Combination of Face Brick and Siding Makes an Attractive Home

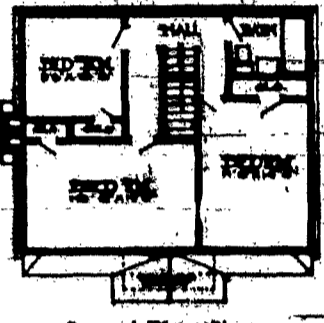

A beauty in a combination of face brick and siding. Notice the simplicity and harmony of each part with every other and study the unusual floor plans.

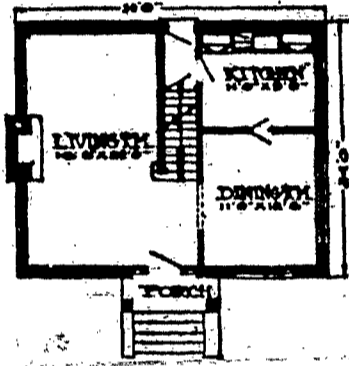

By W. A. RADFORD
Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF CHARGE on all subjects pertaining to practical home building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as editor, author and manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 427 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

There are a great many different building materials which used alone make an attractive home. However, some people desire a combination of two materials, thereby securing an out-of-the-ordinary home. In the home building design shown in the accompanying illustration a combination of face brick and wood is used to good advantage. While the house is not large, the brick walls up to the second floor still give it an air of solidity, like and kitchen downstairs, and three bedrooms with bath upstairs. As will be seen by the floor plans, which accompany the exterior view, all of these rooms are of unusual good size. The entrance door leads direct-helps to take the contrast of the wood above the brick. The house is 30 feet long and 24 feet deep and contains six rooms, living room, dining room

EASTER DAY

Oh sorrowing heart, 'tis Easter day;
Put off the robes of sadness.
They are not dead—they live for aye;
Exult in Easter gladness.

They are not dead—they only wait
In joyous expectation
To greet their loved ones at the gate
In glorious resurrection.
