Holy Land Social Apostolate Given A New Impetus

Cardinal Ferrari Work, With Its Splendid Welfare Activities, Opens New Home—U.S. Scientist Assists By Dr. Alexander Monabelli, (Jerusalem Correspondent, N. C. W. C. News Service)

Jerusalem, June 10.—The Opera Cardinal Ferrari (Cardinal Ferrari Work) of the Company of St. Paul, which for four years now has been building a splendid Catholic apostolate of social work in the Holy Land, has just opened its new building here with an impressive "Week in Honor of Our Lady."

In the new structure, this pious society, of Italian origin, undoubtedly will expand in a gratifying manner its work, which already comprises two schools, an athletic club, a library, a travelling bureau, boys groups and even a women's auxiliary. Many Catholics of various rites attended the "Week" just held, distinguished guests including Monsignor Barlassina, the Latin Patriarch of Jerusalem, and his auxiliary, Bishop of Keane; the Archbishop of Cagliari, Italy, and Monsignor Novella, Dr. Pedrazzi, the Italian Consul General, also attended.

American Orientalist speaker. Addresses were delivered each day in a different language, the English address being given by the Rev. Dr. Romanus Butin, Professor of Oriental Languages at the Catholic University of America and for the last eight months the director of the American School of Oriental Research in Jerusalem. The "Week" reached its climax on the last day, when the Italian Consul General addressed a crowded hall, praising the Cardinal Ferrari Work and paying tribute to the inspiration of the Blessed Virgin. Dr. C. Penco, director of the Jerusalem center of the work, then spoke of its development, calling it a sort of repayment to Palestine of the debt Italy, together with the rest of the world, owes to the Holy Land for the great boon of Christianity.

A youthful society, having been founded by the great Cardinal Ferrari in 1920 and made directly dependent on the Holy See as late as 1924, the Company of St. Paul is one of the most energetic. It aims to bring together young men and women of high morals and noble ideals for social work as an exemplification of Catholicity. It founds institutes which promote religious, social and recreational movements with the purpose of bringing men to a realization of the Fatherhood of God. It works on thoroughly modern lines, depending on the bonds of charity. Great Apostolate Planned. Its plans is to set up printing presses to promote the diffusion of Catholic literature and to publish newspapers and reviews, books, educational works and novels. The theater and motion picture are used, and, excursions, pilgrimages, sports, and all forms of recreation which may cheer and elevate the mind are encouraged. It also plans houses where those who have succeeded in the struggle of life may find a refuge. In them, the unemployed and ex-convicts will be comforted and helped, and given the opportunity of making a fresh start.

The young congregation began its Catholic apostolate in Jerusalem four years ago. Invited by Monsignor Barlassina, it has opened a preparatory and secondary school, with boarders, evening classes in commerce, classes for languages, music and singing, information and a travelling bureau, a Boy Scout troop, an athletic club, a library and a hall. The center has now founded an Association of benefactors who will help its apostolate. There is also a circle of lay helpers among whose members is Mrs. Symes, wife of the Chief Secretary to the British High Commissioner in Palestine.

This Museum has as its aim to continue in a permanent form the work of the 1925 Vatican Mission Exposition. Father Considine went to Rome in the autumn of 1924, in charge of the Maryknoll contribution to the Exposition. He acted subsequently in the capacity of an official Exposition guide.

Six graduates of the National Catholic School of Social Service were given the degree Master of Arts as a part of the exercises.

Montcalm's Bravery Is Commemorated On Ticonderoga Tablet

(By N. C. W. C. News Service) Ticonderoga, N. Y., June 20.—As a tribute to the fearless, gallant and self-reliance of Louis-Joseph de Goyon, Marquis de Montcalm, whose name is closely associated with later Colonial history of New York, a tablet was unveiled at Fort Ticonderoga Sunday. It is the gift of Colonel Robert M. Thompson.

The monument commemorates the French general's defense of Fort Carillon, also known as Ticonderoga, against the assault of Abercrombie's British regulars and Colonial troops July 8, 1758, the last and greatest of Montcalm's victories, a battle which was to result either in the salvation or destruction of New France.

The old work, which stood a short distance from the restored ruins of the present-day Ticonderoga, was the most advanced position of the French during the Seven Year war, and it was the plan of the British to reduce it. Abercrombie's army, outnumbering Montcalm's four to one, stormed the fortress freely, but was repulsed with heavy losses. The famous Black Watch Regiment of Highlanders distinguished itself in the attack, losing half of its strength in killed and wounded.

When the fray over 2,000 English soldiers lay killed or wounded, while the French losses were only 104 killed and 248 wounded; 3,800 men had repulsed 15,000. In thanksgiving to the God of Hosts, the French general raised a cross. The tablet bears the following inscription: "Near this spot stood Louis-Joseph de Goyon, Marquis de Montcalm, with a small force of French troops and Canadian volunteers, and prevented the capture of Fort Carillon, by defeating a much superior British and Colonial army. This monument is erected to honor a brave and gallant gentleman."

Montcalm, who died on the Heights of Abraham, when giving battle to the English under General Wolfe, who also fell mortally wounded, was a brave and generous commander, a high-minded and disinterested patriot; a faithful Christian giving to God the glory of his victories. His memory is cherished in the Old and the New World. In Canada he shares the honors awarded to his victor, as the following inscription in Latin on their joint monument testifies: "Valor Gave Them a Common Death; History Gave Them a Common Fame; Posterity Gives Them a Common Monument," a tribute duly anticipated by the French Academy in the last words of the hero's epitaph in the chapel of the Ursuline monastery. The French monument also buried him, and commended him to the enemy's generosity.

It reads: "Letter dated May 24, which the Consul at Yunnan received from the Roman Catholic mission at Kwei Yang, stated that all American Catholic missionaries of Western Hunan are safe and are located as follows: "Eleven Fathers are at Kwei Yang; one Father and three Sisters are at Lao Hwang Ping, in Kwei Chow, and four Fathers are still remaining in Yang Chow, in Hunan Province, which is in possession of Kweichow troops, who are friendly. "They all intend to remain where they are until conditions are such that they can return to Hunan or until conditions compel them to evacuate."
