Fritz Mahaney (Chapter Four)

This is Station S-I-L-L-Y. Fritz Mahaney broadcasting. A week or so before last Christmas "Red" Rolly discovered he had an idea. The youthful readers who have been following the course of my narrative will be quick to understand that this was such an unusual occurrence that it is deserving of a special chapter.

This particular phenomenon that took place beneath the tery clutch of young Mr. Rolly's head was an idea that our class should purchase a turkey as a Christmas present to Sister Regina. Now all the boys and girls of our class think a very great deal of our principal and would certainly like to see her have a turkey not only for Christmas but on St. Patrick's Day and the Fourth of July as well. As a matter of fact I personally believe that the storekeepers of our fair village should see to it that the Sisters have a turkey every Sunday of the year. As regards this particular turkey in question, Master Rolly said that each member of the class would have to contribute a quarter as this was to be a gift from the class. Now why should I, youthful readers, contribute a quarter for getting kept in a whole week "Red" in a customary outfit of ill-nature told me that if I felt like that I had better keep my quarter, and they would put a sign on the turkey announcing that it was a gift from everybody but Fritz Mahaney. Again I ask you, youthful readers, if that was a nice thing to say to a boy who has always been noted for his generosity? Just to show what kind of a boy I am I gave a half dollar to the cause.

"Red" Rolly's next suggestion was that on the day school would close for the Christmas holidays we would not go to school until ten o'clock and then march in carrying the turkey, cranberries, etc. I told him it wasn't necessary to buy cranberries, that it would be better to spend all the money buying a bigger turkey. "Red" asked if there were anyone present who ever heard of a turkey without cranberries. I admitted that cranberry sauce was one of the usual "fixings" of a turkey dinner; but added that I had never known of a turkey to cry his eyes out because he did not have cranberries. "Red" asked what we supposed Sister would do when she heard she was to get a turkey. Joy Burke said that he supposed she would go to a dentist and have her teeth sharpened. "Red" said it was his idea that as soon as Sister heard about the turkey she would be afraid to mark us for missed lessons and would not think of sending or keeping us after school. Everyone but the writer agreed that that was a wonderful idea and demanded that "Red" see to it that Sister would know about the turkey at the earliest moment possible. So "Red" told the secret to Rosemary Lander, a seventh-grade girl, because she cannot keep a secret and would be sure to tell Sister that very day.

The expected happened. Next morning Sister was all smiles and did not even frown when "Irish Eddie" Murphy, in geography class, said that a "hole is a hole in a tin pan." Thinking Sister would be good-natured and give us a long morning recess because of the turkey Will Bacon brought his pet

HOT SANDWICHES

For a quick luncheon or supper there is nothing more satisfying than a tasty hot sandwich.

Chickcurry Sandwich.—Mix together one cupful each of chopped chicken and ham, one teaspoonful of curry powder, three-fourths of a cupful of thick white sauce and one-half teaspoonful of salt. Mix the ingredients. Toast six slices of bread on one side, spread the un-toasted side with a generous layer of buttered crumbs. Bake in a hot oven until the crumbs are brown. Serve at once.

Ham and Egg Sandwich.—Take one cupful of chopped ham and two eggs. Put bacon fat into a frying pan, turn in the mixture and cook slowly until the eggs are set. Cut into squares, lay on toasted bread and spread with currant jelly.

Hot Oyster Sandwich.—Cut a pint of oysters into bits. To a tablespoonful of butter add one-half teaspoonful of salt and a few dashes of cayenne and the liquor and the oysters. Stir in one-half cupful of cracker crumbs. Fill buttered sandwiches and serve at once. This makes ten sandwiches.

Hot Roast Beef Sandwich.—Lay slices of hot roast beef slipped into brown gravy between buttered slices of bread from which the crusts have been trimmed. Pour the brown gravy over all and serve very hot with pickles or olives.

Fried Oyster Sandwich.—This is a sandwich de luxe. Dip medium-sized oysters into milk and seasoned crumbs and fry in hot fat. Drain on paper and lay on buttered bread spread lightly with tartar sauce. Cover one slice with oysters and place the other slice on top. Dust with paprika and garnish each sandwich with a sliced olive. Keep them hot until served.

Bacon and Butter Sandwich.—Cut strips of bread one-half inch wide and cover with butter, softened and mixed with chopped crisp bacon. Toast on both sides in a hot oven.

Catholic Chorus Annual Concert A Great Success

The annual concert of the Catholic Women's Club Chorus, held in the Columbus Civic Center ballroom on Friday evening last week, was a great success. There was a good-sized audience in attendance, and the chorus felt highly honored in the fact that the Rt. Rev. John Francis O'Hern, D.D., Bishop of Rochester, was in the audience. Bishop O'Hern personally congratulated the director and the officers and members of the Chorus after the concert, and his gracious kindness added much to the pleasure of the evening for the participants.

Theodore Fitch of the Eastman School of Music, directs the Chorus, and the work of the members in the annual concert was most creditable to his ability. There are 30 young women in the Chorus, and they sang in excellent unison, with finely modulated voices and with a spirit that was a delight to all in the audience.

The program, a well-balanced one, was featured by Palestrina's "Home Sweet Home," which was sung with the accompaniment of the Chorus blended nicely in this difficult number, and the harmony and balance were excellent. The number "To Music," which was the opening selection; Harris' "Daybreak"; Mrs. Beach's "The Year at the Springs"; Barb's "Sweet and Low"; Boltwood's "The Night Has a Thousand Eyes"; Pfeiffer's "O Tula Pulchra Es"; and Shelley's "Chanson Provençal."

Madame M. Castellanos' Taggart was the soloist of the evening. Her voice was unusually excellent and appealing in "The Jewel Song," from Gounod's "Faust"; Cadman's "At Dawning," with cello accompaniment by Miss Pearce; "The Little Damsel" and "The Cuckoo" by Lehmann. She won the favor with the audience.

Miss Esther Pierce, cellist, added to the variety and beauty of the program by her excellent numbers. She rendered "Chanson Louis XIII and Pavane" and Granado's "Spanish Dance" with rare skill and delicacy, and she was heartily applauded.

Margaret Mary Drury was the accompanist of the evening, and her

Homes Wanted For Many Children Who Are Homeless

Have you room in your home and heart for a child?

The Home-Finding Department of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, known also as the Shelter, makes this appeal to Catholic people within a twenty-mile radius of Rochester. Perhaps your home needs the companionship, the happiness, the laughter of a child to make it complete.

The children under the care of this society are, in most cases, children whose opportunities have been restricted because of the misbehavior or delinquency of their parents.

The influence of a good boarding, free or wage home—where the child will have considerate treatment and the advantage of the right companionship, with proper supervision and habit-training—is valued highly by the workers in charge of these children.

The organization is desirous of good Catholic homes for Catholic children. To be assured that the religious training of the child will be cared for in an understanding way.

The organization cares for children from infancy to the age of 16, but the large proportion of children needing care ranges from nine to 14. A sum of money is paid each week in the boarding homes for these children.

It would seem to be a source of real satisfaction to any woman to feel that her influence has been a means of brightening the life of a little child, of giving it a happier outlook upon the world, of instilling into its mind principles that will make for right training of character.

Dame Fashion Smiles By Grace Jewett Austin

Dame Fashion has always liked elephants from the days of childhood circus parades on down through the years, till the day when she took her own little children of ten to see "Old Dunk" in the zoo at Washington, D. C. A cross her dresser at this moment are mending nine small elephants, all of them gifts in materials ranging from soap and candy to ivory and the ever popular jade.

Grace J. Austin, from friends, and in materials ranging from soap and candy to ivory and the ever popular jade.

So when it is learned that Paris is sponsoring "elephant's ear" hats for spring, Dame Fashion takes notice at once. By the description, this "Jumbo" hat, to give it another of its names, sounds a bit like the aviation helmets, beloved of the boys. It is said to have long flapping sides, little back and no brim.

Seeing a costume bracelet, with little elephants dangling from it, Dame Fashion had to use all of her resolution to keep from rushing in to buy it—and may do it yet! You know her theory, that when an article of wearing apparel gives a great "call" to you, you will probably be much the better off for heeding it. The psychologists could give a lot of learned reasons for this, when you are "settling free suppressed desires." Of course, it might not be prudent to have such a "call" too often when your diamonds and emeralds are about.

Paris is said to be continuing its rage for green. In the springtime, that is quite a safe thing to decide, for human nature delights as much in green in the spring as does the nature of trees and grass. Green and white tweeds are promised, and green buckled pumps will appear. There is, of course, as much spring talk as ever about black and white effects—with sometimes the pure white softened to eggshell. But the green and white will always win Dame Fashion's vote because it is a more cheerful combination. And don't be afraid to try an emerald of ivory for costume jewelry, even if some of them do come from a Czechoslovakian crystal factory.

This word "peplum" seems to be coming to the front more and more. In fashion dictionaries Dame Fashion can remember when once upon a time she had a dress with a peplum, but it was uncounted years back, when she was young and reasonably slender. The word has a fine and dignified sound, coming down as it does from the classic days of Greece and Rome. Webster declares it is "an overskirt or short skirt forming the lower part of a woman's coat or blouse."

Many times in the modern peplum revival, if we were not told that a certain peplum was a peplum, we might in ignorance name it a deep ruffe, for while there are straight peplums, there are also many with fullness, and indeed some designs place one draped peplum above another in a sort of pagoda style. Doubtless we shall see peplums in greater numbers as the season advances. For many they will be immensely becoming, while for some of the rest—well they will be just another experiment.

Dame Fashion has just heard that there is to be a new brilliant red for spring called "Mephlo." That may sound a little wicked, but how becoming it will be!
