P. C. Coleman Has Fine Paint Store On Arnett Blvd.
Now is the time to do Fall painting. An important thing in buying paint is to deal with a responsible dealer, one who sells dependable goods, and who is as much concerned as you are that you get a good job out of his goods. Such a dealer is P. C. Coleman, 336 Arnett Blvd., who also carries a fine line of the latest patterns of wall papers, and all kinds of painters' and wall paper supplies, window glass, etc.
Mr. Coleman says the Fall is an ideal time to paint. The weather is usually good. There is no army of small flies to bother, and things are not nearly so dusty as in the Summer or Spring. Then, too, Mr. Coleman says, the wood pores are dried out after the Summer, so the paint penetrates deeply into them. Fall painting doesn't interfere with shrubbery or awnings, and painters are less rushed in the Fall. Winter weather is especially damaging to houses that need painting. Mr. Coleman says, and therefore it is good business to take advantage of this fine Fall weather and paint your house so it will look spick and span and wear well during the Winter.
Mr. Coleman will be glad to suggest colors, give estimates on painting and decorating, and help in every other way. A telephone call to Genesee 4038 will bring him into your home any time.
