The mission party, which sailed from San Francisco last week, consists of a Franciscan priest, two Sisters, and six Sisters of Notre Dame de Namur.
 Father Martin believes the relief will be a valuable contribution to the relief work, particularly for the young women who are studying for the priesthood. It will pick up provisions, blankets, and other things.

suburbs of Paris. He went in person to dedicate these chapels and has baptized as many as fifty children in one suburb. "To oppose Communism," he said on one occasion, "is an act of legitimate defense since it places itself against society. What is needed most of all is to awaken souls and to show them an ideal that is above earthly aspirations. That is the best and most efficacious remedy." He was also an ardent advocate of international peace and strove to promote friendly relations between France and Germany, particularly.

Loved His Native Land
 In 1925 Cardinal Dubois appealed to all Catholics, as a patriotic duty, to subscribe to the French loan for the consolidation of the floating debt, even though the Church was not at that time in accord with the French Government.

Cardinal Dubois was born at St. Calais in the Department of Sarthe on Sept. 1, 1856, and ordained to the priesthood in September, 1879. He became Bishop of Verdun in 1901, Archbishop of Bourges in 1909, of Rouen in 1916 and of Paris in 1920. He was created a Cardinal on Dec. 4, 1916.

Blessing of the Graves An Impressive Ceremony Attended by 20,000 People

There were large Christian colonies established through the spreading of the faith.
 "Thus once a cemetery is consecrated, Christian burial is known as the interment of a deceased person with ecclesiastical rights in such consecrated ground. In the light of the dogma of the Resurrection, the very consecration of the earth, which is necessary to understand how the interment of the mortal remains of the Christian dead has always been regarded as an act of religious import, and has been surrounded by certain religious ceremonies.

Beautifully the Cemetery
 Bishop O'Hern told of the great work that had been done in beautifying Holy Sepulchre Cemetery. Then he said:
 "The work of expansion and beautifying must continue to provide facilities for burial of thousands of our Christians in the years to come. Within the past few weeks several new sections have been laid out and have been blessed, and at no distant date new entrances will be provided on the Dewey Avenue section, as also on the Lake Avenue section opposite Riverside.

New Roads Will Be Built
 "The cemetery proper consists of three hundred acres of land, and is incorporated under a board of trustees who operate it. New roads will gradually be developed and others will be improved as the demands require. The public is expected to find up to the rules and regulations which have been wisely laid governing the cemetery, among which are found the special privileges which are now being enjoyed every day in visiting the graves and lots of their loved ones. Within the next summer a large and necessary expense has been incurred on Holy Sepulchre by reason of the street improvements on Lake Avenue, and also the immediate approach to the cemetery on other streets.

Begins Coaching Aquinas Team In Basketball

Mort. Leary, Popular Athlete, Enters Upon New Season's Work—Only One Veteran Left on Team

(By John Larmer)
 Aquinas Institute will embark upon another basketball cruise next week when Mortimer Leary, popular Maroon mentor, resumes his position at the athletic helm of the local Catholic High School. The little Irish coach is faced by a momentous task this year, for only one veteran will be on hand for the initial workout. Graduation and transfers deprived him of several stars.

Dan Dowling, scoring ace of last year's quint, and now a junior at the school, is the lone veteran. The burden of this season's offensive will probably fall upon him. Bernard Hyman, a much-used substitute, will also put in appearance, and it is likely that he will win a regular position. In addition to these, several of last season's Reserves will be on hand. Connolly, Burgess and Mala borski were luminaries for the squad last year, but lack of physique will hinder them in their fight for places. Leary is holding daily conditioning drills in the rear of the school. Each night after school he puts the squad through a series of exercises and running workouts, with a view to having them in mid-season condition for the practices. This is an innovation to pre-season schedules, but it is hoped to produce highly beneficial results. A number of transfer students from out of town schools are among the nightly groups. They, no doubt, will beat out many local athletes for positions on the team.

A new gymnasium schedule has been introduced into the school. It is quite similar to those in effect in many colleges. It makes physical training classes compulsory for only Freshmen and Sophomores. The upper classes are expected to select the sport in which they are most proficient and then participate in the inter-class League contests.
 Many people in with the Aquinas student body in looking forward to a very successful season, and pledge their co-operation to bring about such a result.

Night Grid Games Plan Of Several Catholic Schools

Washington, Sept. 27.—Night football games are included in the schedules of the teams of Holy Spirit University of St. Vincent, St. Victor College, of Bourbonnais, Ill., the University of Detroit, and the University of Dayton, according to announcements just made. Elaborate lighting systems are being installed by the schools in preparation for their contests.
 Other universities throughout the country are expected to announce plans for night games in the near future. The lighting systems on the fields, which cost about $5,000 to install, consist of several high powered floodlights, set so that the beams intersect and eliminate glare. The light achieved, it is said, is equivalent to bright afternoon sun.

Bishop Walsh Buys Teaching Sisters Novitiate House

Rome, Sept. 27.—Announcement is made here of the purchase by Msgr. Thomas Joseph Walsh, Bishop of Newark, of a large villa in the vicinity of Monte Mario, to be used as a motherhouse for the novitiate of the Maestra Pie Mippini, congregation of Sisters with houses in the United States. The villa, located in one of the most beautiful sections of Italy, overlooks Rome and commands a view of the Vatican grounds.
 Msgr. Walsh, acting on the behalf of American friends, negotiated for the acquisition of the property, which will be improved by the Order as a permanent retreat for the novitiate. Heretofore the ancient motherhouse of the Order, located in the heart of Rome, has been used for the novitiate, but it has long been known that the quarters, in addition to physical inadequacy, were not suitable because of their location in the city.
 Expression of gratitude for Msgr. Walsh's action has been made by numerous persons in Roman circles, beginning with Pope Pius, who expressed his thanks through the Secretary of State, Archbishop Charles Ceroncesi. The latter spoke on behalf of the Pontiff when the property was conferred to Sister Rosa Leoni, Mother General of the Order, recently. At the ceremony Cardinal Gasparri, Secretary of State for the Vatican, also spoke informally, after an unexpected arrival with his nephew, Msgr. Filippo Bernardini, professor at the Catholic University, Washington, D.C.

Lightning Kills The Bell Ringer In Church Tower

Paris, Sept. 27.—An unusually tragic event occurred recently in the parish of Val d'Isere near Rennes. A fire breaking out in the center of the village, towards noon, threatened to destroy a number of houses. Several men rushed into the church tower to appeal for help by ringing the tocsin. Just then several flashes of lightning lit up the sky. The church bell was ringing lustily when one heavy clap of thunder, the only one of the day, seemed to have dawned out the sound of the bell. Unfortunately the lightning had struck the tower. One of the bell ringers was killed instantly and two others were injured. Some of the stones were hurled about 200 feet away.
 The tower was completed only four years ago.
