showed desire to depart, and slipped rapidly when they got out the door.

Gifts Imagined to Amend for Ugliness

An English writer tells how being in a theater with a foreigner he asked him the inevitable question as to what he thought of London. "I never saw so many ugly people in my life," was the startling reply. On looking about him the writer felt that the reply of the foreigner was not far astray.

From this he inquires as to why it is that in a country blessed with pretty children there should grow up such unattractive adults, and he concludes that civilization is doing something to the race—something undesirable, unless we are to assume that ugly people are brainer than handsome ones. This every handsome man and woman among us will hasten to deny. The fact is, no doubt, that when a person is ugly something has to be said to commend him to our acquaintances, so they are hastily assured that this person they are about to meet, while he does not look well, is really quite an unusual person and highly gifted. One statement like that about a man may keep him going for years, for others repeat it. All he needs do is refrain from showing that he is without gifts of any sort.

Declares Music Cure for Mental Trouble

A medical journal has recently announced the results of some experiments made to ascertain the relation of music and medicine.

One curious piece of news obtained is that if a lively air is played on a harp or mandolin, a man's tired muscles regain their original vigor. The music of a violin, on the other hand, has a precisely opposite effect, in temporarily lessening the usual strength and vitality of the hearer.

In nervous and impressionable people, sad music in a minor key, such as Chopin's "Funeral March," actually weakens the pulse and makes the beating of the heart feebler and more irregular.

An American doctor stated not long ago that almost every mental trouble could be cured by suitable selections of classical music regularly administered. Jealousy, grief, overwork, homicidal mania, nervous breakdown, all had their corresponding air.

Pleasure in Garden

The squirrels and nuthatches are a continual amusement to watch. I love to see the nuthatch come to a cocoon which is filled with a mixture of hemp seeds and nuts; he eats his fill of hemp seeds, then selects a nut and flies away with it. One of the squirrels hung himself in the ropes of the cocoon (head downward) one day Betty (my mother's good Swiss maid) went to the rescue, but he bit her at once. The verandah looks like the border of an illuminated manuscript—with all these pretty creatures among the trellis of monthly roses, the tins too. . . . Certainly, a garden, with its inhabitants of all sorts, is a never-failing happiness and interest to a quiet person like myself.—Janet Catherine Symonds

The Substitute

Little Betty was anxious to own a cat, but her father had a great aversion to them and turned a deaf ear to all her pleadings. He did say, however, that she could have a dog if she could find a nice, well-behaved one, that wouldn't bite the baby.

One day while walking with her mother, Betty saw a kitten frisking along beside her.

She turned a wistful face to her mother and said: "Oh, mummy! See! It doesn't seem to belong to anyone! Can't I take it home?"

"But, Betty, daddy says you can have a dog, but not a cat."

"Well, mummy, can't we take it home and use it for a dog?"

Marvelous Precocity

The precocious infant was being submitted to the psychological tests in order to determine the degree of his genius. He had already picked out numbers, arranged blocks and distinguished colors. Then came the supreme test, the identification of various coins. The investigator tossed a nickel on the floor. The precocious infant bent over it while the proud parents held their breath.

Then the precocious infant winked at his dad and cried exultantly, "Heads!"—Pathfinder Magazine

First Evening Schools

It is impossible to say exactly when evening schools had their origin in America. In a contract made with the schoolmaster of Flatbush, N. Y., in 1682, the evening school is mentioned but it is probable that allusion is made to the afternoon session of the school which began at 1 p. m. It is certain however, that in 1778 evening schools were conducted as private ventures in Salem, Mass., especially for instruction in the mariner's art, although some poor boys were taught to "cypher and to write."

May Have Come Upon Lost Mormon Trails

Curious old rock trails recently discovered have caused the California State Historical society to launch an extended research into the routes of early day highways in the belief that the evidences found are those of the lost Mormon trails which more than a half century ago connected Utah with the Pacific southwest, according to the New York World.

More than 60 years ago San Bernardino, 22 miles south of Lake Arrowhead, was a Mormon village, planned after Salt Lake City, and to the southwest ox-cart caravans craked their picturesque way along the monotonous journey.

What is now known as Lake Arrowhead was at that time a rugged, mountainous section with rushing streams. The lost trails are believed to have traversed this section. With the coming of settlers, the mountain streams were stemmed and Little Bear lake came into existence. Later a huge earth-filled dam 1,300 feet wide at the base, with a capacity of 775 acres of water, created Lake Arrowhead.

In the virgin forest of oak, cedar and fir surrounding the present lake old roads wind through the trees to the water's edge, where they disappear to emerge again on the opposite side of the lake.

The historical research workers believe these trails once traversed the former mountain slopes and merged with the old Arrowhead trail in the desert, near Victorville and Hesperia.

Holidays in Brazil Come Thick and Fast

The man who checks numerous holidays should move to Brazil. According to a work issued by a trust company of New York, "Bank and Public Holidays Throughout the World," Brazil enjoys eleven public holidays, and augments this allowance by many unofficial holidays which are generally observed. Starting well off the mark on January 1, with New Year's day there is an interval for work until the 6th, which is Epiphany. Follows a period of hard slogging until the 20th, when the state of Rio downs tools. Another state follows suit on the 25th, and still another on the 27th, which is the last holiday in January. Most months are like that in Brazil. In fact one or two months—such as April—are still more bountifully provided with holidays.

Welcome Stranger

A distinguished westerner, subject to severe attacks of indigestion, was traveling with his wife. Late one night in a pullman, he was seized with an attack. His wife slipped on a kimono and hurried to the washroom to prepare a mustard plaster. She rushed back hastily threw aside the curtains, opened his pajamas and applied the plaster securely before she discovered it wasn't her husband, but a stranger man. She fled horrified to the right berth and told her husband, who went into such fits of laughter that his indigestion was cured. If they tried to take off the plaster they would awaken the stranger. To avoid a difficult explanation they decided just to leave it on.

At 6 a. m. there was a terrific roar from the stranger's berth. "Porter," he howled, "who the h—l put a porcupine in my bed?"—Everybody's Magazine

Origin of the Clock

The first clock, according to Harry C. Brearly, was produced about 900 A. D. by Gerbert, the monk, who was the most accomplished scholar of the age. At that time the monks were the only people of learning to whom marking off a day's time was significant. They used bells to mark off the various periods of the day, much as some churches do today. The sounding of the ancient bells was depended upon by all the people and that is why the word "clock" was taken from the French word "cloche," which means "bell." At the close of the Thirteenth century a clock was set up in St. Paul's cathedral in London, and in 1581 Galileo, an Italian youth, discovered the principle of the pendulum.

Famous Knights Rare

In British history there are literally thousands of men who have been dubbed knights, but in history the number who stand out as really famous are few. Among those accorded real fame by Sir William Bull, author of "Knightage," are: Drake, Sidney, Grenville, Raleigh, Frobisher and Hawkins among the more ancient and Shackleton among the moderns. In philosophy the famous one listed is Bacon; in art, Leighton, Alts-Tadema and Orchardson. The stage claims Sir Henry Irving; music, Sir Arthur Sullivan; science, Sir William Crookes, and politics, Sir William Harcourt.

View of Friendship
I have never given much encouragement to friendship; I have done little for my friends, and they have done little for me. One of the ideas which I have so often to cope with is that friendship, as it is generally understood, is an injustice and a blunder, which only allows you to distinguish the good qualities of a single person and blinds you to those of others who are perhaps more deserving of your sympathy.—Ernest Renan
