

Society Wedding In Westminster Brilliant Event

London, May 2.—The marriage of Lady Millicent Taylor, only daughter of the Marquess and Marchioness of Headfort, to Henry F. Mark, took place in Westminster Cathedral in this city on Monday. It was a brilliant society wedding, and more than 800 guests, the elite of London, were present as invited guests. A great crowd assembled in front of the Cathedral during the ceremony, and a number of women entered the Cathedral through a side door and witnessed the marriage.

Pastor 59 Years In Same Church, When Death Came

Freehold, N. J., May 2.—The Rt. Rev. Magr. Frederick Kiveltz, pastor of the Church of St. Rose of Lima here for the past 59 years, died on Wednesday last week at the age of 85 years. It is believed no other priest in the United States had served as many years in one parish.

Father Kiveltz was born in Neuss, Rhenish Prussia, on June 28, 1844. After graduating from the Frederick William Gymnasium in Neuss, he studied at the University of Louvain in Belgium and at the American College in Rome. He was ordained in 1869, and came to America three months later. He built Catholic churches in Bradvelt, Jamesburg, Perrineville and Collis Neck and the Catholic convent in Freehold. He was made a monsignor by the late Bishop McPaul in 1907. When he was appointed pastor of the Church of St. Rose of Lima the parish covered 125 square miles.

Catholic Alumni Takes Action to Help Graduates Obtain Suitable Positions

(By N.C.W.C. News Service) Washington, May 2.—A deep concern for the post-graduation welfare of the students in Catholic colleges and universities manifested by the delegates to the fourth convention of the National Catholic Alumni Federation, which opened here April 24 prompted the meeting to approve the following resolution:

"Whereas a survey of Catholic colleges and universities indicates therein very little organized effort to assist Catholic college graduates in the securing of the best possible appointments, or to aid undergraduates in finding part time employment during their school term, and

"Whereas, Catholic college graduates and students apparently stand in very definite need of such assistance, therefore, be it

"Resolved, that the National Catholic Alumni Federation urge each of its constituent members to take steps towards the organization of such Appointment and Employment Bureaus, and further be it

"Resolved, that this Federation likewise organize a similar bureau as a clearing house for joint activity and, further be it

"Resolved, that this Federation pledge itself to every effort that may further such purpose."

The Rev. Charles A. Hart of the Catholic University of America, who read the resolution to the meeting, told the delegates that graduates of Catholic colleges and universities have "walked the streets" for a year

(Chapter Five) CATHERINE BROGAN'S SCHOOL DAYS

Charley Ryan was one of the first protectors of the famous Sodality about which I wrote in the last chapter. Charley, during his term of office, inaugurated many things that aroused interest in the workings of this great instrument for good among the boys of St. Patrick's school.

To begin with, Charley was an unusually popular boy. His kindness, his smile, his courtesy, his strength and skill in athletics made him an all-around hero among his fellows. He never quarrelled. It was impossible to tease him. Jibes and jests fell powerless before the armor of his good nature. At Christmas time his popularity reached its highest point. Friends without number had sent boxes to him, and each box seemed to contain about enough food for an army.

Charley secured the use of one of the class rooms for Sister Regina and decided to throw a party for his friends with the surplus food he had received. Rosemary Lander's mother took charge of the kitchen for the popular Charley, and she was assisted in the serving by several ladies of the parish. One hundred and twenty boys were invited and 119 accepted. Fritz Mahaney, the 120th boy, was down with tonsillitis and the story goes that it took the combined efforts of his mother and father, his brother and two strong neighbors to hold him in bed when the hour of the banquet drew nigh. An hour before the arrival of the guests Mrs. Lander declared she had enough food for two hundred. An hour later she had her doubts. Still another hour and she had one lone loaf of bread, the only bit of perishable goods left when the happy guests arose and gave three lusty cheers for Charley Ryan.

The Chinese Mission The Chinese Mission section was one of Charley's innovations. During Lent, he explained, everyone just naturally made sacrifices. All the boys would cut out the movies, and any number of them would refrain from eating candy, and the pounds they would thus save would be handed over to the Sodality to form a Lenten bank for the Chinese missionaries. The girls, too, would be asked to help. At first the idea did not take so well. The first week of Lent showed only 80 cents in the "great home bank" for the poor little Chinese. Then something happened.

On the Tuesday afternoon of the second week of Lent Charley was leaving school, and discovered over the returns from his first great financial venture, when Jean McLean dashed up the walk to tell him that there was a man standing across the Street passing out "simply orful" papers to each little child that left school, with the admonition "take it home to your mama. It took Charley one minute to get one of the papers from a small fourth grade girl, and one look at it told him that the man was a hater of the Catholic Church and doing his level best to make others hate it. Gathering several fifth grade boys, he quickly rounded up all the children who had obtained a copy of the paper, took each one into his arms and the astonished eyes of the man who distributed them and stuffed all into a garbage can that stood at the roadside.

Charley Showed Him How Flying into a towering rage the ugly fellow rushed at Charley and dealt him a severe blow that staggered him. Charley did not lose his temper, but kept at his work destroying the vile papers. This encouraged the man, and he made up his mind to humiliate Charley before the children. His hand shot out at the same moment, catching the man on the point of the chin. What a surprise to have the pavement jump up and hit one on the back of the head.

Death of Priest Recalls Story Of Historic Act

Clayville, N. Y., May 2.—The Rev. John C. O'Sullivan, S.T.D., pastor of St. Patrick's Church in this village, was buried from that quiet Monday morning. He died at the rectory on Thursday, aged 86 years.

Dr. O'Sullivan is credited by his friends with having helped save the village from that quiet Monday morning. He died at the rectory on Thursday, aged 86 years.

College Library Has Many Rare Old Irish Books

Philadelphia, Pa., May 2.—The centuries-old Tom Griffin collection of volumes of early Irish writers has been located by the Rev. Michael O'Flanagan, widely known Irish historian, hidden away in the Augustinian Library at Villanova College.

During a six-months' tour of this country, Father Flanagan has found many other rare volumes, some of which are said to shed new light on the civilization of Western Europe predating the Christian era.

The collection found at Villanova was possessed by Tom Griffin, a teacher who came to this country and conducted classes at Lawrence, Mass., in the eighteenth century. When he died his books were locked away by his widow and at her death a daughter presented them to her pastor, who in turn sent them to Villanova.

Fifteen Priests Rushed Into Burning Penitentiary To Care For Dying Inmate

Columbus, O., May 2.—Fifteen priests rushed into the burning Ohio State Penitentiary in this city when it was a mass of flames last week. They came to grant the dying and to give every possible help and comfort to the men who were victims of the terrible fire that burned 329 prisoners to death.

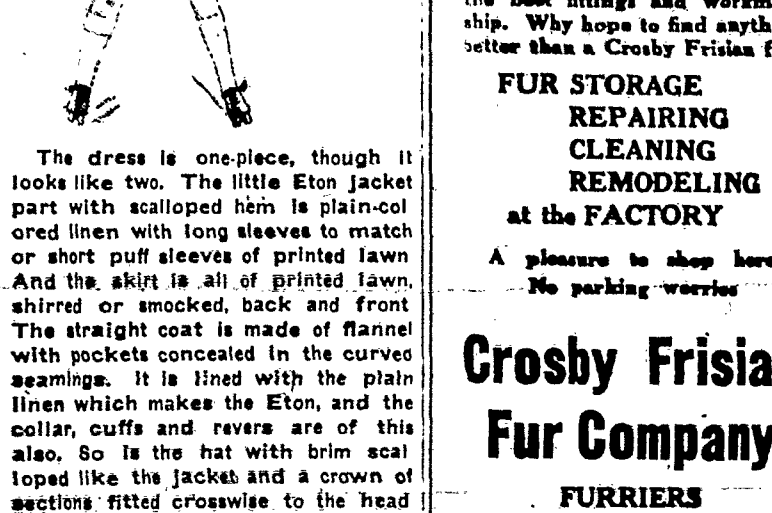

When the Rev. Rev. James J. Hartley, D.D., Bishop of Columbus, heard of the disaster he telephoned a number of priests to direct them to offer their services, but feared that they had already gone to the scene. Among them, besides the Rev. Albert O'Brien, O.P., Catholic Chaplain of the prison, were the Rev. James T. McFarland, pastor of St. Joseph's cathedral, the Rev. Edmund Hurley, pastor, and the Rev. Joseph Lappan, assistant at St. Mary's Church.

An Ensemble Designed for the Little Girls

The dress is one-piece, though it looks like two. The little Eton jacket part with scalloped hem is plain-colored linen with long sleeves to match or short puff sleeves of printed lawn. And the skirt is all of printed lawn, shirred or smocked, back and front. The straight coat is made of flannel with pockets concealed in the curved seamings. It is lined with the plain linen which makes the Eton, and the collar, cuffs and revers are of this also. So is the hat with brim scalloped like the jacket and a crown of sections fitted crosswise to the head—Woman's Home Companion.
