

Legend of The Easter Eggs

Back in the late fifties or early sixties the Sisters at Nazareth Convent at the corner of Jay and Frank Streets, Rochester, N. Y., edited a little paper called "The West End Journal." When a child I found in one of the old editions an Easter poem, which I greatly admired and, being very fond of poetry, I committed it to memory, and now would like to pass it on to others. The poem follows:

Trinity Bells, with their hollow lungs, Their vibrant lips and their brazen tongues, Over the roofs of the City pour Their Easter music with joyous roar. "Oh, why do they ring?" said the boy to me, As he merrily climbed to his mother's knee. Tenderly shines the April skies, Like laughter and tears in my child's blue eyes. And every face in the street is gay, Why cloud the youngsters by saying nay, So I nudged my brain for the tale he begs, And told him the tale of the Easter eggs. You have heard, my boy, of the Man who died, Crowned with keens thorns and crucified, And Joseph the wealthy, whom God did reward, Had cared for the corpse of his martyred Lord. And plously tombed it within a rock, And closed the gate with a mighty block. Now close to the tomb a fair tree grew, With pendulous leaves and blossoms blue. And in the green tree's shadowy breast A beautiful singing bird sat in her nest, Which was covered with mossy like malachite And held four eggs of an ivory white. Now, when the bird, from her dim recess, Behold the Lord in his burial dress, And looked on the heavenly face so pale, And the dear feet pierced with a cruel nail, Her heart nigh broke with a sudden pang. And out of the depths of her sorrow she sang: All night long, till the moon came up, She sat and sang in her moss-withered cup. A song of sorrow as low and shrill As the homeless wind when it roams the hill, So full of tears, so low and long. That the grief of the world seemed turned to song. Now soon there came through the weeping night, A glittering Angel clothed in white, And he rolled the stone from the tomb away Where the Lord of the earth and heaven lay. And Christ arose from his cavernous gloom And a living water came from the tomb. Now the bird that sat in the heart of the tree, Behold the celestial mystery. Her heart was filled with sweet delight, And she poured a song in the throbbing night, Notes climbing notes, till higher and higher They sped to heaven like sparks of fire. And the eggs that that sweet bird changed their hue, And burned with red and gold and blue, Reminding mankind in that simple way Of the holy marvel of "Easter Day." Traffic Education Week To Be Observed in Rochester During Week of May 18th

Civic Organizations Will Co-Operate With Police Bureau, and Greatest Safety Campaign in History of City is Planned.

With the co-operation of practically every civic organization in Rochester, the Police Bureau the week of May 18th will launch what will be known as Traffic Education Week and which is expected to be the greatest safety campaign in the history of the city. Public Safety Commissioner Donald A. Dalley is chairman of the Central Executive Committee and with Frank J. Smith as Executive Vice-President of the committee is making elaborate plans for the campaign. Mr. Smith also is a director and chairman of the Public Safety Committee of the Automobile Club of Rochester, which will take an active part in the campaign.

On Executive Committee Others on the Central Executive Committee are Robert J. Menzie, secretary of the Rochester Automobile Dealers' Association, acting as secretary of the committee, and Police Director Curtis W. Barker. Preliminary plans call for an increase in the Traffic Police Squad so that the extra men may not only attend to the usual duties of directing traffic, but may instruct drivers in safe operation of motor cars and to obey all traffic laws and regulations.

During Traffic Education Week brake and headlight testing stations will be established throughout the city under the direction of police, and motorists may have those valuable safety adjuncts of their cars tested free of charge by experts.

Speakers on safety will address various meetings throughout the city, and radio addresses will be broadcast each day. Films also will be shown at all the downtown theaters instructing drivers in the correct manner to drive a car in a "safe, legal and sane" manner.

Organizations Co-Operating Organizations that are co-operating in Traffic Education Week are the Automobile Club of Rochester, Rochester Automobile Dealers' Association, Rochester Engineering Society, New York State Railways, Safety Council of the Chamber of Commerce, New York State Bureau of Motor Vehicles, Sheriff Fred D. Budd and his staff, Humano Society, Board of Education, Board of Underwriters, the parochial schools, Boy Scouts of America, Federal authorities in the city, and the newspapers.

The General Committee with representatives of all the organizations co-operating in the campaign consists of Police Chief Andrew J. Kinnaman, Deputy Police Chief Henry H. Cooper, Hargest, Traffic Captain, William R. Miller, Thomas A. Sharpe, President of the Board of Underwriters; Charles R. Barnes, Commissioner of Railways.

John F. Uffert, general manager of the New York State Railways; V. M. Palmer, president of the Rochester Engineering Society, and O. L. Angvine, executive secretary of that body; A. K. Dean, president of the Nazareth Play To Be Presented April 15 and 16. The senior class of Nazareth Academy will present "Archiebos for Dinner" Wednesday and Thursday evenings, April 15 and 16, in the school auditorium, Lake Avenue. Two acts, one for each performance, adds interest to the production. Among those who will take part are: Miss Jean Curran, Miss Monica Mason, Miss Kathryn Slaub, Miss Rosemary Schmitt, Miss Jean LePine, and Miss Virginia Nugent. The instructor of dramatics is directing the play. This play is open to the public, and all friends of the school are cordially invited to attend. The admission charge will be most reasonable.

When planning to build a home a person does not have to go far to find a suitable design. Of course, he takes into consideration the amount of money he has to invest in a home, the size of the family, and the lot upon which the house is to be built. It is the modern idea to build homes of a size which will supply the family with the needed room, but the old-fashioned plan of having spare rooms, both living and sleeping, does not meet with much favor in these days of higher building costs.

For these reasons one cannot go wrong in selecting the colonial type of architecture. In the house illustrated a very definite suggestion of the colonial style is seen in the design of the house and, like the true colonial, the plain, rectangular form makes possible an excellent utilization of space in the interior arrangement. At the same time the exterior boasts of a lasting attraction, and the home of this style will be one of which the owner may well feel proud.

This house is 28 feet long and 24 feet deep, exclusive of the sun parlor projection. It contains six rooms, there being the usual trio of living room, dining room and kitchen, on the first floor with an alcove sitting room off the living room. There is also a sun parlor, 13 feet long and 7 feet 6 inches wide, and three good-sized bedrooms and bathroom on the second floor. The floor plans show how these rooms are arranged, and the sites of each one.

This is an economical house to build, as it is of frame construction set on a concrete foundation with brick steps.
