Chancellor of Germany Called One of the Best

Countryman, Writing in American Paper, Tells of His High Qualities and of His Capabilities as a Leader.

New York, March 4.—Tribute to the high qualities of Dr. Heinrich Brüning, great Catholic Chancellor of Germany, is paid by Dr. Richard von Kuehmann, former German Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, in a recent article in the New York Sunday Times.

Dr. Brüning, who on March 20th will complete his second year as Chancellor, is an indefatigable worker. Dr. von Kuehmann says.

"Even in Germany, the land of strenuous labor, there is hardly a man who works more evenly, more conscientiously, more unsparringly than does the Chancellor. None the less, he shows none of the mental deformities that are found, not so rarely, among tireless workers. He is not nervous, over-wary or absent-minded."

"On days when from early morning one disturber after another has pressed the door-handle of his study the late evening visitor finds him tranquil and is tempted to say, 'He creates the impression that he has waited all day for just this visitor and is interested in nothing at all except having a talk with him.'"

Dr. O'Malley, Noted Oculist, Dies Aged 73

Former Professor of English Literature at Notre Dame University, and Brother of Frank Ward O'Malley, Noted Writer.

Philadelphia, March 4.—Dr. Austin O'Malley, widely known oculist, author and lecturer, and former professor of English literature at Notre Dame University, died here on Thursday last week, aged 73 years. He was buried Monday.

Dr. O'Malley attained the unusual distinction of writing and lecturing with exceptional authority upon both the arts and sciences. He listed himself simply as "Oculist," but was variously university professor, physician, writer of half a dozen books on widely distinctive subjects, lecturer before learned societies throughout the country, a linguist of note and an authority on Dante, and was described by the late Cardinal Farley of New York as "one of the best Latinists, perhaps the best, of our time."

Dr. O'Malley was born in Pittston, Pa. He entered Fordham University at the age of 14, went through the lower and upper schools and graduated with the A.B. degree at the top of his class in 1875.

Dr. O'Malley was writing more and more, and in 1895, became Professor of English literature at Notre Dame, a position he held until 1902, when ill health forced him to resign.

Dr. O'Malley lectured on Dante before many American educational institutions. In 1921 he was selected as the orator on the poetry of Dante at the exercises held in Philadelphia to commemorate the 600th anniversary of the poet's death.

Among Dr. O'Malley's books were "Thoughts of a Oculist," "Essays in Pastoral Theology," "Concise Catholicism—Keystones of Thought," and "Studies of Medical, Homiletic and Spiritual Nature."

Dr. O'Malley is survived by a brother, Frank Ward O'Malley, writer, of New York and Buffalo, N. Y., and two sisters, Mrs. Richard Marks O'Brien and Mrs. Ellen Barrett of Scranton.

Many Catholic Projects Found In Switzerland

Geneva, March 4.—With the eyes of the world turned towards Geneva as the seat of the Disarmament Congress, the following items will be of interest to Catholics as indicating the progress of Catholicism in what is often referred to as a "cradle of the Reformation."

Switzerland's President for 1932 is a prominent Catholic, and former president of the League of Nations, and is serving his fourth term of office as President of the Swiss Confederation.

A new Catholic venture in Geneva is the Cardinal Mermillod Association, headed by the Most Rev. Mario Besson, Bishop of Lausanne, Geneva and Freiburg.

The Swiss students' Society, a Catholic association founded in 1841, is now entering its ninety-first year. Its organization grew out of the suppression of the convents in the canton of Argov and ever since that time it has been on its alert to defend the rights of the Religious.

The theme of its last congress, held at Engelberg, was "The Campaign against Socialism."

The society publishes a review of the contributions to which make up of the three languages of Switzerland—Italian, French and German. The society is stronger than ever, and the efforts once directed to protect Catholic institutions against Protestant encroachments are now put to use in the common fight against Socialism.

Rumor often reports things which are either without foundation or much exaggerated by ill-will.

Pontiff Blames Vanity And the Desire for Riches For Troubles of the World

Broadcasts Plea for Peace in Address on Heroic Virtues of Missionary Nun Who Died in China—He Refers to Spain, Mexico and Russia.

Vatican City, March 4.—In a Radio broadcast here Sunday, Pope Pius XI told the world that its love of the fleshpots is the source of "so many disputes and wars that have always afflicted and continue to afflict the world" with such grief and sorrow as perhaps never have been encountered in history.

Pope Pius broadcasted his benediction at the great Catholic dictation through the Vatican radio station, IVV, addressed it specifically "to all those who suffer in this universal disturbance of work and of life, to all peoples of the earth, and in particular to the two great peoples—the Chinese and the Japanese."

"To those who suffer for still grave and violent conditions of things in Russia, in Mexico and in Spain," he added. "And to those who control the destinies of the people, our benediction goes with the strong wish and humble confidence to prefer to strive—goodness that our paternal apostolic benediction everywhere and to all will carry and urge them toward Christian life."

He expressed the hope that this Christian life would bear fruit and inspire a wish and a will for souls of peace and of mutual collaboration for the betterment of the world and the people.

Three Great Troubles.—Citing the virtues of the missionary whom he was honoring, he contrasted them with "the selfishness of the world which consists in a desire for riches and in vanity of life."

These are three principal things that afflict the world and the individuals, families and peoples into all sins, namely, covetousness, pride and ambition. He said: "These are the three great troubles of the world."

Talks with Nuns.—After the ceremony, a brother of the nun whose virtues were extolled was presented, and the Pope spoke with him for a few minutes, already having blessed the family and the parish.

The Pontiff began his address by veils modern science places at the service of the faith, whereby our world can be heard even by the most distant.

When two Negroes, with their Philippian hands, are joined in love, the world is made a better place. When a man and a woman are joined in love, the world is made a better place. When a man and a woman are joined in love, the world is made a better place.
