Died in New York City
New York, May 9.—Mrs. Irene Hewitt, Conway wife of Albert Conway, state superintendent of insurance, died Sunday. She was 40 years old. Mrs. Conway was known throughout the state for her work in educational and welfare societies. Mrs. Conway was greatly interested in Catholic institutions in and around New York. She was a lovable and gracious lady, and her death will be sincerely mourned. It will be recalled that she came to Rochester last Fall, during the political campaign, with her husband and that she made many friends here on that occasion.

Federal Education

tions of equal rank. This kept the hand of centralized government largely off the school teacher and the school room.
Scores Standardization
"Of course, there have been marked inadequacies in districts without a proper sense of self-government, without natural organizing power, and without financial strength. Some of those who have looked over our educational system have noticed only these dark spots and have thought that a national mechanism should be devised that would be nationwide in scope and would bring these weaker or dark spots at least up to the average level of the country. Correction of abuses is a poor method of developing proper administration. It seems to me that there is a distinct menace in the centralization in the national government of any large educational scheme with extensive financial resources, available. Abnormal power to mould and standardize and crystallize education which would go with the dollars, would be more damaging to local government, local aspiration and self-respect, and to State government and State self-respect, than any assistance that might come from the funds."
"We can not rise higher than our source. That source in government with us is local. The family and local community must be the places where citizenship is built and where the fiber of the nation is strengthened and its forces recruited. Too much help from afar is harmful to the initiative and self-reliance requisite for character in a community."
"The place of the national government is not that of supplying funds in large amounts for carrying on the administrative functions of education in the communities, but to develop methods, ideals and procedures, and to present them, to be taken on their merits. The national government, too, can give widespread information on procedures, can report on what is actually going on in different parts of the country and in the world, and can unify to some extent the objects of those in the field of education insofar as unification is desirable. There is a distinct place for this sort of thing in the administrative side of the national government, but it should not be recognized as an administrative position with large funds at its disposal."

The funeral was held Monday, May 6, at 9 o'clock at the Church of the Nativity, Brockport. Interment in Mt. Olivet Cemetery.

Count Pulaski
Will Be Honored
By Utica Poles
Thirty-Thousand Monument Will Be Erected in Memory of Heroic Revolutionary War Hero
When the American Colonies declared their independence, braved the wrath and the bayonets of the British Empire in 1776, and placed their trust in the leadership of George Washington, they found themselves facing a tremendous task. Brave as they were, the patriots soon learned that untrained soldiers had a terrible up-hill fight to beat the trained soldiers of England. Washington and his associate Generals were discouraged many a time by the conditions that faced them. Then came unselfish volunteer leaders from Europe—Baron de Kalb, Baron von Steuben, Marquis de Lafayette, Count Casimir Pulaski and others, expert drill-masters who soon helped Washington whip the patriot army into shape.
Count Casimir Pulaski organized the first cavalry of the American army, and soon had heroic horsemen who were able to meet and harass the British Tarenton in the South, and to hold their own with the best-trained regiments of the enemy.
One-hundred and fifty years ago in October Count Pulaski was killed at the battle of Savannah, Ga. Soon the Nation is to honor his memory. The Polish American World War Veterans will hold a mammoth celebration in his honor in Savannah, October 9-11. The Utica, N. Y. Poles, in common with that celebration, will erect an unwell a $30,000 monument to Count Pulaski, and Polish people all over the country will unite in paying generous tribute to this heroic patriot. President Hoover has accepted the honorary chairmanship of the national committee in charge of the celebration.
It is well to remember that Count Pulaski was a loyal and devoted Catholic, and that he came to America to fight and die because he loved liberty, justice and equality.

Cardinal Hayes
Dedicates Church
In New York City
Cardinal Hayes dedicated Sunday morning the new Church of Our Lady Queen of Martyrs, which is being erected on the north side of Arden Street, just east of Broadway. The basement has been completed and all services will be held there until the parish has grown sufficiently to warrant the completion of what will be an English Gothic Church. The basement seats 1,000 and the upstairs church when erected will seat about 1,400.
After the mass Cardinal Hayes addressed the congregation. He expressed his surprise in finding "so beautiful a basement." But we must remember," he added, "that a church is something more than architecture; it is the place where the people come and see in close relationship with Almighty God."

Department Not Required
"A Department of Education similar to the other departments of the Government, is not required. An adequate position for education within a department and with sufficient financial support for its research, survey and other work, is all that is needed."
"Great gains are possible in our whole educational scheme through national leadership provided in this way. Education is preparation for the future and there must be constant change to keep in step with the advances made. Our conceptions regarding the mental make-up of children are shifting and the requirements of life are changing with a civilization which is being revamped by the practical applications of science and invention. The object of those of us who seek the greatest possible advantages for all
