Rectory Purchased After City Is Placed Under Interdiction

By M. Massiani, (Paris Correspondent, N. C. W. C. News Service).

Paris, Jan. 23.—Following a conflict between the religious and municipal authorities of Amboise, a city of 5,000 inhabitants in the Department of Indre-et-Loire, the Archbishop of Tours placed the city under interdiction.

Since the Law of Separation, the municipality has been proprietor of the ancient presbytery where the cure dean and the vicars continued to reside. This year, the mayor decided to increase the rental considerably. Archbishop Negre protested against the large increase and attempted to obtain more reasonable conditions for his priests. In the face of the disagreeable opposition of the municipal authorities, the Archbishop announced that the parishes would be placed under interdiction, worship would cease in all the churches and chapels, the cure and vicars would be withdrawn, and the religious of the hospital and the sisters working among the poor would abandon their posts. The burial service would be assured to the people and would be supplied by a priest from a neighboring parish.

The announcement caused the greatest excitement in the little city. Petitions were circulated, and doctors intervened to obtain permission to keep the help of the religious.

Finally, a committee of Catholics announced that it was ready to purchase the rectory if the municipality would sell it. Impressed by the concerted protestations against its attitude, the council decided to sell. Immediately, Archbishop Negre announced that his orders had been rescinded and the religious continued their duties and churches were opened for services.

Apologetical Group Of Pamphlets Found To Be Most Popular

New York, Feb. 1.—Pamphlets, according to the annual report of the Paulist Pfrs., are assuming a leading position in publicity activities throughout the country. The report, which announces that the organization published more than 1,500,000 pamphlets, and leaflets in 1928, called attention to the adoption of this means in the recent election campaign by political and religious bodies which desired to bring their activities before the public or to defend themselves against attacks.

In an effort to select the most popular kind of pamphlet, the Paulist Press divided its output into four groups—Apologetical, Moral, Devotional and Doctrinal. The ten best sellers in each group were chosen, to show the average sale of each type.

It was found that the Apologetical group, dealing with disputed questions, ranks first, with an average of 13,000 per pamphlet. The average in religious questions developed in the political campaign increased the ordinary demand in this group. "Can a Catholic Be President?" was the best seller, with a distribution of more than 40,000.

Priest Dies As Auto Plunges Into Lake On Drive Across Ice

Raquette Lake, N. Y., Jan. 28.—The body of the Rev. Henry Thamel, pastor of St. William's Church, was found yesterday under the ice in the lake a few feet from a hole through which his automobile plunged Saturday night. The discovery of the body was made after an all-night search. The car was found in 40 feet of water with the lights still burning.

An open door in the car indicated that Father Thamel, known to be a strong swimmer, had escaped from the car, but he was unable to find the opening in the ice.

Father Thamel was last seen Saturday afternoon when he left the village to return to the rectory, driving on the lake where the ice was fourteen inches thick in places. His niece sounded an alarm when he failed to appear at the rectory.

Boardaux Lends Aid To Working Mothers

By M. Massiani, (Paris Correspondent, N. C. W. C. News Service).

Paris, Jan. 28.—Citizens of Bordeaux interested in social action have taken the initiative in improving conditions for working married women. Most thought in connection with conditions affecting married women deals with the home but it is being recognized that circumstances often require them to seek employment elsewhere while engaged in raising a family.

This conference held at Bordeaux attempts to reconcile these two preoccupations. A Bureau du Mil Temps has been instituted which will try to do half-day commercial and industrial employment for married women. Thus they will have time to care for the needs of their families and homes.

MSGR. LADEUZE, LOUVAIN RECTOR, IS MADE BISHOP

By Rev. J. Van der Heyden, (Louvain Correspondent, N. C. W. C. News Service).

Louvain, Belgium, Feb. 3.—The feast of the Purification of the Blessed Virgin Mary, patronal feast of the University of Louvain, was made to coincide here this year with the consecration of its Rector, Msgr. Paulin Ladeuze, as Bishop of Tiberias, I. P. L.

The consecration ceremonies took place in St. Michael's church built by the Jesuits from 1650-1666 and turned over to the secular clergy after the society's suppression in 1773. The consecrating prelates were: His Eminence Cardinal Van Roey, Archbishop of Mechlin; the Rt. Rev. V. Rasneur, Bishop of Tournai, and the Rt. Rev. H. Coppieters, Bishop of Ghent. All three were Monsignors Ladeuze's pupils when he was still professor of hennepentics at the University; and two, Cardinal Van Roey and Bishop Coppieters, became later his colleagues at the Faculty of Theology and again his subordinates, when he was made Rector.

Among the gifts bestowed upon the newly consecrated Bishop there was one—a pectoral cross—coming from the American College, who venerate in Msgr. Ladeuze, not only the Rector of the University, but also the fatherly and holy priest who says Mass every day in their college chapel.

The Irish Franciscan Friars, who have taken possession again of their famed Louvain College, which they were forced to abandon at the time of the French Revolution, presented the episcopal ring; the professors of the University, the crozier, and the united students, another pectoral cross.

As Msgr. Ladeuze is the first Rector of Louvain University to be honored with the episcopal dignity, the elevation is looked upon here as a commendation by Rome of his noble attitude in the violent campaign conducted against him by the nationalist press, because of his opposition to the inscription which it was sought to place upon the balustrade of the American-bult library.

Youth Once Doomed To Death In Russian Prison Is Orained

London, Feb. 1.—A young Irishman who once lay under sentence of death in Moscow's criminal prison and served right through the world war was ordained Sunday at the Passionist Monastery, Ilkley, Yorkshire, by Bishop Cowgill of Leeds.

He is one of sixteen members of the Passionist Congregation raised to the priesthood at the ceremony.

Father Kenneth Monaghan joined the Royal Irish Regiment as a private at the beginning of the war. In 1917, while serving in France as an officer of the Rifle Brigade, he was taken prisoner.

After the armistice he volunteered for service with the White Army of North Russia and was appointed liaison officer to the 7th North Russian Rifles.

The regiment mutinied and most of the officers were murdered. Captain Monaghan escaped that fate, however, but was thrown into Moscow's criminal prison at the command of Trotsky and was sentenced to death. Ultimately he was repatriated.

(By N. C. W. C. News Service)

Peking, Jan. 21.—The Spanish Redemptorists who are laboring in the Vicariate Apostolic of Swanhwaifu under the direction of the Chinese bishop, the Rt. Rev. Peter Cheng D. D. are receiving reinforcements from Madrid in the persons of three Fathers and two Brothers. The work of the Spanish Redemptorists in Swanhwaifu is the training of aspirants for the new Congregation of Chinese priests to be known as the "Disciples of the Lord."

Of the pioneer band of three Spanish Redemptorists who reached China in 1927, the youngest member, Father Segundo Velasco, only 27 years old, died recently.

When the chapel of the new Seminary of the "Disciples of the Lord" in Swanhwaifu is completed, Archbishop Celsus Constantini, Apostolic Delegate to China, plans to have the body of the young Redemptorist buried under the sanctuary.

St. Ignatius Tutor, Saved By Students' Blood, Recovering

(By N. C. W. C. News Service)

San Francisco, Feb. 1.—Professor George D. Healy, Ph. D., for seven years head of the biology department of St. Ignatius' college, is expected to resume his duties within the next couple of months. He was stricken with blood-poison last October as a result of research in experimental work.

So serious was his condition that little hope was held out for his recovery at the time, and the quick response of the students to the call for blood transfusion played an important part in saving his life.

Women Opposed To 'Equal Rights' Amendment Plea

Speakers At Senatorial Hearing Attack Plan; Miss Linna Bresette Tells Attitude Of N. C. C. W.

Washington, Feb. 2.—Representatives of more than a dozen women's organizations appeared in opposition to the proposed constitutional Equal Rights Amendment, sponsored by the National Women's Party, at a public hearing held yesterday by a subcommittee of the Senate Judiciary Committee.

The proposed amendment is declared dangerous because it would "break down protective legislation for working women," said Miss Linna E. Bresette, of the Social Action Department of the National Catholic Welfare Conference. Miss Bresette spoke as a representative of the National Council of Catholic Women, of which organization's industrial committee she is secretary.

"Physical Differences Ignored."

"The National Council of Catholic Women," said Miss Bresette, "has persistently opposed this amendment. We believe that great danger lies in it. We do not confuse 'equal rights' with 'identical rights.' We must recognize there are certain differences between men and women in natural physical endowments and circumstances which they meet during life. Physical and biological differences between men and women cannot be ignored, although they are by the terms of this amendment, which defines both fact and science, failing to recognize that these differences cannot be changed by legislative enactment.

"We consider this amendment dangerous because we believe it would break down protective legislation for working women, which has been attained by long years of struggle and effort. Changing the laws which in reality deal with home life will serve further to complicate the difficulties which are met now in trying to protect the home and safeguard its interests.

"The very laws which appear to discriminate against women are in reality intended to protect the home and safeguard the children. By sweeping away all legislation for their protection we deprive the legislature of the power to protect and preserve the rights of mothers.

"We hold the amendment entirely unnecessary. That women have been discriminated against we are ready to acknowledge, but we are not ready to admit that by doing away with all laws for their protection we shall have improved their status. We believe the protection of the health of the woman worker is vital to the welfare of society as a whole and to its continued existence.

"The equal rights amendment will operate, in our opinion, against the welfare of society as a whole."

Other speakers who appeared before the subcommittee in opposition to the amendment were: Miss Rose Schneiderman, President, National Woman's Trade Union League; Miss Betty Hilgert, Wilkes-Barre, Pa., representing the Young Women's Christian Association; Miss Dorothy Kenyon, New York City, lawyer; Miss Gertrude McNally, secretary, Women's Union of Bureau of Printing and Engraving; Miss Margaret Maule, Philadelphia, Girls' Friendly Society; Mrs. Clarence Frain, Wilmington, Del., General Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Florence Kelley, New York City, National Consumer's League; Miss Alice Adams, American Home Economics Association; Miss Selma Borchardt, American Federation of Teachers; Dr. Louise Taylor Jones, Medical Women's National Association; Mrs. Lester J. Pollock, National Council of Jewish Women; Miss Ethel M. Smith, National Women's Trade Union League; and Mrs. E. E. Danley, National Board of Y. W. C. A.

Among other opponents of the amendment who were not present but whose statements were recorded with the Committee were: Mrs. Frances E. Slattery, president of the League of Catholic Women, Boston; William Green, President of the American Federation of Labor, and Secretary of Labor, James J. Davis.

Mrs. Maud Wood Park, of Portland, Maine, former president of the National League of Women Voters, introduced a majority of the speakers.

Senator C. W. Waterman presided at the hearing.

French Catholic Group Studying Forced Labor Conditions in Colonies

Representatives of Missionary Congregations To Be Asked To Supply Information To Aid In Improving Native Service System

Paris, Feb. 2.—A meeting of representatives of missionary congregations to aid in the compilation of data regarding forced labor conditions in the colonies of various nations is being sponsored by the French group of the Union Catholique d'Etudes Internationales. The meeting, it was announced, would be held to insure that Catholic missionaries, who are best fitted to know how enforced labor among natives is administered, would give the governments the benefit of their observations and suggestions.

The International Labor Bureau proposes to examine at its conference, opening May 30, returns from a questionnaire on the subject, which has been submitted to the various governments. The results of this study are to be made the basis of an international convention, which it is proposed to have drawn up at the International Labor Conference in 1930.

The French group of the Union Catholique d'Etudes Internationales has just held a meeting at Paris specially to consider a questionnaire to be submitted to the missionaries. Jurists, publicists, parliamentarians and sociologists met with representatives of the principal missionary societies, which include the Fathers of the Holy Ghost, the White Fathers, the African Missionaries of Lyons, the Society of Jesus and the French director of the Propagation of the Faith, attended.

M. Joseph Danel, professor of law at the University of Lille who has given great study to these questions, was appointed to prepare a detailed report. This will include a definition of forced labor, which is that performed by natives in certain colonies in consequence of a requirement, by the local authorities, for service in works of public concern. The recruiting of workers is occasionally carried out without regulation by the agents of native chiefs who oftentimes press into service the same individual.

Workers are often sent to great distances. Their absence is protracted and brings about disorganization of their family life. Conditions of pay, hygiene, rest, lodging and food often are very badly defined, if considered at all. No provision is made any longer for medical examination of the worker as to his fitness for labor, for care of him in case of accident, for return to his home in case of sickness, or for indemnity for the family in case of death of the worker.

A number of international associations, including the International Council of Women and International Union of Women for Peace and Liberty, have already sent petitions to the League of Nations seeking regulation of forced labor. The questionnaire of the International Labor Bureau is silent on certain points which are of legitimate interest to missionaries, such as weekly rest from labor or facilities for the free practice of religious duties.

The missionaries present at the meeting in Paris gave information which confirmed the picture of forced labor drawn by M. Danel and showed the serious moral and social consequences resulting from the absence of regulations or lack of application of them where they do exist. They have particularly thrown light on the part played by the chief native recruiters, who very often act arbitrarily in the requisitioning of workers.

On the proposal of M. Danel it was decided to erect a commission for the study of forced labor. It will comprise, besides M. Danel, M. Boissard, president of the French group of the International Association for the Protection of Workers; M. Tessier, general secretary of the Confederation of Christian Workers; Msgr. Beupin, secretary of the Union Catholique d'Etudes Internationales, and several representatives of the missions.

Catholic Student Wins Heroism Prize

Mobile, Ala. Feb. 2.—Another Catholic school boy has just been awarded the Carnegie Hero medal and a cash award of $500. Patrik H. Rice, Jr., of Augusta, former Spring Hill College student is the hero, and the award is for an act of exceptional heroism performed in the college lake when he went to the rescue of a classmate at the risk of his own life, on May 28, 1926.

It is traditional at Spring Hill that no man should graduate without first swimming the lake which adjoins the campus. Lester Stecker while swimming across was overcome by weakness and sank while in the center of the lake. Rice went to his rescue. Rice dived and found Stecker's head and shoulders imbedded in the mud. After several attempts he succeeded in getting him to the surface and at length to the shore.
