Gilbert K. Chesterton Writes
About the Gang Wars of Chicago
And the Bombing of Beauty Shops

Famous English Humorist Writes About Organized Use
Of Machine Guns, and Pays Tribute to Killing
Ability of Federal Agents.

Gilbert Chesterton, famous English writer, philosopher and humorist, was accorded the front page in the New York Times Magazine Sunday. His article was entitled: "Mr. Chesterton Looks Us Over," and in it he discusses a variety of subjects to which he has given careful thought since coming to America about four months ago. One of them is Chicago's gangland, and of this he writes:

"But an entirely new development has appeared in America, and especially in Chicago. It consists of the organized use of machine guns by the ordinary criminal classes. The millionaires, of course, were not members of the criminal classes; they were only criminals without the redeeming weakness of class consciousness. But it really does mark rather an interesting phase in history: that Bill Sikes, the coarse and common burglar of our boyhood drama, is no longer defying himself with a pistol but with a pair of artillery.

Good Taste in Murder
"I do not mean to be all Pharaonic about Chicago. It has many beauties, including the fine facilities and good taste in maintaining the ordinary criminal classes. The millionaires, of course, were not members of the criminal classes; they were only criminals without the redeeming weakness of class consciousness. But it really does mark rather an interesting phase in history: that Bill Sikes, the coarse and common burglar of our boyhood drama, is no longer defying himself with a pistol but with a pair of artillery.

Notre Dame Athletes
Get Great Reception
From Fathers and Sons

"The Old Soak"
Will Be Played On
February 9 and 10

The Sceptre Dramatic Club of St. Peter & Paul's Church will present a play, "The Old Soak," under the direction of Fritz Bonehill, on Monday and Tuesday, February 9 and 10, in Our Lady of Good Counsel Hall, on Erie Street. Members of the cast include Pauline Schied, Eleanor O'Connor, Thelma Clancy, Alice Davis, Jack O'Connor, Gregory Callahan, Jack Free, Louis Heuer and Norbert Schied.

This comedy is an excellent one, and will play in a way that will appeal to all who see it. The public is cordially invited to attend, and good audiences are expected for both nights. The play is open to men, women and children, and the admission price is most reasonable.

Shirley and Dempsey
John and Jack Campbell, twins, four-year-olds of Danville, were introduced as "Shirley and Dempsey," and they put on a mighty clever boxing bout. George T. Hyland was referee.

Three Great Athletes
Joseph P. Flynn, chairman of the dinner, presided for the rest of the program, and was right at home in the job. He gave happy introductions to Messrs. Maraville, Schwartz and Conley. The "Rabbit" told some clever stories, and some things about the Notre Dame football team, and expressed his pride and pleasure in being present at an event so delightful and inspiring.

March Schwartz and Tom Conley, who made a splendid impression upon everybody, most of all, the courteous, every inch of them radiating gentlemanly and refined culture. They seemed to represent a type, an ideal of Christian studenthood that was inspiring to see and understand. Both spoke of Coach Knute Rockne, an with the keenest pride and admiration.

No Bigotry Found
"We have often been asked," Capt. Tom Conley said, "if we have ever encountered any religious hostility or bigotry, due to the fact that we represent a thoroughly Catholic school, although all of our athletes are not Catholic. I can truthfully say we never have. In our game with the Southern Methodists, who represented a distinctly religious school of their own church, we never found a hint of treatment from any rival that we did not find from these boys."

For the moment Notre Dame may appear to be the American public because of its athletic accomplishments, and particularly its football record, but I want to say that Notre Dame takes no second place to any university of our glorious country in its standards of scholarship and its intellectual and spiritual program. Therefore, we resent the whispering campaign which has gone abroad in the past few weeks questioning the standard of scholarship of this great center of learning, fame and honor, which would deny this institution the credit which it has earned by its own brains while admitting to brain or brawn, or both.

Rejoice Rejoice
Rochester has reason to rejoice in the existence of this great university. For we have in our midst among our fellow citizens a profession, men, faculty of Notre Dame, who are today outstanding and doing the best type of work in their line, whether it be physical, civil engineering, architectural or cultural. And one of them is presiding at this banquet tonight, Mr. Joseph P. Flynn.

Had Buy Time in the City
Messrs. Conley and Schwartz had a busy time in the city. They arrived in the city Saturday night, stopping at the Sagamore. Sunday noon they were guests at a luncheon attended by the sport writers of the local papers, the K of C committee and a few invited guests. Monday morning they visited Aquinas Institute, spoke to the boys here and got a great reception. Monday noon they were guests of the Notre Dame Club of Rochester at a luncheon in the Columbus Civic Center. Monday night was their big night, and when it was all over they headed home for studies, for hard work, for "plugging" at books, to make good in the class room, just as they made good on the gridiron.

Good Shepherd
Sisters' Home
Open Three Days

Holy Angels' Home Will Be Dedicated Sunday — The Public Invited to Visit It for Three Days

At 10 o'clock Sunday morning the newly constructed Holy Angels Home, erected by the Sisters of the Good Shepherd on Winton Road, North, will be dedicated by Bishop O'Hern. At the same time the Sisters will celebrate Mass for the Sisters in the chapel of the home.

At 3:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon there will be benediction of the Blessed Sacrament in the chapel of the home, and from that hour until 9 in the evening the home will be open for the inspection of all interested people. Everybody is invited on Monday and Tuesday, likewise, there will be benediction at the same hour, and the Home will be kept open each day until 9 in the evening for public inspection. This will give all interested people an opportunity to see a home that will be devoted to the moral and spiritual uplift of all girls and women who need special care and protection. The home will be open to girls of all creeds, or of no creed, and its charity will be as blessed as the sun from Heaven.

Sale of Articles Planned
In order to help furnish the new three-story building that has been erected at a cost of approximately $50,000, a sale of fancy and religious articles will be held during the three days that the home will be open to the public. It is hoped that many thousands of people will visit the home, that they may understand the splendid work that is being done by the Sisters of the Good Shepherd for the people of Rochester and vicinity.
