A tough, durable finish for floors
Kitchens, bathroom and hallway doors need an enamel finish that is extra tough and wear-resisting. For these floors we recommend LOWE BROTHERS FLOOR ENAMEL. It is a finish that is easy to clean and one that will last. It has unusual spreading capacity and is very economical. It dries hard and smooth overnight. Also makes an excellent finish for kitchen walls and woodwork. Many colors from which to choose.

Printed Material Makes Chic Frocks

Dress for Almost Any Purpose or Occasion During Summer.

The dress illustrated has little trouble in finding its rightful place in one's wardrobe, says Jane Warren Wells, in Farm and Fireside. Use a printed, sturdy material, either linen or imitation linen, with a plain, harmonizing color for the trimming line and the belt. The vest and collar may be made of organdie, lawn or lightweight linen in white, or one of the colors in the print. If the ground of the print is tan, a cream color vest and collar would be best. The dress, however, need not be of printed fabric. A plain color, if that is preferred, can be just as attractive and becoming.

Although the season calls for contrasting colors in trimming, remember that trimmings used in large amounts, such as the vest and collar in this dress, should be lighter in color tone than the dress itself. Summer dresses need frequent cleaning, so choose and place your trimmings so that they will wash and look as nice afterward as before.

This tailored dress, with its youthful air, has features that make it excellent for the more mature figure. For instance, there are the collar, vest and surplus lines all so fluttering to extra pounds. The sleeves may be long if desired, and inverted plait can easily be added at the side seams if extra skirt fullness is desired. This dress can be worn for almost every purpose and on almost any occasion that the summer may bring. It is just the thing for summer evenings and summer afternoons, and even on a trip to town. The silhouette is correct and the fabric itself can make it formal or informal.

One of the important things about this season's sheer dresses is to put flare in the skirts. Fashion is predicting that skirts will be fuller as the season advances. Those of us who wear our dresses two seasons can exercise a bit of foresight in this and thus insure fashion's approval for a second summer.

Wash Frocks and Suits in Variegated Colors

Although it requires frequent pressing, linen promises to be very popular this summer, says a Paris fashion writer in the New York Herald Tribune. Molyneux shows most attractive suits of this fabric in exquisite shades such as rose, coral, apricot, pink, sage or butter blue. These usually consist of a dress with a plaited skirt under a rather long jumper top. Stitched straps are used to trim the necklines which may be either pointed or square. The same form of trimming appears at the bottom of the sleeves and on the pockets.

With this a hip-length sac coat is worn. It is edged with a stitched band to match the frock and its neck line is finished with a straight or shawl collar. A charming suit of this sort in rose colored linen has an applique trimming around the jacket and at the bottom of the square-necked jumper which is worn over a flat-plaited skirt. Floral figured linen is much-used for cardigan coats this season. Another of Molyneux's most charming linen ensembles consists of a sage blue frock and a jacket of white linen printed in the floral design always associated with the name of Madame Pompadour. The colors used for the flowers are pink, blue, green and amber, the background being white. Heavy silk-finished linen printed in these lovely Pompadour patterns and in beautiful colors are used for the smartest of frocks. One, with an exquisite background, which carries a subtle floral design, is made of a plain, straight top and a skirt consisting of three deep ruffles, all well-tailored.

Dainty Flower-Patched Frock for Little Girls

Patches of organdie applied to the underside of voile make colorful a frock for girls eight, ten and twelve, says the Woman's Home Companion. Placed on the wrong side of collar, cuffs and skirt before the hem is turned, the organdie will not ravel even in frequent washings. The sketch shows a strip of the finished work under flesh-colored voile. The first frock is rose-colored organdie, the next yellow, the third light blue. Light green leaves come in between. Flowers, leaves and vine are outlined with simple running stitches. The design repeats around the skirt and the work goes quickly. There is a lot of color to show for an hour's handwork. The dress illustrated is one of the new styles with straight upper part and low waistline.

On Rearing Children from CRIB to COLLEGE

Parents should face the fact that a large percentage of pupils today attending American high schools are not by nature suited to the work of colleges. This unsuitability may be based on various kinds of ineptitude, such as ill health, or nervous instability; but the kind of ineptitude which stands out most clearly in studies of college students is based on incapacity for abstract thinking. The good liberal arts college is so organized as to require a superior order of ability to work with symbolic relations.

Remember that the child's interest and curiosity in sex is natural, normal and health; that it is only by making such queries that the child can eventually understand his world. He has to make these queries about many things—sex is only one—and if you have considered a child's questions, or kept track of them over any considerable period of time, you have found that only a small group of them have to do with sex.

Daily sun baths are excellent tonics for children but they should be given with discrimination. The Spartans put their children out in the sun and air to harden them for a strenuous life. We use sunlight on the unprotected skin as a preventive of anemia and rickets; to increase resistance against disease; to make better muscle tone; and to give the added stimulus, which, as the appetite grows and the right foods are given for a child to choose from, will combat malnutrition.

Summer School Great Success At Cliff Haven

Cliff Haven, N. Y., July 25.—Over 1000 guests have been registered at Cliff Haven since the season opened. On Monday of this week there were on the grounds over 600 guests, a record enrollment for the fourth week of any season. Activities keep the guests occupied in all phases of the life here—recreational, educational and religious. The weather conditions have been ideal and the "family spirit" is evident in each and every activity. Veterans among the guests find the newcomers' interest in the latter are delighted with the story of Cliff Haven as they hear it from those who have been here for years.

This week marks the conclusion of the Fordham University-Catholic Summer School extension courses. Examinations were held on Thursday and Friday, and on Saturday, the registrar, Miss Adrienne M. McInaud, will have the grades for every individual taking courses. The work has been a pronounced success and the venture started last season is now a unit in the work of Cliff Haven. Deane O'Malley of Fordham, predicted, during the course of his recent visit, that within a few years the enrollment would reach the five hundred mark, and that the Summer extension courses will lead all Summer school activities in this country.
