

Primitive Man Brochure Series By Missionaries

(By N. C. W. C. News Service) Washington, March 9.—The Catholic Anthropological Conference, organized two years ago, is now ready to begin its publication of a series of anthropological knowledge uncovered by Catholic missionaries ministering to souls in all parts of the world.

This announcement is made by Primitive Man, the quarterly bulletin of the Conference, which has just made its initial appearance. The Conference, the bulletin discloses, has abandoned the idea of issuing a year book, but, instead, will set forth the new scientific information in the publication of the Catholic Anthropological Conference, a series of brochures such as are now produced by leading universities and museums.

The aim of the Catholic Anthropological Conference, which was organized at an informal meeting held at the Catholic University of America on April 6, 1926, is "the advancement of anthropological science through the promotion of anthropological research and publication by Catholic missionaries, specialists and other students, and through the promotion of ethnological training among candidates for mission work."

The "Primitive Man" series of brochures, says this, the first issue of Primitive Man, "The Conference, however, is now ready to begin its first publication. A considerable quantity of manuscript material has come in from the field. Each contribution will go out as a brochure. Some of the brochures will be only a few pages in length. Others will reach one hundred pages or more. Each brochure will be separately bound in a paper cover. The brochures will be published at suitable material comes in, not at periodical intervals. It is planned to publish about a dozen or more each year, the number varying according to the length of the papers and according to the material and funds available. Each brochure will be numbered and pagged consecutively, and will form part of a numbered volume or series of the publications of the Catholic Anthropological Conference."

The quarterly bulletin, it is announced, will not be used for the publication of manuscripts from the field. These will be used only in the Publications series. The aim of the bulletin is to promote interest in and advancement of anthropological studies in general and of the work of the Conference in particular among Catholic missionaries, seminarians, and college students, and among the Catholic public at large.

New Motor Energy Found By Jesuit Interests Savants

New York, March 8.—Confident he has invented a motor that makes use of "inter-atomic" energy to generate many times the power it received originally from an electric battery, the Rev. Antonio d'Angelo, an Italian Jesuit, who, when not experimenting in his own electric laboratory, devotes his time in the missionary fields of Brazil, is creating much interest among scientists here.

While unable to speak English, Father d'Angelo, when discovered hovering over a plan of his brainchild, which he feels confident breaks up molecules and turns the atoms into channels that increase the motor's power, said yesterday to his brother, Biagio, of this city that the motor is now at Washington where it is undergoing Patent Office investigations.

The eyes of the little priest, a stocky, earnest man, danced with joy as he explained how the motor started to develop energy from an electric battery and how this original impulse worked on the machine to generate many times its power through the "electricity produced by the inter-atomic energy of the ion."

The missionary priest does not believe in the Hendershot "fuelless motor." "I challenge anyone," he said, "to use the magnetic field of the earth for running a motor. The energy from that would be too small." His motor, Father d'Angelo claims, could be used in the home to supply electric lighting cheaply, and even heating. He said that it could be used to run trains, airplanes and automobiles.

Father d'Angelo became interested in electricity twenty years ago when he was a student at a Jesuit seminary in Naples. A year and a half ago he was sent out by his order to Brazil to carry on missionary work at Ribeirao Preto among the Italian immigrants. He had to get a special dispensation from Bishop Alberto Gonzalez of Ribeirao Preto to visit the United States, where, so his brother had written to him, fortune comes more easily to the man with a new money-saving device. He came here in November, 1927, and has urged his Bishop to extend his leave of six months.

Naming of Pape Nuncio To Prague Gives Satisfaction

(Prague Correspondent, N. C. W. C. News Service) Prague, Czechoslovakia, March 1.—Monsignor Ciriaci's appointment as Pape Nuncio to the Czechoslovak Government is accepted with satisfaction by the press here. Even non-Catholics are relieved that regular diplomatic relations with the Vatican have been resumed. Before leaving Rome, Monsignor Ciriaci is to be consecrated as archbishop.

Care of Graveyards In Ireland Urged By Two Prelates

(By N. C. W. C. News Service) Dublin, March 5.—Strong appeals for the better care of Irish churchyards and cemeteries are made in the Lenten Pastoral of the Most Rev. Dr. Gilman, Archbishop of Tuam, and the Most Rev. Dr. Dignan, Bishop of Clontarf.

This movement was initiated by Catholic laymen during the last twelve months. Members of local municipal and county bodies called attention to the neglected condition of many Irish churchyards. The County Board of Health of Limerick, in particular, in taking action in the matter, received about six months ago the encouragement of Bishop Fogarty of Killaloe, for which the County Board publicly thanked him.

In his Pastoral on the subject, the Archbishop of Tuam says: "The canon law lays it down that everything unbecoming to the sanctity of the place should be excluded from a cemetery, which should be securely enclosed and carefully kept. 'In Catholic countries like Italy,' he continued, 'the cemetery is called a 'campo santo', that is, a sacred enclosure. Those cemeteries are cities of the dead and are kept even with greater care than cities of the living. The cemeteries of Rome, Genoa, and Pisa yearly attract tens of thousands of tourists to see their artistic monuments set in lines like the streets of the city, with nature's choicest flowers exhaling their fragrance over the homes of the dead. Even at night lamps are kept burning over many tombs, the light of which, seen at a distance, invited the living to think of the dead. Even the smallest parish has its 'campo santo' kept on a smaller scale, but with the same assiduous care."

In dealing with the subject Dr. Dignan says: "Our cemeteries are hopelessly neglected, and their condition is disgraceful. Boundary walls are broken so that animals can trespass at will; briars of all sorts, and weeds flourish; headstones and crosses lean at all angles; large stones are thrown heedlessly all over the ground, wreaths are broken and trampled upon. In the worst cases there are no pathways—no way of getting through God's acre except over the graves of the dead. Some of them, moreover, are so crowded that scenes are witnessed in making new graves, or rather in remarking old ones, that should never be seen in Christian countries."

The scheme of reform suggested by Bishop Dignan in general is that a committee should be formed in each parish consisting of a curate and four or five lay members, to be elected by those having plots in the local cemeteries. It is suggested that a number of young men, under the direction of the local committee, should attend to each cemetery two or three times a year.

Immodest Fashions For Women Called 'Pagan Tendencies'

(By N. C. W. C. News Service) Dublin, March 5.—Current pagan tendencies in women's dress were condemned by the Most Rev. Dr. Gilman, Archbishop of Tuam, preaching at the dedication of a new church at Ballinacorney, Ballyhaunis, Mayo County.

"There was a time," said his Grace, "when every home was a sanctuary. Now the tendency is to be out often and to return late. There was a time when the face of a woman was the focus of her attractiveness, including not only her natural beauty but her Christian modesty. How much this has changed by some of the modern heathen fashions I feel ashamed to say."

Pope Hears Friend's Address on Radio

(By N. C. W. C. News Service) Rome, March 5.—Pope Pius XI was an interested listener to the address delivered over the radio by Cardinal Tosi, the Holy Father's successor as Archbishop of Milan, at the laying of the first stone for the new diocesan seminary at Varese.

100 Reservations Made For Easter Washington Tour

Victorian Tours Offer Splendid Opportunity To Visit Washington Local Clergyman Will Act As Spiritual Director

Catholics from Rochester, Auburn, Ithaca and Elmira and vicinity as well as teachers and students from the Catholic high schools and academies of the Rochester Diocese are continuing to show keen interest in the First Annual Easter Vacation Tour to Washington with side trips to Baltimore, Annapolis, Philadelphia and Atlantic City which is being conducted by the well-known Victorian Tours of Buffalo, N. Y. April 6th, to 12th, 1928.

Many Reservations Made This Tour which is the fifth conducted by the Victorian Tours has the approval of a score or more of prominent clergymen and teachers and up to date over 80 reservations have been booked. Membership in the tour is positively limited to number of rooms reserved at the hotels in Washington and Atlantic City and when quota is filled no new members will be accepted. Those planning to make the tour are urged to make their reservations at once to avoid disappointment.

To Have Spiritual Director and Chaplains A prominent Priest of the Diocese has been invited to accompany as Spiritual Director while a well known Catholic lay will act as Chaplain. The representative of the Catholic Sun in Syracuse has been invited to act as host to members of our party throughout the stay in Washington. Reception and Social Tuesday April 10th, members of the tour will attend President Coolidge's reception at the White House where members will have an opportunity to shake hands with the President. In the Evening the Students of the Catholic high schools and academies of Washington will tender a get acquainted Reception followed by a Dance in honor of the teachers and students of our party which will take place in the Catholic Daughters home.

Local Office Opened. Due to the large number of inquiries coming in every day the directors of the Victorian Tours have decided to establish their headquarters in the office of the Rochester Echo 221 Central Building 158 Main St. E. where all those interested in making the trip may obtain with less difficulty any information they may desire as well as make reservations for the tour beginning March 22nd. Information will also be given by mail from the Buffalo address, 68 Briggs Ave.

The most delightful time of the year to visit Washington is at Easter, particularly for those who are accustomed to our northern climate, as the balmy spring weather in Washington offers such a pleasing contrast. The Victorian Tours offer an exceptional opportunity to visit the National Capital under most ideal conditions. An interesting program of thorough sight-seeing and inspection trips in Washington, and all places visited has been arranged, enabling the tourist to know before hand just how the time will be used and what the approximate cost will be. This is the fifth tour to Washington that the Victorian Tours will conduct and all are assured a splendid time.

Hell-Hounds Devour Mexican Catholics, English Bishop Says

(By N. C. W. C. News Service) London, March 5.—"Arise, God, and vindicate their blood!" is the prayer of the Archbishop of Birmingham, Mgr. McIntyre, at the end of a reference to the Mexican martyrs included in his Lenten pastoral. "Our sympathy goes out to our brethren in Mexico," says His Grace, "and our fervent prayers should be poured out before the throne of God for them. They are suffering a most inhuman persecution for the name of God. They are being torn and devoured by what from all I have read, deserve to be called relentless hell-hounds." Interest in Mexico is awakening here. Protest resolutions are being passed at meetings in several parts of the country. At these the secular press is severely criticized for its silence on the subject of the persecution.

Cardinal Mercier's Death Room Shrine For Many Visitors

(By N. C. W. C. News Service) Brussels, March 5.—That the name and fame of Belgium's war figure and Prince of the Church, the late Cardinal Mercier, will be revered and zealously guarded indefinitely, is not made evident daily by the devotion displayed by those pilgrims who visit the death chamber of the world-famous churchman-patriot at the Brussels shrine, which has been transformed into a shrine.

Everything in the room is exactly as it was at the death of His Eminence two years ago, and souvenirs, especially bits of the linen that covered his head, are eagerly sought by the visitors. His Eminence, Joseph Cardinal Van Roey, Archbishop of Malines, who succeeded the noted prelate, frequently finds his way to the little holy shrine. "I should like to send a chamber of his predecessor for meditation and prayer, and to attend to the large correspondence from devoted admirers of the great-lamented Cardinal in various parts of the world. Cardinal Mercier's apartments at London, Berlin and Amsterdam have been converted into a museum and his belongings, also are visited by his many admirers, and his memory of religious creed.

Card. Dubois Sends Letter By French Fliers To Bishop

(Paris Correspondent, N. C. W. C. News Service) Paris, March 5.—The airplane of Messrs. Mauler and Baud, who are soon to undertake a flight from Paris to Capotone, was blessed by Cardinal Dubois at Le Bourget Field recently at the request of the venture some fliers, and will carry a letter for him to the Bishop of Dakar.

After having talked with the fliers regarding their proposed route and expressed admiration for the courage of aviators in general, the Cardinal advanced to the plane and blessed it, using the customary benediction for vehicles, there being no special form as yet for blessing airplanes. He did his best to sprinkle holy water on the motor and the fuselage. "The Bishop of Dakar, Mgr. Grimaud, was consecrated by me last year at Notre Dame," Cardinal Dubois said. "I should like to send a chamber of his predecessor for meditation and prayer, and to attend to the large correspondence from devoted admirers of the great-lamented Cardinal in various parts of the world. Cardinal Mercier's apartments at London, Berlin and Amsterdam have been converted into a museum and his belongings, also are visited by his many admirers, and his memory of religious creed.
