

Sports Tid-Bits

Notre Dame fared well in the All-American selections by various newspapers, syndicates and boards.

St. Mary's of Oakland, California, was the second Catholic team among the undefeated eleven of the nation.

Iowa University was refused reinstatement to the Big Ten conference by the Faculty Committee which claimed that the university has not yet remedied all the evils of athletic professionalism which caused such a furor before the football season.

Rochester sport fans, together with those of this city and the sports writers of the nation were happy to witness the re-entrance of George Toporcer and Billy Southworth at the National Convention of Professional Football Club at Chattanooga Wednesday.

Walter Hagen, Rochester humbled golfer, failed in an attempt to win the National Professional Golfers' cup, which he was ultimately denied from the tournament at Los Angeles by Leo Delg, defending title-holder, in the semi-final.

Leo Sullivan, former Aquinas star, captured St. Bonaventure's opening contest when he scored 11 points and led his team to a 50-22 win over Thack School of Physical Education.

University of Pittsburgh, second ranking team of the nation, has been selected to compete in the annual tournament of roses game at the Rose Bowl Stadium in Pasadena on New Year's Day.

Aquinas Outclasses St. Andrew's Quint In Basketball

Don Dowling, only veteran on the current Maroon basketball five, returned to his mates from ineligibility last week and led his comrades to a 24-17 win over St. Andrew's Seminary in the Aquinas gymnasium contest. It was the first attempt of the seminary to enter into competition with the major high schools, but the odds were too great.

The Irish will take on the St. Mary's outfit from Lancaster. This is one of the annual contests for the Deane, Arden boys and the Downey boys, Irishmen enough of position.

James Priest Slain By Man Who Came to Make Confession

A communication from the Rev. Fr. James J. Slain, pastor of St. Mary's, announces the death of the priest.

Christmas Mush Brought Mary Elders a Fortune

LITTLE MARY ELDERS fairly dreaded the holiday season. She still lived in an aristocratic neighborhood but her purse was nearly flat. It was quite a struggle to keep up the old house and pretend that she had the money as of old.

At last, she put the old chest away for there wasn't a thing in it she felt she could part with.

Suddenly Mary Elders had a bright thought. She knew positively that Bob Trevors hadn't tasted fried mushrooms.

There the story should end but it didn't. For the next Christmas Mary Elders was at the head of her own mushroom factory.

Christmas Snow Came Just as He Predicted

"NO SIGN of snow," said Jane, frowning from the window.

"Three days to go," replied John, her brother, looking at his watch.

"You may have to wait in it yet," said Jane through an enthusiastic greeting.

The first snowed a brilliant defensive game to limit the St. Andrew's passwork to mid-floor activity.

Next morning the girls were awakened by loud banging on their door.

"What?" asked Jane sleepily. But Lucy had heard and straightway looked.

The Christmas Candle Was to Be Her Answer

"HAVE a merry Christmas, Joan, Lovely party!"

Gordon was last to go. "I haven't seen much of you tonight, Joan," he said.

"But, see here, Joan—leave that cake alone and come here."

"Well?" Joan asked and stivered. It was snowing.

"All right, mother. Good night, Gordon. See you when you get back."

Christmas morning was glorious except that Joan was so lonely for Gordon.

"Dear Joan: I couldn't get it out last night, but I had a ring in my pocket for the dearest girl in all the world."

"Ethel's Way of Having a Very Happy Christmas"

ETHEL BILLINGS looked out at the snow covered city streets as she rode down to her work two days before Christmas.

"Ethel thought hard for a moment. Here was a chance to do something; in fact a chance to make a whole family happy at Christmas and there was no money involved."

"Ethel had always loved to cook and she found rest in preparing dinner for the Parker family."

"Oh, yes, there is, right where I hung it. Goodnight, and expect my Christmas special."

"What?" asked Jane sleepily. But Lucy had heard and straightway looked.

"I say wake up Lucy. Tell her my Christmas special has been delivered."

Mission Sunday Celebrated by Vatican City

Rome, Dec. 13.—His Holiness, Pope Pius XI, the "Pope of the Missions," originator of Mission Sunday, the third Sunday of October, himself observed the day in his own city.

Dioceses throughout Italy report that the enthusiasm and earnestness displayed in the observance of Mission Sunday this year surpassed all preceding occasions.

At the International Secretariat of the Pontifical Society for the Propagation of the Faith reports are awaited on the observance of the day in other countries of Europe and America.

The bearers were Thomas Nugent, John Moroney, William McDonough, Frank Parker, Jay Donovan and Patrick Nugent.
