Islanders of Sanciian Dupes of Bolshevism
Sanciian Island, China, Oct. 1— Few Christian Communities in China have been more adversely affected by Red propaganda than the Catholics of Sanciian Island. Sanciian was the scene of Saint Francis Xavier's death, in 1552, when the great Apostle of the Orient was preparing to evangelize China. It is now a part of the Maryknoll Vicariate Apostolic of Kongmoon, Kwangtung Province, South China.
During the last few years the American missionaries on the Island have found the Catholics of Sanciian not so much hostile as totally indifferent to the Faith. No Christian marriage has been reported at Sanciian for more than two years, while Catholic burials are practically unheard of.
