A Tough, Durable Finish for Floors
Kitchens, bathroom, and hallway floors need an enamel finish that is extra tough and wear-resisting.
For these floors we recommend LOWE BROTHERS FLOOR ENAMEL. It is a finish that is easy to clean and one that will last. It has unusual spreading capacity and is very economical. It dries hard and smooth overnight. Also makes an excellent finish for kitchen walls and woodwork. Many colors from which to choose.

Shopping or Knitting Bag Made of Flour Bag

What woman does not warm up to a smart new shopping or knitting bag? Here is a new style that has many features to recommend it. The expanding bottom, for instance, makes it extremely commodious and yet does not detract from its smart, tailored appearance. There are no clumsy drawstrings nor handles, just a single strap, fastening at the bottom with a snap fastener. An outside pocket is provided for small change and handkerchiefs.

Best of all, this bag can be made for virtually nothing by the woman who has learned to use the empty four bags which she has in the home or can get for a few cents from her baker.

Half a flour bag, a piece of sateen or other lining material, 23 by 14 inches, two yards of bias tape, and a small piece of contrasting material for the pocket and strap are the only materials required.
The shopping bag is removed either by cutting the flour bag in two or by sewing for a few hours and then washing in warm water, or by using javelle water. The material can be used effectively in its natural color, having contrasting material for the pocket strap and binding, or it may be dyed some dark color, since it takes an excellent dye.
The pattern is easily cut by following the dimensions and outline given in the illustration. First blind and stitch the pocket on the outside. Then sew up the sides. Next, lay the edges marked "A" parallel to that marked "B" and stitch. This forms the expanding fold at the bottom. Make the lining separate from the outside and then put the two together, binding the top with the bias tape.
Lined with a piece of gum rubber instead of cloth, this bag affords an excellent means of carrying a bathing suit to and from the beaches in the summer.

Sweaters for Brides Come in Solid Colors

Sweaters that will serve for trousseaus come in solid colors, violet, blue, light green, yellow, scarlet, to fit the scheme of the ensemble, some with geometric patterns, often artistically designed. The pull-on of jersey or knitted yarn or wool or silk is a popular model to wear with a skirt of tweed, jersey or crepe de chine.
Much white is worn this summer, and a chic sports ensemble includes a skirt, plighted or circular, with a sweater in color or white with decorative pattern or colored stripes, and a short white blazer. Some attractive models are shown in white with a color between the plaits. In the more formal sports ensembles the skirt is plaited.
Printed crepes, chiffons, voiles and nylon frocks in pretty, inexpensive models for daytime and evening offer suggestions for the bride's summer wardrobe. Charming dance dresses are made of net, lace, point d'esprit, tulle, stiffened chiffon and mousseline de soie. The best designers have set the style in these materials and the models may be copied with variations.
Suits of silk or crepe are the fancy in the establishment of Patou where several models are made of dotted silk, the polka dot design, especially of the small size, being very fashionable this year. Patou designs a one-piece frock and coat all of navy blue and white polka dot silk with a collar and jabot of white crepe and a white mousseline flower to be worn on the coat lapel.
The negligees, dear to the heart of a bride, use every sort of soft, sheer material, with much lace and marabout and ostrich. One graceful little ensemble worth copying in different colors is made with a slip of shell-pink crepe satin, and the loose wrap-around gown of chiffon in the same shade, with ears lace on the sleeves, which are wide, and a scarf arrangement at the neck.

VISIONS IRISH IN NATIONAL USE IN 1979

Dublin, Aug. 9.—"It is a grand thing to think," said Bishop Dignan of Clonfert, at the opening of a Fets organized by the Gaelic League at Ballinaloe, "that forty or fifty years hence, if the present system of education continues, the language of the Church, the courts, of home and family life will be Irish."
"I agree," he said, "with the opinion expressed by the Most Rev. Dr. MacLoughlin that the good work of the Gaelic League cannot be overestimated."

Spectator Frocks in Dainty Modes

Pique and Tucked Dimity Among Favorites of the Season.

This is the season, beneficent to the feminine type of girl, when her more sturdily contemporaries go tramping about all day in the hot sun and enable her to shine with a contrasting crispness, observes a fashion writer in the New York World.
Her wardrobe, since it need not be as starkly practical as that of athletic chambrays who need freedom for the follow-through, may include possible colors and fabrics for that great group of garments designed for spectator sports.
It is true that many of the headliners of this season's mode are denied the active participant in sports and are acceptable only to those dainty dames who sit in the shade of the club lawn and devote their energies to looking cool.
The tucked blouse, for instance, which is shown with so many of the sports ensembles, is apt to be pulled out of its moorings by a particularly violent swing of the clubs, and the little jacket would be a dreadful nuisance.
Since every sensible girl who engages in violent sports is wearing a one-piece tennis dress, probably buckless, and certainly without sleeves, the woman who never serves but only stands and waits will do well to avoid this particular fashion unless it is distinctive and accompanied by a concealing jacket. One of the very newest ideas is shown in a black tennis dress of heavy uncrushable linen which is worn with a black and white printed coat of the same fabric, and in another a suit of black pique with large editions of coin dots scattered over its surface.
Cottons Are Popular.
This very chic costume would look unendurably hot in the sun but forms a pleasing background for trays of cold lemonade.
The tucked-in blouse of dimity, batiste or hankiechief linen appears at its best when tucked inside a skirt of pique or heavy linen printed in some coin dot or modernistic design.
One smart combination appears in a suit for the country club which tucks its outside blouse inside a white pique skirt worn with a pique jacket printed in green, red and yellow in an Indian design which comes here by way of England.
A distinctive feature of the blouse is the fact that it replaces sleeveless blouses with the short sleeve that extends half way to the elbow and avoids that appearance of gratuitous modesty which the sleeveless dress so often presents.
Another representative cotton suit uses patterned pique for the jacket and plaited skirt, hankiechief linen for a frivolous little outside blouse which shows no pinning, a jabot and a lace edged collar that is worn outside the jacket.
A new and very recherche note for those who admire this type of costume is the cotton jewelry which is being sold by a few of the more enterprising shops. It consists of very small cotton beads with flecks of color, which are strung together, several strands in a bunch and held tight to the neck by large wooden beads. Could ensemble consciousness go farther?
If you insist on wearing silk in hot weather, you will find the shops prepared to cater to your whims and to throw in the possibility of washing besides. Shantung and pongee, whose ability to withstand the perils of the laundry is well established, are being used for a number of colorful spectator costumes which have that air of fragility dear to the heart of the woman who prides herself on wearing a small shoe.

You will find that one boasts of its shantung, another does of its cottons. At one shop was encountered a very sophisticated costume of green shantung in the form of a sleeveless two-piece dress with knife plaited skirt and blouse appliqued with narrow stripes of lavender and water-blue. The unlined matching coat was em-
