YOUR CHILD'S HEALTH

A series of articles by Mary E. Spencer (N. C. W. C. Bureau of Education)

Benefits of the Nutrition Class

Dr. Long's interest in the nutrition of the children of St. Anne's School had been aroused. His discovery that Herbert and John, two difficult or problem children in the fifth grade, were malnourished, led him to further investigation. He decided to form a nutrition class in the parochial school with these boys as a nucleus. At the suggestion of the Superior the entire school was weighed and measured so that those who were underweight might be further examined as possible nutrition cases.

Marie was a fourteen year old girl with a sixteen-hour daily schedule. Bright and ambitious, she was further pushed by over-ambitious parents and in addition to her school work and home study, there were music lessons, dancing lessons, and a French class, besides the Girl Scouts and church activities as outside-school calls on her limited energies. The result was a very much underweight, tense, irritable girl who was in poor health not because of overstudy, as supposed, but because of unwise waste of energy in attempting to do too many things at the expense of needed play life and recreation.

Faulty Food Habits Anne was leading a very much more wholesome life but her food habits were faulty. While her choice of food was fairly representative, it fell far short of her requirement due to the fact she was accustomed to eating a large quantity of clear soup at dinner. While this did not furnish much nourishment, it was very filling and it prevented the taking of an adequate amount of substantial food at this meal.

Given Health Training

The other day I visited the school and observed the work the nutrition class was carrying on. Here was a group of children who were not sick enough to be in bed, but who were not well enough to work and study and play as other children do. While they were not suffering from any specific diseases they were in a low state of health. They represented the children who from time to time go to the family physician without receiving much help. From the medical standpoint there is often nothing the matter with them. From the point of view of physical fitness there is everything the matter with them. What they need is not medicine but training in health or food habits or both, and perhaps some adjustment in home life or discipline. The nutrition class provides the stimulus of class work and the spirit of competition thus makes their re-education along health lines comparatively easy.

Dublin Interested In Large Repairs On Pro Cathedral

(By N. C. W. C. News Service) Dublin, June 7.—Public interest is aroused by extensive renovations to the Pro-Cathedral, Dublin, especially the elevation of the roof of St. Kevin's chapel by several feet. This has been undertaken by an engineering process rarely employed by Irish builders. Numbers of jacks, each capable of lifting ten tons, were induced at several points between the wall of the chapel and the dome, which was then lifted bodily. The jacks will be maintained in position until the walls of the chapel are raised, and the dome will be able to be raised to its new level.

Two Brothers Become Redemptorist Priests At Double Ceremony

Grand Rapids, Mich., June 13.—Two brothers, Raymond and Donald Miller, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Wenzel Miller of this city, were ordained Redemptorist priests at a double service Sunday in the Immaculate Conception seminary chapel, Oconomowoc, Wis., Archbishop Messenger of Milwaukee officiated.

Once An Immigrant Boy, Wills $500,000 To Catholic Schools

(By N. C. W. C. News Service) New York, June 11.—Approximately $500,000 of a fortune of $600,000 saved by Dr. Michael E. O'Donovan in medical practice after earning his way through college, will go to the support of the Catholic high schools of New York, according to terms of his will, filed for probate in Surrogate's Court here yesterday. Dr. O'Donovan died June 5.

Catholic College Praised As Model British Missioner

London, June 7.—The new De La Salle College at Pendleton, Manchester, is held up by the Minister of Education, Lord Eustace Percy, as a model to public authorities who build higher grade schools. When he opened the school, the Minister pointed out that it has been erected at a cost of $275 a place, whereas public authorities pay between $425 and $600 a place for the schools they build.

C. U. Invited To Play Night Football Game

Washington, June 10.—The football team of the Catholic University of America has been invited by William and Mary College to play a regulation football game at Williamsburg, Va., on the evening of September 24. The game would start at 8.15 p. m., and would be the first night football game ever attempted in this section. Catholic University already has a game scheduled with William and Mary College for that date. It was originally proposed to play in the afternoon, as is the custom, but the authorities of the Virginia Institute have just announced that an elaborate and costly system of flood lights will be installed to illuminate the field and desire that the game be played at night to test the feasibility of football in the evening. The athletic officials at Catholic University have been invited to inspect the equipment and its effect in the hope that they will agree to the change. It will be Catholic University's first game of the 1927 season.
