WHY You Should Take Father John's Medicine
Because it is the greatest body builder, makes tissue, strength and flesh. It is richest in vitamins.

The Apostolic Delegate to the United States
His Excellency, The Most Rev. P. Fumasoni-Biondi, D.D., recently said of Church Extension: "I cheerfully endorse the holy project and invoke the blessing of God upon all who promote its success."

THEN YOU SHOULD
If you have a donation to make;
If you want to support a student;
If you want to build a Memorial Chapel;
If you want to take out an Annuity;
If you want to remember the Home Missions in your Will;

DOES CHRIST WANT ME?
Our Dear Lord calls all men to lives of perfection. It is true that a special vocation from Christ is necessary for the priesthood or religious life.

And what would happen to all the generous and all the brave boys and girls who answered the Saviour's call? And wouldn't Christ be happy? How He loves brave and generous souls! He might not accept all the volunteers. He might want some to serve Him in another way.

The Pursuit of Happiness

I wonder if my young friends have ever seen that painting of "The Bookworm", where the poor old fellow is depicted reading three books at one time, with two large volumes tucked away under his arm and three more held tightly between his knees?

Down the Old Indian Trails

Little "Red" had taken his fishing pole and wandered off alone down through the old Indian trails between the ark hills that stretch across the Allegany State Park.

Into A Long Tunnel
After many hours of wandering the two bred a long tunnel at the end of which was a rather rickety stairs of many steps. The Hindu extended his hand to Willie to help him ascend. Willie grasped it fearfully, and they went up and up.

opened and another Hindu, in a different suit, appeared. He was evidently the servant of the first Hindu. The master clapped his hands three times, and the servant backed out and returned promptly with a great tray filled with fresh fruit.

In a Circus Side-show
After an hour's ride the car stopped. The driver, whom Willie saw for the first time, opened the door and Willie found that he was behind the scenes in the side-show tent of a circus. He could not see the crowd, but he knew the tent was filled, for he could hear the merry voices of expectant children and the laughs of grown-ups waiting for the show to start.

Lied a Man in a sack
Then came the second part of the entertainment. Producing a "sack", which was capable of holding a man, he showed it to the audience. Then he stepped on the platform, bent his knees and the sack came down. He was dressed as an American in shirt and trousers and walked a few steps.

A Thrilling Episode
Then he conjured flow into a towering haze. Jamming the cork down over the head of the unhelpful assistant, he fastened it with a large screw and withdrew in an effort to escape. This seemed to terrify the wizard the more and he paced up and down the platform actually foaming from the mouth.

MEISCH-JONES
Miss Gertrude Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Gardner of Farquar Street, and Bernard R. Meisch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank McCarthy of Hawley Street, were married in St. Augustine's Church, October 26, at 9 a. m. Mrs. W. W. Skinner was matron of honor.

Mrs. Violet Gardner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Gardner of Farquar Street, and Bernard R. Meisch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank McCarthy of Hawley Street, were married in St. Augustine's Church, October 26, at 9 a. m. Mrs. W. W. Skinner was matron of honor.

until at last they died away. The poor assistant's life had evidently been sacrificed to the momentary glory of his chief. The audience began to wake up to the seriousness of the occasion. Murder had been committed before their very eyes. Two large pocketknives rushed down the aisle, and with drawn revolvers leaned to the stage. The magician quickly opened the basket and stood it on end. It was empty. As the lady officers turned, in a grin, to leave the stage, the assistant came down through the audience, in his long flowing robes bowing and smiling at everyone. He was absolutely unharmed. The cheering of the crowd was suddenly silenced when the wizard seized Willie Reilly and hurled him into the open basket, firmly fastening the hamp. Willie was too frightened to scream. The two Hindus danced about, making weird noises, and then, as in the former case, the wizard seized the blood-stained sword and plunged it through the basket. But Willie didn't feel it, for just at that moment a fish nibbled at the end of his line and Willie bumped his head against the oak tree and woke up.

(Concluded Next Week)
The last chapter of this story which appears in next week's issue will relate the experiences of some of the smaller children of St. Joseph's school.

New Law Forbids Child Marriages Throughout India

Bombay, India, Nov. 7.—A new law has been passed which forbids child marriages of Hindu girls under the age of 16 years throughout India. The law has been adopted by the British Government and is now in force. The law forbids the marriage of a girl under the age of 16 years, and the penalty for violation is imprisonment for up to three years. The law also provides for the punishment of those who assist in such marriages.

The presence of these laws will result in a revolution in India. The actual enforcement of the law will cost an enormous effort. The Fides Correspondent at Vizagapatam states: "The opinion in Vizagapatam is that the law will never come into force because Indians will continue to act as before (secretly of course), and no police will be able to detect them. Mistakes will be made, as the evils of young marriages are sometimes felt among Catholics themselves."

Card Bourne Opens A Hostel to Train Women Emigrants

London, Nov. 8.—A Catholic hostel for training women emigrants for domestic work in Canada was opened here by Cardinal Bourne last week. It will be run by the Ladies of Charity, and the building has been lent by Dominican nuns, who will also train the girls and women. Women will be recruited by the Catholic Women's League. They must be between the ages of 18 and 35 and will receive free of charge a course of training lasting from eight to ten weeks.

St. Mary's Hostel for Women Emigrants has been recognized by the government, which is contributing 75 per cent towards its expenses. Lack of Catholic interest in this matter in the past has been due to the divided opinion among Catholics as to the advisability of encouraging emigration. Many people argue that the people with the spirit to start life again in a new land are the very people who should be kept in this country. Cardinal Bourne faced this position when he opened St. Mary's Hostel. "We are now facing facts and not theories," he said. "We are not now entering upon a discussion as to whether or not it is desirable that Catholics should migrate. We have got to face the fact that they do migrate."
