Anti-Klan Editor Wins Right To Go To Highest Court

Ruling Permits Bringing of Indiana Case To Supreme Federal Tribunal—Money To Carry Fight Through Pledged By Chicagoans (By N. C. W. C. News Service) Indianapolis, Ind., July 23.—Chief Justice David A. Myers of the Supreme Court of Indiana this week allowed a writ of error which transfers to the Supreme Court of the United States the case of George R. Dale, the militant anti-Klan editor of the Muncie, Ind., Post-Democrat, against the State of Indiana.

Mr. Dale has been reduced to penury by the Ku Klux Klan, with which he has been in conflict over a protracted period. His present entanglement in judicial processes is the result of this conflict.

Almost simultaneously with the announcement of the initial victory in his court fight came word of the delivery of the first $500 of $5,000 which a group of Chicagoans has pledged to Dale to see that justice is done him.

The editor was fined $500 and sentenced to 90 days' imprisonment by Judge Clarence W. Dearth, in Delaware County Circuit Court, for contempt of court. This sentence was passed because Dale published an article in his paper charging that a pending case against him was a conspiracy on the part of the Ku Klux Klan, and that the judge, prosecutor, sheriff, jury commissioners, grand jury and police department were members of the organization.

Dale repeated these accusations at the trial before Judge Dearth, and was again fined $500 and sentenced to another 90 days' confinement. At the trial he offered to prove the truth of his accusations, but this offer was denied. He was tried without counsel and the court room was packed with applauding people, who are said to have been Klansmen and Klanwomen invited by telephone the day before to attend.

The State Supreme Court held that the truth was not a defense, in the case of the sentence and the judgment was affirmed. By the assignment of errors the United States Supreme Court will be asked to pass upon 17 points grouped around these four principal issues:

The liberty of the press; the truth is a defense; the right of the Ku Klux Klan to superimpose its obligations upon judicial officers to the exclusion of the laws of the State and of the United States; the right of the courts, under the guise of "inherent" power, to fabricate the offense of contempt of court, ex post facto, out of conduct at the time of the occurrence was not obnoxious to any law of the State.

Emmet Cavanaugh, spokesman for the Chicago backers of Dale, declared that the $500 already delivered is "only the beginning," adding to Dale, "We will back you until you get justice."

Pope's Legate Thanks American People At Moment of Departure

(By N. C. W. C. News Service) New York, July 24.—Before sailing for home on the steamship Conte Biancamano today, His Eminence, John Cardinal Bonzano, Legate of Pope Pius XI to the Twenty-Eighth International Eucharistic Congress at Chicago, addressed the following message to the people of the United States:

"The spirit of hospitality manifested by the American people towards the pilgrims of the Eucharistic Congress, is characteristic of a nation that has commanded the admiration of the world for its devotion to the highest ideals. It touched the hearts of all observers and made the recipients conscious of a most profound appreciation of the welcome accorded them.

From the moment, when the symbol of American liberty lifted aloft its beacon to greet us at our entry into port, to the hour of our departure, one event succeeded the other in a continuous demonstration of cordiality. The public officials who spoke in the name of the civic authority, the ecclesiastics who led us into the sanctuary of our Eucharistic King, the throngs who saluted us on the broad avenues of commerce and the citizens who received us into the wholesome atmosphere of American home-life, the public press with its fine spirit of service and cooperation, all united to admit us to an experience which shall dwell in our hearts forever.

"The memory of the multitudes who crowded around at each point where our journey led us, the picture of the legions of innocent children that lined the thousand-mile route from east to west, and the climax in the myriads who gathered from the utmost bounds of the earth, coming from all climes and speaking every language of modern civilization, will be cherished with profound gratitude to a Divine Providence that permitted us to witness it.

Irish Papers Found To Be Cleaner Than Imported Variety

Dublin, July 12.—A discussion at the Maynooth Union of Priests on the position of the Catholic press in Ireland has drawn considerable comment throughout the country. Some of the lay critics have not been so charitably disposed to the unfortunate Irish journalists as were the Maynooth priests, who directed their criticisms principally to those members of the laity who read and prefer English newspapers to those published in Ireland.

A lay writer in the current Irish Rosary Magazine, setting out with the clearest intention to chastise the irreligion of the average Irish newspaper, is forced to admit that while these papers are very full of faults from the Catholic standpoint, they nevertheless respect Catholic doctrine. The imported English journals, on the other hand, while admirable papers in some instances, are non-Catholic in tone. One of them of the highest class is quoted as advocating divorce with a freedom that shows absolute contempt for any marriage bond. No Catholic or even Nationalist paper in Ireland would publish any such plea for divorce. The reports of certain crimes are cut to a few words, while admittedly considerable prominence is given to murder trials. Divorce laws is published with only a fraction of the detail displayed in the imported press.

Within the last few years many new popular weekly and monthly journals have sprung into circulation. Of these only one, the Catholic Pictorial, pretends to have any religious interest, but the others have a totally unobjectionable tone, and are full of a healthy interest in everyday life. Unconsciously these papers are Christian, even if not Catholic. They deal with Irish events, which consist for the greater part of healthy open-air and family life. For the first time for many years, a Dublin comic journal has met with success. It is criticized for all the faults that a comic journal can have, but is beyond reproach from the point of view of faith and morals.

The tendency to be hard on Catholic Journalism in Ireland arises from the unreasonable expectation of inexperienced people, who imagine that a free state of three million souls can support the brilliant, if pagan, literary class of its London neighbors.

For some time Father Dillon has been saving Mass privately for American and English Catholics who have been deprived of a pastor of their own nationality by the enforcement of the law prohibiting foreign clergy from officiating in Mexico and imposing severe penalties on all who violate it. The new regulations, which go into effect July 31, increase these penalties.

Eighty At Campion Retreat

(By N. C. W. C. News Service) Prairie du Chien, Wis., July 20.—Nearly 80 men attended Campion college's second retreat of the season conducted by the Rev. Louis A. Falley, S. J. The greatest number came from Madison, Wis., though other cities of Wisconsin, Iowa, and Minnesota, were represented.

Several Spanish priests and many nuns are leaving the country before the new regulations go into effect. Many of the nuns were teachers in the Catholic schools in different parts of the country. In Puebla Federal troops entered the church while services were being held, to search for foreign priests in order to arrest them and send them to Vera Cruz for deportation.
