Passion Play Pictures To Be Shown at the Regent Week Beginning Feb. 20th

For 30 years before the Oberampegau Passion Play was enacted, the Freiburg play had been given. For a long time it was enacted on the plaza of the Cathedral, but finally became so popular that the permanent structure was erected in which these motion pictures were made.

Several thousands of people are shown in the pictures, the entire village of Freiburg taking part in the scenes, enacting their parts with reverence and with zeal.

Panoramic scenes of Freiburg and Oberampegau are shown before unfolding the sacred drama, an actual view of which is possible at Freiburg only at intervals of five years, and at Oberampegau only once a decade.

Settings for the scenes are scattered along one side of the enclosure like a great street, facing the seats. There are some nine thousand of these spreading over a wide area. Thus, many scenes are viewed to advantage from a certain angle while others, presented as a different angle, are difficult or impossible to follow. The cinematographer has moved his camera to face each scene squarely, bringing the connected narrative directly before one's eyes.

Dimitri Buchowetzki directed the making of these pictures at Freiburg. He did so well that he was afterwards brought to America to direct films in this country. In Freiburg many families, generation after generation, take part in the fasten play. Adolph and George Paschatt, who enact the Christ and Judas, respectively, boast a long line of forbears who have been similarly honored. The motion picture camera was never before permitted within the amphitheater at Freiburg until these pictures were taken there. The Regent management considers itself fortunate in obtaining these beautiful and sublime pictures, showing a great religious drama acted with zeal with reverence and with consummate artistry.

Beginning on the week of Friday, February 20th, motion pictures of the Passion Play as enacted at Freiburg since the year 1261 will be shown at the Regent Theater. The pictures are of such character and excellence that they will undoubtedly attract large audiences who will be interested and inspired by the marvellous acting and scenes shown in the pictures.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Schoenherr Celebrate Anniversary in Happy Way at Home of Their Son William.

Forty years ago, on February 3, 1891, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Schoenherr of 481 S. Clinton Street were united in marriage in St. Boniface's Church. This anniversary of this happy event was observed in a fitting way last week at the home of their son, William Schoenherr, 581 Hill Street. A fine dinner was enjoyed, many friends called to extend congratulations and good wishes, and the couple were made to feel that they have warm places in numerous hearts—those who wish for them many more happy anniversaries.

Four sons and one granddaughter, as well as other relatives, helped Mr. and Mrs. Schoenherr observe their anniversary—William, Carl, Edward and Joseph. The grandchild is Shirley Schoenherr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Schoenherr.

Mr. and Mrs. Schoenherr are enjoying good health, and their friends are all looking forward to their golden wedding anniversary, with the hope that they will be in excellent health and spirit for this event ten years hence.

Thespians Play "Knave of Hearts" In Nazareth Hall

The third presentation of the Theatrical Dramatic Club of Nazareth Academy, "The Knave of Hearts," was presented in the Academy auditorium Friday afternoon this week, and it was given a most excellent interpretation. The production, as the manager of the show, Miss Janet Stott, so aptly said, proves the truth of the old nursery rhyme that the "Knave was no knave at all, but a hero indeed."

The opening scene shows two party cooks—Audrey Greix and Clara Doecher—who give the exposition of the play to the effect that the future queen of hearts, played by Mary Pauline Lay, must make some tartis in order to prove her eligibility for queenship. She is quite inexperienced in this art, and mixes a peculiar concoction. In order to save her from an embarrassing predicament the Knave, played by Katharine Staub, steals the tartis and is unable to return on time to allow the tartis to be uncooked. Later he is captured, but saves the situation by bringing in new and wonderful tartis. For the enjoyment of the court, and of all children down to the present day, he commemorates the event in rhyme. Through his efforts Lady Viola is made Queen of Hearts, and the one-act play ends happily for all in the cast were:

—Chancellor, Madeline Ritter; First heralds, Florence Smith, Mariel Donohue; King of Hearts, Eileen Gancker; Ursula, the queen's lady, Evelyn Leno; pages, Arlene Worcester, Betty Hayes, Alice Donoghue, Lucille Kunz, Bernice Gahilly. A delightful presentation of the play was given, and it was a credit to all who took part.

Obituary

James J. Fess, aged 73 years, of 642 Lyell Ave., member of the firm of Fess Bros., furniture manufacturers, died on Wednesday at his home. His funeral will be held Saturday morning at 10 o'clock in Holy Family Church. Mr. Fess was a member of the choir of this church for 51 years. He was born in Germany, came to America when four years old with his parents, and had since been a resident of Rochester. He was a well liked, dependable business man, and had many friends who will regret his death.

Mr. Fess leaves his wife, Louise; two sons, Eugene J. and Raymond; three daughters, Mrs. John Hanesby of Buffalo and Mrs. Fred E. Schuber and Miss Helen Fess of Rochester; two brothers, Joseph P. and Peter J. Fess; two sisters, Mrs. George Stahl and Mrs. Leonard Delsing; and five grandchildren.

When the outlook is not good, try the uplook.

Sincerity is impossible unless it pervades the whole being; and the pretense of it saps the very foundation of character.—Lewell.

Catholic Book Club FEBRUARY BOOKS

The February selection of the Catholic Book Club of New York City is "The Things That Are Not Caesar's," by Jacques Maritain, a book dealing with the age-old controversy of what is the dividing line between Church and State in matters of public interest and public welfare—in other words, "What things belong to Caesar and what to God?" The book is published by Charles Scribner's Sons, and costs $2.50. The book is explained, will bewilder the ordinary reader, and the trained reader may find it difficult. But the Club says it is an "extremely important book."

Other books recommended by the Catholic Book Club are: "A Month with St. Augustine" composed of essays by various authors; the Dial Press, N. Y., $5. "Come to Think of It," by Gilbert K. Chesterton, Dodd, Mead & Co., New York, $2.50. "Poems of Gerard Manley Hopkins," Oxford University Press, New York, $3. "Church History by Non-Catholic Historians," by Rev. John E. Graham; Norman Publishing Co., Baltimore, $2. "Church History," by Rev. John Lamy, Benzinger Bros., New York, $3.25. "Why I Am Not a Catholic," by Hilary Bellier; the Magnesian Co., New York, $2.
