Knorr Sisters Have Sanitarium Of Finest Kind

Beautiful Building on Troup Street Has Excellent Accommodations for All Classes of Sick People.

The Knorr Sanitarium on Troup Street, conducted by the Knorr sisters, graduate nurses, is one of the finest and best institutions of its kind in this part of the State. It provides a convalescent home for all classes of patients, for those who are confined to their beds, for nervous and run-down persons, for elderly people who need rest and thoughtful care, for persons who have just been operated upon, and for all other classes of patients. The rates are unusually reasonable, and patients are under the care of graduate nurses all of the time, day and night, and they receive the most thoughtful and helpful attention.

A feature of the Sanitarium which appeals to all patients is that an atmosphere of home-like privacy is always maintained, and that every possible comfort and convenience are provided for patients. The rooms are large, airy, attractive and well kept, and may be had singly or in suites, with or without private baths.

This Sanitarium provides an ideal home for chronic invalids, nervous or elderly people. It has an excellent location, in which patients are seldom or never disturbed by noise, and the home is surrounded by a beautiful and well-kept lawn.

The Knorr Sanitarium has been in existence for 17 years, and in all this time it has been distinguished by the excellence of its work, its tender and thoughtful care of all classes of patients. A telephone call to Main 5359 will give any additional information, and a cordial invitation is extended to prospective patients or their friends, in fact, to all people, to visit the Sanitarium and see for themselves what it offers for the convenience, comfort and care of its patients.

Science Leads Us Straight to a Belief in God, and This is the Foundation of Faith.

Cornell Students Give An Enthusiastic Greeting To Bp. O'Hern in Ithaca

demands absolute proof for everything that is really unscientific. Such an attitude is not only unreasonable and untenable but, in very truth, unlivable, for the very fact of living implies some faith or belief in something that cannot be proved. This is called natural faith, which we are constantly professing in our daily lives. For instance, it would be an insult if anyone were to question your parentage, but did you ever stop to think that you can never really prove or know who your parents are?

Faith Is Necessary

"Faith is necessary for any form or sort of real family life; in fact, all human associations rest on faith. We are well aware that all modern industry is conducted on credit, and credit is nothing less than a species of faith. This, a panic in Wall Street comes from a lack of confidence in the credit of the nation. Again, a scientist would never get started on an experiment without having faith in some things that he is using. Hence it is that Professor Lester F. Ward of Brown University says: 'We cannot understand so strongly the paradox that pure science really rests on faith.' And William James long ago pointed out that 'the principle of causality, which, by the way, is behind all science, is as much an altar to an unknown God as the one that St. Paul found at Athens.' In a word, all human achievement rests on faith, since all achievement is based on faith and thought and assurance that something which has not yet been proven by reason or faith can nevertheless be accomplished. Hence, the Wright Brothers were able to fly the first airplane because they had faith and courage in the principles on which they worked. Lindbergh flew over the Atlantic, because he had faith in his airplane and faith in the compass which was to guide him and in the store of gasoline and oil which filled the tanks. Accordingly, all wild life denying faith is unnatural. Whenever we stand in a group, it is reasonable to have faith, but unreasonable to depend exclusively on reason itself. And so the man who attempts to face the universe without faith is not scientific. Remember, we have been talking about faith as a natural virtue.

Divine Revelation

"Now let us come to supernatural faith which is found in Divine Revelation. Man sometimes doubts away from religion because of difficulties. But let us remember what Cardinal Newman stated in his own case, that ten thousand difficulties should not and do not make a doubt. Atheism and Agnosticism which deny God and the supernatural are not only not satisfying to the human mind and heart, but they solve nothing of life. Those who believe in an open grave of a loved one, suffers, and there is no hopeful or consoling thought. Contrast him with the believer, who knows and feels that death is not the end of all. Hence, if faith, belief in God, can reduce human suffering to that extent at least, it solves one of the great problems of life. Those who believe are not only more happy and are bringing happiness into the world, but they are also the ones who are relieving human suffering.

"What, I ask, have Atheists ever done as a body for the welfare of humanity? Have they ever established a fresh-air camp; have they ever opened a cancer hospital; have they ever served the poor, or established a leper colony? Let us suppose for a moment, in theory, that all belief had disappeared from the world: 'Would life be worth living?' asks Mallock. At least one woman, has given a frank answer when she wrote: 'I am inclined to think it would be a hell of a world.' Now one of the strongest influences today, working against religious faith, is the impression that there is an insoluble conflict between science and faith. Science, of course, dominates the world, and as no one would think of giving up science, the only other alternative is to give up religious faith. This is quite common among men.

Attitude of Great Scientists

"Now, what has been the attitude of the greatest scientists—the real scientists, not the pseudo-scientists as to supernatural faith? The great Louis Pasteur, whose name is a byword in our domestic life, was a man of the most profound and simple faith. Lord Kelvin, the great English scientist, was a man of deep religious conviction and a believer in God and immortality of the soul. Professor Millikan, perhaps the outstanding physicist of our day, and president of the American Physical Society, who a few years ago received the Nobel prize for his work, writes:

"We should use the word 'God' to describe what is behind the mystery of existence. I have never known a thinking man who did not believe in God. To me, it is unthinkable that real Atheists should exist at all. It seems to me as obvious as breathing that every man who is sufficiently in his senses to recognize his own inability to comprehend the problem of existence, to understand whence he came and whither he is going, must, in the admission of that mystery, recognize his dependence upon a higher Being. And scientists recognize the existence of a Something, a Power, a Being to whom and because of whom he himself lives and moves and has his being." That Power, that Something that exists we call God.

Again, Professor Pupin of Columbia University has told us quite frankly that his scientific studies have made him more devout Christian, and he stands in the very front ranks of modern scientists. He says: "The reality of both physical science and organic science recognizes a God, a Divine Intelligence, that we, as intelligent beings, can depend upon."

Science Leads Us Straight to a Belief in God, and This is the Foundation of Faith.

St. John Knights Chicken Dinner A Great Success

Guests Were Present at Point Pleasant Event from Buffalo and Other Places, and It Was a Fine Affair.

Recalling the story of Midas, it will be remembered that everything he touched turned into gold. Bringing this simile up to the present, it seems that every dinner given by Commandery No. 25, Knights of St. John is always a big success.

The chicken dinner held at Point Pleasant on Sunday, October 19th, passed into history as another important event. About 50 were present, and as usual, the cuisine was of the kind that Lucullus himself might envy. Old and new songs were sung, interesting anecdotes related, and an air of genuine cordiality and friendliness pervaded the scene.

This particular occasion was augmented by the presence of four distinguished guests: Father Andre and Father Seidel, Father Golding and Father Schmitt. Once more an audience was held spellbound by the brilliance and wit of the two Reverend Fathers, who have been conducting a mission during the past two weeks at St. Boniface Church. The timely and well-chosen remarks of Father Schmitt and Father Golding were also much appreciated. Commandery No. 25 felt grateful and honored that in their busy day these priests found time to make the trip down to Point Pleasant, and everyone was unanimous in agreeing that their visit would not soon be forgotten.

Several guests were present from Buffalo, including Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sempel, former Rochesterians. Although residing in Buffalo, Mr. Sempel is still a member of Commandery No. 25 of St. Boniface.

A few familiar faces were missing Sunday, but the Knights hope to see these and all their friends at their annual duck dinner, which is to be held at the cottage on the bay on Sunday, December 7th.

Nazareth College

The Junior class sponsored the opening night of "Cherries Are Ripe," now playing at the Lyceum, and starring Vilma Banky and Rod la Roque. Miss Mary Fraher was general chairman of selling tickets. Due to the whole-hearted efforts of the members of the class a large crowd attended and insured the success of the venture.

A Press Club was newly organized among the student body for the purpose of publishing accounts of all student activities in the newspapers. Miss Gertrude Walters from the senior class was chosen publisher; Miss Mildred Burke from the Junior class, business manager; and Miss Mary Moran from the Sophomore class was elected secretary-treasurer. Four members from each class were also appointed, and the club will be directed by Mr. Sigal who is conducting courses in Journalism and Public Speaking.

Officers of the Athletic Club were chosen by the student body as follows: President, Miss Helen Welch; vice-president, Miss Marion O'Neill; secretary-treasurer, Miss Josephine Koch. The club consists of the whole student body and the program for the year offers horseback riding, tap-dancing, basketball.

Science does not prevent man from being a Christian, but makes him a better Christian. It has made many better Christians. In reality the conflict, if there is a conflict, is not so much between science and religion, or even between real scientists and churchmen, as it is between a few advanced scientists or pseudo-scientists and the great truths of the universe. Hence, it is not too much to say that the more science approximates to truth, the more support it gives to the fundamental tenets of religious faith. Science must destroy and has destroyed mythology, but it can never destroy religion. So that the astronomer of the future as well as the Paleontologist of old will agree that 'the Heavens will declare the Glory of God.' Nor should we make the mistake of tying up religion and science, for science is constantly clinging and when it changes religion must suffer. Scientific theories may come and go but religion remains eternally true.

A Happy Event

Dr. Cronin had arranged an excellent breakfast after the Mass, and it was attended by Bishop priests, students and some professors from the University. It was a happy occasion, exemplifying the fine spirit of good will and co-operation which exists at the University, and evidencing the fact that the Rev. Dr. Cronin is doing excellent work as Chaplain of the Newman Club at Cornell.

Bishop O'Hern was delighted with his visit to the university, and was greatly pleased with the conditions he found in the Newman Club and its membership.

200 Children Confirmed

Sunday evening Bishop O'Hern confirmed 200 children and a few adults in the Immaculate Conception Church in Ithaca, of which the Rev. William Byrne, Ph.D., M.R., is pastor. The class was a splendid one, and gave every evidence of having been treated with unusual care. Bishop O'Hern spoke to the members of the class on the value of the Sacrament, and he urged all to be faithful to their Church and devoted to God throughout their lives. He gave to all the children a pledge to abstain from the use of intoxicating liquors until they become 21 years of age.

The church was filled to capacity for the Confirmation service, and Bishop O'Hern gave an excellent talk to the people. The event is one that gave good inspiration to every member of the Immaculate Conception parish in Ithaca.

At the End of the Game

At the end of the game... tired bodies, pulses accelerated with the wine of victory or momentarily retarded by honorable defeat. Then, that shower bath, with plenty of hot water... what a paradise for aching anatomies.

Football players owe much of their physical fitness, and their ability to stick through the season to the use of hot water in the inevitable 'shower'. It soothes, it heals, it rejuvenates.

It is thus in everyday life. We tire, we overtax ourselves, we lose 'pep'. But that old vigor will return if we but utilize the service of a modern hot water heater, 'At the end of the game'.

Special campaign now going on. Attractive prices, special terms on instantaneous water heaters. Call in or telephone MAIN 3966.
