SONG AT EASTER

By Charles Hanson Towne

If this bright lily
Can live once more,
And its white promise
Be as before,
Why can not the great stone
Be moved from His door?

If the green grass
Ascend and shake
Year after year,
And blossoms break
Again and again
For April's sake,

Why can not His
From the dark and mold,
Show us again
His manifold
And gleaming glory,
A stream of gold?

Faint heart, be sure
These things must be.
See the new bud
On the old tree . . .
If flowers can wake,
Oh, why not He?
—Woman's Home Companion.

Easter Ceremonies in Rome Have New Dignity

As though symbolical of the obliteration of old differences between church and state, flowers sent by the governor of Rome adorn the classic cross in the center of the Coliseum where so many Christian martyrs suffered death prior to the advent of Emperor Constantine.

Good Friday observances in all the 400 churches of Rome thus take on a new impressiveness.

The most picturesque is the procession of penitence across Rome to the church of Santa Croce in Gerusalemme where relics of the Savior's passion are exhibited. Many members of the Roman nobility participate in the procession.

All the marchers carry small candles of yellow wax and chant in chorus the canticle, "Long Live the Cross," before entering the church to give homage to the relics of the true cross preserved there.

EGGS LEFT BY BUNNY

Who said rabbits don't lay eggs? This young lady seems to have a bit of weighty evidence to prove that they do.

Brings Message of Life

All nature seems to dance on Easter day, in harmony with the all-pervasive spirit of joy. And why? Because it tells of life. Because it dispels the terror of the grave. Because it banishes the chilling fear of death. Because on it a trumpet sounds throughout the universe the tidings of eternal existence.
