

Dr. Fulton Sheen Explains Why the Church Holds Firmly To Doctrines and Principles

Religion is a Sum of Beliefs God Has Given Man, and These Beliefs Must Be Safeguarded—They Cannot Be Compromised.

Washington, Feb. 18.—"The Catholic Church is intolerant! Like a valley fever sign, this thought is supposed to be the one solid reason to frighten away any one who might be knocking for entrance," said Rev. Dr. Fulton J. Sheen, in his national broadcast during Catholic Hour on Sunday, February 14, on the subject of broad-mindedness.

"The narrow-mindedness is revealed in the inclination to compromise eagerly with other Christian bodies working for the union of churches. Within the last 10 years two great world conferences on religion have been held, in which every religion—except the Catholic—was invited to attend to discuss the two important subjects of doctrine and ministry, but she refused."

"Even in our own country she has refused to lend a helping hand in the federating of churches. The other churches would give her a royal welcome, but she will not come. She will not cooperate. She will not conform and she will not conform because she is too narrow-minded and intolerant."

"Immediately after His betrayal, Our Blessed Lord was summoned for the first church conference of Christian times, before Annas, in Jerusalem. The first world conference on religion opened when Annas asked religion to make plain two important religious points, the two that were discussed later in the language of Geneva and Stockholm, namely the question of His doctrine and the question of His ministry. And the world's first church conference was a failure for Annas spoke of a human being and Christ as a deity."

"Intolerance to Heresy
"Intolerance is always supposed to be desirable because taken as a synonym with broad-mindedness. Intolerance is always supposed to be undesirable, because taken to be synonymous with narrow-mindedness. This is not true, for tolerance and intolerance apply to two different things. Intolerance applies only to principles, never to persons. Tolerance applies only to persons, never to principles. We must be tolerant to persons because they are human; we must be tolerant about principles because they are divine. We must be tolerant to heretics, because ignorance may have led them astray; but we must be intolerant to the error, because the truth is not our making but God's. Hence, the Church is intolerant to heresy, but she is tolerant to heretics who profess the Catholic faith in the treasury of her shrines, but she is intolerant to heresy into the treasury of her shrines."

"America, it is commonly said, is suffering from intolerance. I believe it is truer to say that America is not suffering so much from intolerance, as it is suffering from a false kind of tolerance; the tolerance of right and wrong, truth and error, vice and virtue, Christ and chaos. The man in our country, who can make up his mind and hold to certain truths with all the fervor of his soul, is called narrow-minded, whereas the man who cannot make up his mind is called broad-minded."

"The world may charge the Church with intolerance, for the world is right! The Church is intolerant—intolerant about truth, intolerant about principles, intolerant about doctrine. The other religions may change their principles, and they do change them, because their principles are man-made. Religion is not a form of beliefs that we would like, but the sum of beliefs God has given. The world may disagree with the Church, but the world knows very definitely with what it disagrees. In the future, as in the past, the Church will be intolerant about the sanctity of marriage, for what God has joined together no man shall put asunder; she will be intolerant about her creed, and ready to die for it, for she fears not those who will kill the body, but rather those who have the power of casting both body and soul into hell. She will be intolerant about her infallibility, for, henceforth, says Christ, 'I am with you all days, even to the consummation of the world.'"

"There are only two positions to take concerning truth, and both of them had their hearing centuries ago in the courtroom of Solomon, where two women claimed a baby. A babe like truth; it is one, it is organic, it cannot be divided. The real mother of the babe would accept no compromise. She was intolerant about her claim. She must have the whole babe, or nothing—the intolerance of Motherhood. But the false mother was tolerant. She was willing to compromise. She was willing to divide the babe, and the babe would have died of broad-mindedness."

Catholic Book Club

The Catholic Book Club of New York City made a double selection for the month of February—"The Bow in the Clouds," by E. I. Watkin, published by the Macmillan Co., and "A Cheerful Ascetic and Other Essays," by Rev. James J. Daly, S.J., published by the Bruce Publishing Co. Each sells for $1.75.

Of "A Bow in the Clouds," the editors of the Book Club say: "This is a book of ultimates, of profound probing, of speculative thinking, of mystical experience, and of a kind of straight, direct, and practical reasoning. It is a modern assault on the modern heretic in his scientific vagaries, in his economic misturns, in his sex idolatry, and the like. And it is a modern exaltation of the true and the beautiful as manifestations of the eternal wisdom of God." The author, a convert, joined the Church in 1908.

"A Cheerful Ascetic and Other Essays" is the first collection of Father Daly's essays as it is the first volume in the series known as the "Science and Culture Series," being edited by Joseph Haselstein, S. J. For both reasons, the Catholic Book Club is glad to welcome the book as its co-choice for February.

Other books recommended are: "Danton," by Irene Cadwell, $2.00; "The Macmillan Co.," by Michael Williams; $3.00; the McGraw-Hill Co. "Our Lady's Choice," a contemporary anthology of verse by the Catholic Sisters; $2.50; Bruce Humphries, Inc. "Maurice Godley," by T. A. Daly; $1.75; Harcourt, Brace & Co. "A History of the Councils of Baltimore," by the Rev. Dr. Peter Guldady; $3.50, the Macmillan Co.
