

Wants Newspapers To Join In Assisting Anti-Ku Klux Editor

(By N. C. W. C. News Service) New York, July 30.—(Cooperative action by American newspapers in defense of George R. Dale, the militant anti-Klan editor of the Muncie (Ind.) Post-Democrat, is urged editorially by the New York World. Mr. Dale has just been permitted to appeal to the United States Supreme Court from his conviction and sentence on a charge of contempt of court.

"Recently," the editorial says, "The World called attention to the fight which George R. Dale, editor of the Muncie (Ind.) Post-Democrat, was making against Ku Klux Klan persecution in Indiana. It pointed out that Dr. Dale, after losing his appeal, is attempting to carry an appeal to the Federal Supreme Court and needs $5,000 to contest an Indiana verdict which would sharply restrict the right of the press to print the truth."

The editorial then quotes a suggestion that the newspapers of the United States have a common fund and common legal agency to defend their interests "when attacked in such a way." It is a suggestion which "The World" emphatically indorses.

The editorial continues "It is ready to make a substantial contribution to meet the costs of Mr. Dale's fight; it hopes that other journals will follow, and it is willing to join with them in establishing an agency to deal with similar cases."

Mr. Dale has long been in conflict with the Ku Klux Klan in Indiana. He has consistently and relentlessly fought the hooded order and ascribed his present difficulties to its operations.

Oldest Vincentian, 66 Years a Priest, Tells of Early Days

(By N. C. W. C. News Service) Los Angeles, July 24.—The Rev. Patrick O'Regan, C. M., the oldest Vincentian in the world and one of the oldest priests in the United States, observed the 66th anniversary of his ordination last Monday, the Feast of Saint Vincent de Paul.

A dinner was tendered the venerable priest at the rectory of St. Vincent's Church, here, and the Rt. Rev. John J. Cantwell, Bishop of Los Angeles and San Diego, presided. On this occasion Father O'Regan related many incidents of his long life, the most interesting of which was a depiction of the hardships undergone at the time of his ordination.

Weekly Calendar Of Feast Days

Sunday, August 8.—St. Cyriacus and his companions, martyrs. St. Cyriacus was a holy deacon at Rome under Pope Marcellinus and Marcellinus. He, Largus, Smaragdus and 20 others suffered martyrdom together in the persecution of Diocletian in 303.

Monday, August 9.—St. Romanus, martyr, was a soldier in Rome at the time of the martyrdom of St. Lawrence and was moved to embrace the Faith through the latter's zeal. He confessed his faith and was beheaded the day before St. Lawrence, thus arriving at his crown before his guide and master.

Tuesday, August 10.—St. Lawrence, martyr, was the chief among the seven deacons of the Roman Church. When Pope Sixtus was led to death, St. Lawrence lamented that he could not share his fate. His Holiness predicted that in three days he also would be martyred. The prophecy came true.

Wednesday, August 11.—Sts. Tiburtius and Susanna, martyrs. Tiburtius was the son of Chromatius, a vicar to the prefect of Rome, who was converted through a miracle. Tiburtius was ordained a deacon and soon was subjected to cruel torments and finally beheaded. St. Susanna was nobly born in Rome and is said to have been a niece of Pope Callixtus. She suffered martyrdom about 295.

Thursday, August 12.—St. Clare, abbess, was a noble maiden who secretly pledged her life to Christ. Later she founded an Order and after her 14-year-old sister and afterwards her mother and other ladies. She died about 1253.

Friday, August 13.—St. Radegunde, queen, was the daughter of a king of Thuringia. She was captured in a war by Clotaire, King of Soissons, who had her instructed in the Christian religion. She desired a life of virginity but was obliged to become the wife of the king. When Clotaire became infatuated with bad passions, Radegunde obtained leave to retire from the court and built a great monastery. She died August 13, 587.

Saturday, August 14.—St. Eusebius, priest. The Church celebrates today the memory of St. Eusebius, who opposed the Arians at Rome. Another saint of the same name, a priest and martyr, is commemorated on this day.

Orphanage's Athletic Field Gift Of Orphan Boy Who Became Rich

(By N. C. W. C. News Service) Cleveland, July 20.—A plot of ground adjoining the Parmadale orphan village to be used as an athletic field for the boys and girls of the orphanage, was dedicated on Saturday by Bishop Joseph Schrembs. The occasion has special significance because the land was the gift of John Patrick Whelan, who years ago was an orphan boy at St. Vincent's orphanage.

After he grew to manhood Mr. Whelan became prominent in the iron business, and members of the Grey Iron Founders Association gave equipment to the field valued at $3,000. During his lifetime, Mr. Whelan never forgot St. Vincent's, and always called on the Sisters of Charity when he came to Cleveland.

Orangemen Show Less Bitterness At Celebrations

(By J. J. Mooney) (Dublin Correspondent, N. C. W. C. News Service)

Dublin, July 24.—Catholic Ulster noted with pleasure a considerable diminution in the bitterness of the speeches delivered during the Orange celebration of the twelfth of July. The bitterest speech in all the meetings was delivered by a non-Catholic clergyman from outside Ireland. It seems as if the words of Cardinal O'Donnell in New York have borne splendid fruit.

Speaking at Omaha, Mr. J. A. Pringle, Unionist and non-Catholic member of Parliament for a division of Tyrone and Fermanagh Counties, said a great change had taken place in the border counties. "There is now," he said, "little cause of dissension between the North and South. I am gratified to have seen a few days ago an account of the speech by Cardinal O'Donnell at a meeting of the Irish Historical Society. The words of Cardinal O'Donnell breathe the spirit of true wisdom and patriotism. I recall with pleasure this utterance: 'I think if we are to serve Ireland we shall have to be to our neighbors' qualities a little kind, and to his faults a little blind. The surest path to a united Ireland is the path of friendship between North and South, the path of good feeling between Catholic and Protestant, and the path of friendship, so far as principle will allow between conflicting political parties.'"

Happy Days Foreseen "If," continued Mr. Pringle, "the spirit of the Cardinal's utterance becomes broadcast in Ireland, it will be a happy day for our once distracted country. I am expressing the feeling of the Orangemen when I say that we heartily reciprocate the feeling of friendship."

The same spirit is in the speech of Mr. J. F. Gordon, conservative member of the Northern Parliament and Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Labor. Speaking at Massereene Park, Antrim, Mr. Gordon said "We are out to promote good-will among all men. We have set ourselves this task and shall pursue it. Strife, jealousy and suspicion can never be to the advantage of any country or any community, and must be removed by equality of justice and administration. It is our aim to create an administration which will command the respect and confidence of all men."

At Ballybay various officials of the Orange institution told the reporters they had to thank the Catholic Government and Catholic civic authorities for having placed guards on duty for two nights to prevent any attempt at interference with the Orange decorations or temporary platforms. The officials also expressed their thanks for hospitality received in the town and provided by a committee which received subscriptions and assistance from Catholics.

"Absence of Anti-Catholic Attacks" The "Irish News," the only Catholic daily paper in North East Ireland, says in a leading article: "Looking over the speeches at the Orange demonstrations we are struck by the absence this year of a great deal of the offensive anti-Catholic matter which frequently self-condemned them as a public danger."

Catholics in Southern Ireland who live in complete harmony with their non-Catholic fellow citizens, welcome these indications of a diminution in the north of that bigotry which seemed to the south so incomprehensible.
