SALE OF OLD LONDON ANGLICAN CHURCHES IS OPPOSED BY CATHOLICS

(By N. C. W. C. News Service)

London, Dec. 1.—The proposal of the Church of England to sell many old churches in the City of London in order to devote the proceeds to the maintenance of churches elsewhere is meeting with opposition both from Catholics and from many Anglicans.

The rector of the Church of St. Andrew-by-the-Wardrobe, in Queen Victoria street, led a protest procession through the streets the other day, several robed clergy taking part. In an address he said that every church was of the greatest use for private prayer and that the suburbs were little better than dormitories for the people.

There is no question about the fact that the city churches which it is proposed to pull down, and which stand on some of the most valuable sites in London, are practically unused, though many clergy live on their endowments. Investigation some time ago revealed the fact that some of the Sunday services were attended by two, three, or four persons, including church officials.

The City of London covers a very small area and its residential population is minute, comprising for the most part people of the janitor type.

Some of the churches involved are pre-Reformation and survived the Fire of London. They are all on the sites of pre-Reformation churches, and that fact is responsible for the Catholic opposition to their destruction.

One Catholic paper says that in this connection: "We object because the sites (which constitute the money value) are old Catholic property, given to God. Once desecrated, there is no reason why they should be again desecrated and this time irrevocably alienated. Moreover, their enhanced value does not justly belong to the Anglicans. Their just value is what they would fetch at auction, with a restricting clause that their use be confined to religious purposes. So put up, they could be bought by the various religious bodies and made useful centers of perpetual week-day work."

The secular opposition to the demolition of the city churches is based upon the ground that by their antiquity they are national monuments, the preservation of which should be undertaken by the state.

CATHOLIC OFFER OF HOSPITALITY TO THE KLAN

Harrisburg, Pa., Dec. 1.—The board of managers of the Sylvan Heights Orphanage, an institution for girls conducted by the Catholic Church in this diocese, have offered the facilities of their institution to the Ku Klux Klan for the girls among the 46 children left homeless by the fire at the Klan Haven home for children recently. The orphanage offered to care for the girls until the Klan could reestablish a permanent home.

Klan officials have expressed their appreciation of the offer of the Catholic home to care for the girls, who number 25, but said that they would utilize the former building of the Polyclinic Hospital, which has become available and which will allow the children to be kept together.

There are a number of children not of the Catholic faith at the Sylvan Heights orphanage, which does not require that its charges be Catholic. As a spokesman explained in this present situation "for all time the Catholic Church has preached Christian charity, and it is ready and willing at all times to extend its facilities wherever and whenever they may be accepted.

Henderson Gilbert, Protestant member of the board of the Sylvan Heights Orphanage, extended the invitation to house the children from the Klan home at the Catholic orphanage. In a letter to Mrs. Mary L. Goodwin, major kleagle of the women of the Klan in Pennsylvania and New York, he said in part:

"The Sylvan Heights board asked me to extend this invitation to you so that there would be no misunderstanding at all on your part. There are Protestant children in the Catholic institution now and there will be no proselyting. Your children would have exactly the same care as the others, which I may state is excellent. The offer is made in the spirit of cooperation, which I think is wonderful in this community, and we desire only to help you in your unfortunate position, on account of the fire."

Where There's Will There's a Way

(By N. C. W. C. News Service)

Slater, Mo., Dec. 1.—The National Council of Catholic Women of this town, a small but energetic group, has just installed a memorial window in the new St. Joseph's Church here, after carrying out a financing program that has few equals for novelty, diversity and persistence.

The women had already paid for the "Altar Society" and "Sodality" windows when they determined to leave a testimonial to the enthusiasm of their council of Catholic women. This was to be done by placing a window in the church at the cost of $54.

Accordingly they advertised a "food market" hopeful of raising enough money for the window in a single day. Snow piled up as high as the house, however, and the women were fortunate to make $15. Then they gave a luncheon to the gun club but it realized only nine dollars, leaving their total $24. An officer borrowed five dollars from each of six members and made up the required total. Later a motion picture program was given in cooperation with the Altar Society and the Women's Council realized $40 as its share. This was enough to pay back the generous members and to have $10 left over for annual national dues.

Priest Who Served 40 Years In Three Countries Is Dead

London, Dec. 1.—A priest who was born in Ireland, ordained in America, belonged to a Mexican diocese, and worked in England for 22 years, died recently in a nursing home here.

Father Hugh Byrne, of the Diocese of Monterey, was ordained in the Archdiocese of Dubuque in 1886, and during his labors in that diocese he built two churches. Later he went to Monterey, Mexico, and came to London 21 years ago to work at Dockhead, one of the poorest South London parishes.

He started what came to be known as "the poor man's university," a discussion class that attracted hundreds of young men who thirsted for general knowledge without having the opportunity to acquire it from classes and books. Another social service which he rendered took the form of a fight against extortionate money-lenders who got the poor into their clutches and sold up their homes.

A clerical colleague pays a remarkable tribute to his fervor. "He died in extreme piety, even for a priest," he says. The Bishop of Southwark visited Father Byrne almost daily at the end.

English Catholic Candidates Fare Badly In Contests

London, Nov. 27.—Catholic candidates did not do quite so well as was expected at the municipal elections up and down the country.

With the country in an unsettled state due to the continuance of the mining dispute, it was to be expected that surprises would occur at the polls, particularly as the labor candidates organized their votes very thoroughly whilst the general voters were somewhat apathetic, as they always are at these elections.

Many of the labor candidates returned are Catholics, but there are probably fewer Catholics elected to local councils this year than last year.

Only in one city, Liverpool, were there official Catholic candidates. In the northern seaport eight candidates were nominated by the Catholic Representation Association, which is concerned with the safeguarding of local Catholic interests. Of these, two were defeated. In the case of one defeated candidate, Father T. J. Rigby, his successful opponent is a Catholic. There are sixteen Catholics in the new Liverpool city council. In the old council they had second place numerically. They are now third, being two seats behind labor.

Jugoslav Bishops Urge Religion Be Taught In Schools

Zagreb, Dec. 1.—One of the most important questions dealt with by the Hierarchy's conference, which was recently held here, was the new school law, in connection with which the bishops have formulated several proposals destined to insure the teaching of religion. Attention was also given to the agrarian reform, which has infringed upon the property rights of the Church. The State was petitioned not to recognize the validity of marriage ceremonies fraudulently performed by heretical ministers of religion. A protest was made against the introduction of cremation.

The heirarchy engaged in a general discussion of the means of promoting the spiritual welfare of emigrants to America and also decided to institute a uniform text for the catechism, Gospel and Bible history used in the schools of the Kingdom.
