

Worthy Firms TO Patronize

"They're honestly made, Sir"

Is the invariable remark of the salesman presenting these quality builders' hardware products. While their uniqueness of design give them the distinction so eagerly sought by individuals, their inbuilt wearing qualities establish standards hitherto unequalled. Your Architect knows.

Sugar or Candy
Granulated, lump, pulverized and brown sugars, though differing in texture and flavor, are practically alike in composition. They contain little or nothing but sugar. A pound of candy may be considered the equivalent in fuel value of a pound of sugar. Water, which has no fuel value, is used in making candy, but so, too, are chocolate and nut meats, which have higher fuel values than sugar. The proportion of sugar in thick syrups, such as honey and molasses, is about three-fourths of a pound to the pound, and in jellies, jams and rich preserves, about one-half of a pound to the pound.

By Direct Command
They were discussing the advent of their baby sister, but neither could give a satisfactory explanation of the new arrival.
At last the elder boy said: "I know how it was."
"How?" asked his brother.
"Why," he exclaimed, "with an air of relief and decision, 'God said, 'Let there be Phyllis,' and there was Phyllis.'"

No Give at All
Secretary A. D. Call of the American Peace Society said in an eloquent and optimistic address:
"The road to world peace looks long, but there is an end to it, after all, and a speedier end, maybe, than we think."
"Let us hope. Don't let us imitate the discouraged pacifist, who growled: 'Oh, yes, we pacifists will never give in; but, then, you know the military will never give out.'"

FACTS TO BE FACED
"Many a girl who is a kitten with men is a cat with women."
"Some people come to grief; others wait for it to overtake them."
"Give a man plenty of rope and he will be sure to get into an entanglement."
"The man who makes light of everything does not set the world on fire."
"The real hero of many a novel is the man who undertakes to publish it."
"The best thing to do when you find yourself up a tree is to fall on your back."
"The woman who does not wear her hair on her sleeve because her frock is too long is a fool."
"The woman who acknowledges her faults as long as they do not hurt her feelings is a fool."

Prescription Service Is Most Important
Not only does one expect quick service when medical aid is sought, but quick service in the filling of prescriptions is also expected.
A popular and reliable drug store, where you will be able to procure this satisfactory service, is the I. S. Hunt Company located at 390 Thurston Road, who make this part of their business a specialty and persons leaving a prescription here will be surprised to see how quickly it is put up. This firm has built up a business that is surprisingly large, entirely on the basis that proper service brings the business.
Anything in the drugist line can also be secured at this store, and you may rest assured it will be of the very best. You need not have to give any thought as to the purity of the drugs, or as to the carefulness of filling the prescriptions for none but the very best materials and the most expert pharmacists are here. Any physician will recommend in the highest of terms the business principles of this store, as well as to the high quality of the goods carried.
In addition to a most complete line of drugs, the I. S. Hunt Company are equipped to serve the housewife at her busiest time of the year—the canning season. In order not to have her efforts wasted and the good fruit spoil that she has spent so much time in preparing, it is very necessary that Fruit Jars, Col Pac Canners and Can Rubbers etc. be of the very best, and you can depend upon the canning supplies you purchase here to be the best and at a very reasonable price.
If you are going to buy a radio this fall, and now that the radio has become so perfected, nearly every one has a radio. You will more than enjoy it this winter listening in on the different concerts. New Models of Radiola, III A—Super Hets—and the New Crosley Line will be on Display. Stop in at the I. S. Hunt Company store, and see the wonderful display they have. They will be glad to offer any suggestions, and you are assured of prompt and courteous treatment.

Wandering Jew One of Oldest Legends

The story of the "Wandering Jew" is one of those old legends that has been handed down from the ages, and every one is at liberty to form his own judgments as to its truth. As to its origin, tradition says that Karthaphilos, the doorkeeper in the Judgment hall, in the service of Pontius Pilate, struck our Lord as he led him forth, saying, "Get on faster, Jesus," whereupon Jesus replied, "I am going, but thou shalt tarry till I come again." Another legend is that Jesus, pressed down with the weight of His cross, stopped to rest at the door of Ananias, a cobbler. The craftsman pushed him away, saying: "Get on! Away with you! Away!" Our Lord replied "Truly I am going, and that quickly, but tarry thou till I come." A third legend says it was the cobbler who hailed Jesus before Pilate, saying, "Faster, Jesus, faster." Still another legend says that Karthaphilos was baptized by Ananias some time after the crucifixion, receiving the name of Joseph. At the end of every 100 years, he is said to fall into a trance and waken up a young man of about thirty. There are also German and French legends about the "Wandering Jew," and many romances have been written on the subject, the most popular, perhaps, being Eugene Sue's story, "The Wandering Jew."

Gas Masks for All Animals in Warfare

Carrier pigeons, horses, mules, dogs and other animals used by the army in wartime will be equipped with gas masks should the United States ever engage in another war in which poison gases are used, according to an announcement made at the headquarters of the Second corps area, Governors Island, the New York Times reports.

The mask for horses and mules consists of a cheesecloth bag which covers the nostrils and upper jaw only. Horses and mules breathe only through the nose, so that it is not necessary for the mask to cover the mouth. Their eyes need no protection against tear gas, as they have no tear ducts. The mask is designed to be carried in a satchel on the breast harness when not in use.

The dog mask is built on similar lines, except that it covers both upper and lower jaws. Carrier pigeons will not be equipped with masks while in flight, but will be protected from chemical agents by a special gas cover completely surrounding their transport cages.

Death in the Waters

The overflow of a river in consequence of excessive rainfall is the most familiar type of flood, but there are many others, says Nature Magazine. Low-lying coasts of the ocean are often inundated by so-called "tidal waves"—which have nothing to do with tides in the ordinary sense of the term.

Some of these waves are due to earthquakes, others to storms. In the Lisbon earthquake of November 1, 1755, 60,000 people were drowned by a wave eight feet high that advanced from the sea.

The most destructive storm waves have occurred along the coast of the Bay of Bengal. The one of October 7, 1787, is said to have risen 40 feet in the River Hugli, sweeping away 300,000 souls. The Calcutta cyclone of October 5, 1884, caused the drowning of 48,000 people.

In the terrible Backergunge hurricane of 1876 the water rose from 30 to 40 feet in less than half an hour during the night of October 31-November 1, and 100,000 persons perished.

One on the Pastor

The good parson was a little absent-minded, and somewhere or other during the day, possibly at the barber shop, he acquired a hat that looked very like his, but belonged to some one else.

That evening he dined out and when the guests were leaving the host accompanied them to the door.

"This is yours, is it not?" said the host, picking up the parson's hat.

"Yes," said the parson, "that is mine."

There was a queer smile on the host's face as he handed over the headgear. For pasted in the crown thereof was a card bearing this legend, meant for all and sundry: "No, my friend, this is not your hat!"

Obedience

I do not know anyone who makes us feel more than Milton does the grandeur of the ends which we ought to keep always before us, and therefore our own pettiness and want of courage and nobleness in pursuing them. I believe he failed to discern many of the intermediate relations which God has established between Himself and us; but I know no one who teaches us more habitually that disobedience to the divine will is the seat of all misery to men.—F. D. Maurice, in "The Friendship of Books."

Trade Wind Nothing to Do With Commerce

The best-known wind in the world is the trade wind. It is commonly assumed that the word is connected with trade or commerce, because in the old sailing-ship days mariners used to seek this wind that it might blow them steadily in the right direction, be dependable, and not subject to variation or calm. This is a common error.

In Anglo-Saxon it was the treadwind, a wind with a specific tread, trend or direction.

The trade wind, then, is one of uniform track. In the northern hemisphere these winds blow from the northeast, and in the southern hemisphere from the southeast, about thirty degrees on each side of the equator. In some places they blow six months in one direction and six in the opposite.

The mistral is another famous wind. It is a violent northwest wind blowing down the Gulf of Lyons and felt particularly in the neighborhood of Marseilles. The simoon is a hot, suffocating wind that blows in northern Africa and Arabia. The strocco blows from north Africa over Italy.

Bees Not Permitted to Roam at Large

In the great plum-growing districts of northern California bees are being caged with the trees to insure pollination of the blossoms with pollen only from other trees of equal quality, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. Much loss has been occasioned to growers in the past due to cross-fertilization of their pure-bred plums with pollen from wild species and inferior varieties of the domestic fruit, resulting in crops of poorer grade and smaller size. A framework covered with strong mosquito net is built around each tree and a hive of bees is installed in the enclosure when the blossoms begin to appear. Freshly cut flowers from plum trees of equally good grade with the one caged are supplied to the insects each day and from these blossoms the little workers carry the pollen to their home tree. Cages have also been equipped with wheels so that an entire orchard can be covered with the inclosures in a short time.

Romance of Flowers

A great many of the flowers so well beloved bear names taken from human beings and are recorded in classic legends. Take, for instance, the hyacinth and narcissus. "Hyacinthus" was beloved by Zephyrus, but returned the affection so coldly that the latter, in anger, threw the quail (flung by Apollo) so that it hit Hyacinthus on the head, causing his death. In his grief Apollo changed the youth's blood into the flower. Narcissus, according to one legend, fell in love with his own fair image as he saw it reflected in water, mistaking it for the nymph of the fountain. He pined away and died of unrequited love. The flower bloomed from the place where he languished. Crocus is the Greek "Krokos," saffron, to which family it belongs. Saffron is made from the dried stigmata of the purple crocus. The Jonquil gets its name from the Latin word for a "rush," which has similar leaves and flowers.—The Flower Grower.

Gold Mine Rediscovered

A gold mine was recently discovered in Mexico by the presence of cockroaches. The mine was known to the Spaniards in the days of Cortes, who, on account of the number of cockroaches near the entrance, dubbed it Cucaracha, which, being interpreted, is the cockroach. It yielded a steady supply of gold until 1812, and during that troubled year it was sealed up and its site forgotten, though its story was remembered. A young prospector, finding a rock swarming with these insects, recalled the story, followed their trail, and found the mine, which now, after a century of idleness, is again being worked.—Family Herald.

No Pedigree

A rather mussy little urchin wandered up on the porch and began to play with Donald Smith, whose mother is quite fastidious as to playmates for her small son.

"Where's he from?" mother asked Donald in an aside, and not getting a satisfactory explanation, she called Donald into the house, which disgusted him entirely.

"Now, mother," he argued, "can't just this one boy play with me without being from anywhere?"

Tree Yields Rich Milk

A tree in the West Indies, known to the natives as the hyahya, yields from its bark and pith a juice richer and thicker than cow's milk. The people who live where the hyahya grows use its juice as we do milk. The tree when full grown is almost 40 feet high and 18 inches in circumference.

The Singhalese have a tree, the kirighama, which yields a milky fluid, while in the forests of Para grow the massendendron, another species of milk tree.—Detroit News.

Garages That Match House A Real Feature

A garage in the back yard of the home is regarded as a necessary appurtenance of the modern home of 1925.

This is a statement anyone who is abreast of the times will allow to go unchallenged, and the facts in the case bear out the statement.

However, even though that fact is generally known and conceded, there are in Rochester hundreds of homes that have no garage in the back yard, and the resident of the house has to "go to his neighbor's back yard to park his machine for the night."

Why that condition should exist is explained only by the fact that some people, fortunately a few, comparatively speaking, have the idea a garage is a costly proposition. In fact, it is, unless the purchaser takes the trouble to buy his garage right and have it erected right.

The West Side Pattern Works of 197 Lyell Avenue, however, will soon prove to any householder a garage is not costly in fact, cheap—and that the work of erecting it is but comparatively, child's play. For that firm makes a superb line of portable garages, and they are in use daily in Rochester by the hundreds. In fact, due to the firm's foresight in making it possible to match the style of the house in a portable garage, many home owners have that type of car home in their yards and people who pass day after day do not realize it is a portable garage.

This year the West Side Pattern Works brought out a new line of portable garages in the gable roof type, built throughout in 2x4 studs, plates and rafters, and having an increase of four degrees in roof pitch. A six-pane glass window instead of the four pane formerly used, gives a decided improvement in appearance.

to offer portable garages at low prices because all wood, hardware and other materials are bought to specification, just the size needed and in large quantities. The work of building is practically all done in the factory, and the garage is delivered in sections, ready to be set up, a job that requires but a few hours and does not leave a lot of litter and mess in the back yard.

Trott Bros. Monuments Lead Rest

There always comes a time in the history of every family when it becomes necessary for considering the question of erecting a suitable monument, headstone or marker upon the grave of a loved one.

Fortunately, death is not a frequent visitor in any family and so people as general proposition know little or nothing about such things and almost invariably are at a loss where to choose such monuments.

There is one firm, however, which by its excellent work, has achieved so fine a reputation that it is easily recognized among the leaders in its business in this section of the country.

This is Trott Bros. Co. Inc., situated at 1120 Mt. Hope Avenue. This firm has gone for nearly a half a century and is still doing notable work in its line and many of its beautiful monuments, headstones, markers and mausoleums are now standing as graceful and decorous memorials to those who have died.

Trott Bros. Company are operated in a high class manner. The executives of the firm will be glad at any time to be of real assistance to those who find it necessary to put a monument, headstone or marker upon the grave of a loved one.

They will gladly give the benefit of their experience and knowledge of these factors to those who find it necessary to consult them. The work will be done right and prices quoted will be right too.
