President Ortiz Rubio Of Mexico Gives Greeting to Papal Delegate

Last word in temporal matters. The purpose of Catholics is to strengthen both these authorities so that they may develop freely the activities which belong to them in the different fields over which God has placed them.

Princess Bishop Excellent's editorial paper unostentatiously praises the pastoral as "a patriotic document inspired by a high order of justice which will do much to restore tranquility."

"Eloquent and precise, discreet and concrete, supporting and adequate is the pastoral letter which has been issued by His Lordship, the Bishop of Zamora and which was read in all the churches of his Diocese. Every citizen of Mexico should read with scrupulous attention this notable document which, along with the pastoral already published by the Archbishop of Mexico, and others which we intend to publish, will be of great help in defining the relations between the State and Church and clarifying the civil duties of Catholics."

"This co-operation with the State in temporal things is just as important and obligatory as to cooperate with the Church in spiritual things. There is no room for doubt about this. No mental reservations are permissible. No washing the hands like Pilate. There is only one thing to do, give to Caesar that which is Caesar's and to God that which is God's."

English Royal Abode Sandringham house is at Sandringham, a village in Norfolk, England. The estate, of some 7,000 acres, was acquired in 1881 by the late King Edward, when prince of Wales, for about $1,250,000. It was rapidly made into a model and modern place. Sandringham house is a picturesque building of brick and stone in Elizabethan style, standing in a park of 200 acres on a tablet is inscribed: "This house was built by Albert Edward and Alexandra, his wife, in the year of our Lord 1870."

The Postscript Little Tommy had been sent to try to borrow a gardening fork from the neighbor. "Did you see him?" "Yes, he asked very impudently." "Did he say anything?" "Yes, he said, 'I haven't forgotten something, but I've forgotten something else.'"

They Carried 293,000 Bricks On Their Heads

(Piles Service) Kinantu, Belgian Congo, April 25.—The generosity of African Catholics in the Belgian Congo can be said to be measured in bricks. At Kinantu, a village of 26 Catholic families in the Jesuit Vicariate of Kinantu, in four months the people manufactured 84,000 bricks, which they carried on their heads to the site of the new church. Other villages performed like feats. Ntari contributing 10,000 for its chapel, Kisimba 51,000, Kibwata 60,000, and Kimpudi 55,000.

London's grimmest museum is nevertheless the least overruled by the "morbid curiosity seekers," says a writer in Tit-Bits. John Hunter, originator of scientific surgery in England, founded the medical museum of the Royal College of Surgeons, Lincoln's Inn Fields; and it is now the finest of its kind in the world. Only medical and other privileged persons are allowed to enter. Rows of skulls give visitors their first shock. They stand in solid phalanxes upon their shelves. Here are the skulls of all ages, all nations—5,000 of them!

The Wild Rose Queen It's a glad good-bye, Miss Snowdrift. From your cold, icy way, I'm dated round the corner. With smiling, sweet Miss May. I'm thinking of the pleasant days. Spent down the years together. Where bluebells blow the dale. And purple tops the heather.

Mortgage Made Matter of Record in Babylon If you believe that the first-mortgage-loan plan is something almost new, you're about 2,400 years behind the times. A short while back an archeological expedition working in the waste of an antique city in Babylon excavated a clay tablet with odd characters drawn upon it. The translation of these characters reads: "Thirty bushels of dates are due to Bel Nadin Shun, son of Marashu, by Bel Bullisu and Sha Nebu Shu, sons of Kiribet, and their tenants. In the month of Tashri (harvest month) of the thirty-fourth year of King Artaxerxes I they shall pay the dates, thirty bushels, according to the measure of Bel Nadin Shun, in the town of Bit Bahata. Their field cultivated and uncultivated, their fief estate, is held as a pledge for the dates, namely thirty bushels, by Bel Nadin Shun. Another creditor shall not have power over it."

Football History The ancient Greeks and Romans played a game somewhat similar to football. English lads in very early times made use of the bladder without a covering in a contest out of doors. Barclay, an early poet, who died in 1552, describes the game graphically, and William Fitzstephens at the end of the twelfth century notes the well-known game of ball played on Shrove Tuesday. Edward II in 1314 forbade it on account of the great noise, and it fell under the ban of succeeding sovereigns, both in England and Scotland. Its official entry into main life as a definite game was in 1863, when rules were drawn up by players of the University of Cambridge. In America the game was played at Yale as early as 1840, and the beginning of uniformity in rules was made in 1873, when Columbia, Rutgers, Princeton and Yale met in conference.

No American Proverbs Americans are better known for their slang than for their proverbs though they are slowly collecting some of their own. No doubt many are coined every day but unless they attract popular fancy they are not very likely to survive. Editorial writers have been most prolific in the matter of phrase making but unfortunately their labors last but for a day, after which they are forgotten. As a nation, however, we are still too young to found a wisdom of our own. Until we do, we must interlard our present tongue with proverbs of older civilizations.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Wild Rose Queen I'm thinking of the pleasant days. Spent down the years together. Where bluebells blow the dale. And purple tops the heather. Melody greets wh'er we roam. Wild flowers bright and gay. Cov'ly blush with the sunrise. Skylarks thrill the coming day.

The worst foe of excellence is the desire to appear, for when once we have made men talk of us we seem to be doing nothing if they are silent, and thus the love of notoriety becomes the bane of true work and right living. To be one of a crowd is not to be at all; and if we are resolved to put our thoughts and acts to the test of reason, and to live for what is permanently true and great, we must consent, like the best of all ages, to be lonely in the world.—Bishop Spalding.
