CATHOLIC INFLUENCE IN POLITICAL LIFE ALMOST NEGLIGIBLE

Mr. Moore found no facts to support the statement. Surveying the important offices of the government, he found that in the diplomatic service Catholics are reported to be represented by fewer than 1 per cent, that not a single one of the forty-eight states has a Catholic governor, that about 3 per cent of the staff in the Treasury Department was Catholic and among the three executives in the Postoffice Department not one was an avowed Catholic.

Catholics in Congress

In Congress Mr. Moore finds the Catholic influence "very slight," although it is estimated that of the United States population between 30,000,000 and 35,000,000 are Catholics.

An Amazing Condition

"Even though Catholic representation among the clerical forces at Washington might be large, it most assuredly is not in evidence in the higher spheres where final authority and power rest."

Alarm "Exaggerated"

Mr. Moore concludes from these figures that Protestants who believe in the impending control of American political life by Catholics show "exaggerated alarm."
