Drinking Plenty of Milk Helps In Keeping Healthy and Strong

"The present decrease in the per capita consumption of milk products in many families, due to curtailed income, is viewed with grave concern by health authorities, who fear that there may be a consequent impairment of health," states Thomas Parran, Jr., M. D. Commissioner of the Department of Health for New York State. Pointing out that with limited family budget it is more than ever important to give careful attention to the expenditure for food, he continues:

"Milk is the most nearly complete food and is the most valuable of all foods in making up the deficiencies of others, as well as insuring an all around adequate diet. Its calcium, alone, is worth many times the cost of the milk, since bones, teeth and many organic functions are dependent upon calcium for their maintenance. It is practically impossible to consume a sufficient amount of other food materials to yield the equivalent of what may be obtained with ease and economy in milk.

Quart a Day for Children

"Milk, therefore, should form an important part of the diet for every individual, and particularly for growing children.

"A pint of milk a day for each adult, and a quart a day for every child, not entirely as a beverage, but with cereals, in cooked foods, desserts, and in the form of dairy products, is a desirable investment for a balanced healthful diet."

This statement is being circulated in printed form by the Brighton Place Dairy Company, Rochester's leading distributors of fine dairy products, including Rochester Standard Pasteurized, Rochester Standard Pasteurized Selected, Rochester Standard Pasteurized Golden Guernsey, Rochester Standard Raw, Buttermilk from Bulgaris Bacillus Culture, Chocolate Chill, Acidophilus Milk for correcting intestinal conditions which cause unnecessary gaseous formations, creamed cottage cheese in half pound packages, butter, in one-pound prints, salt and sweet, with government score of 97 per cent; chocolate syrup in 12-ounce cans and 16-ounce jars for making flavored drinks in the home, or for icings; 2x, 3x, and 4x cream.

Bacteriologist in Charge

All milk products handled at the local plant of the Brighton Place Dairy Company are under constant laboratory control, with licensed bacteriologist in charge of all tests. The condition of the milk is observed from the time it is received from the producers until it is placed on the wagons and refrigerated trucks for city-wide distribution.

Daily deliveries are made to East Rochester, Pittsford, Gates, Greece, Sea Breeze, Irondequoit, Charlotte, Forest Lawn, White City and Webster.

During the World War Mr. Slattery served as a motorcycle dispatch rider with the 309th Field Artillery. He is survived by his wife, Elsie Marshall Slattery; two sons, James and Thomas; his father, Thomas Slattery of the Rochester Fire Bureau; a brother, Haskell Slattery, and a sister, Mrs. Irene Salmon of Chicago.

"The Fool" To Be At Auditorium All Next Week

"The Fool," Channing Pollock's much-talked-of drama, will have its premier stock production in Rochester next week at the Auditorium Theater, 891 Main Street East.

This play has been the storm center of controversy and subject of comment from hundreds of pulpits throughout the nation. The Auditorium Permanent Players have volunteered to contribute to unemployment relief the entire profits of all next week's performances. Booking of several large theater parties and an unprecedented advance demand for seats indicate that a substantial sum will be turned over for relief work.

For those who seek only entertainment in the theater, "The Fool" well provides it, for it embraces stirring drama, absorbing comedy and romance. The big mob scene at the end of the third act, wherein riot turns to reverence, in particular leaves audiences breathless. And for those who care to dig deep into the affairs of life, there is much to ponder over in "The Fool." Rowland G. Edwards, managing director of the Auditorium Permanent Players, has received a letter of felicitation on his choice of "The Fool" from T. F. Kane, president of the Century Play Company and Channing Pollock's representative in New York.

"As one who has a sentimental as well as a financial interest in 'The Fool,' I am always glad to hear that you are going to put it on," writes Mr. Kane. "I remember with keen pleasure the splendid production you gave in Portland and I am frank in saying that it compared favorably in every way with the original New York play. The theater-going public of Rochester is indeed fortunate in having the opportunity of witnessing a production of this great drama under direction of one who is particularly well-equipped to handle it."

Mr. Pollock, author of twenty-one plays besides "The Fool," is among the best known of American dramatists. He has many friends in Rochester, his most recent visit here having been a month ago as guest of honor at a reception of the Rochester Press Club.

"The Fool" will reveal yet another aspect of the versatility of the Auditorium Permanent Players. In the cast will be Walter Bonn, Doris Packer, Robert Sloane, Mary Vance, Arthur Howard, Doris Dalton, Walter Davis, Maude Richmond, Francis Fraunio, William S. Johnstone. Performances of "The Fool" will be given every evening next week with matinee Wednesday and Saturday. Another session of the Auditorium Theater Workshop will be conducted Tuesday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock by Mr. Edwards.

Word has been received in this city of the death at her home on Sunday morning of Mrs. M. J. Larkin of Rome, N. Y., who had a number of friends in Rochester and vicinity.
