For months and months we have experienced a terrible drought, so that at times even the swamps, which we mainly depend for water, have been dried up, and we have known what it means to be in want of water.

You know that all those who have helped us have always shared in our daily prayers and sacrifices, and I assure you of a continuance in the same.

Finally, may we take this occasion also to express publicly to the professors of the two Faculties of St. Andrew's and St. Bernard's, in behalf of our priests and people, as also in our own behalf, a deep appreciation for their devoted services in the cause of the Church and Religion by giving such unselfish service to the student bodies of our two seminaries?
