Says Tolerance Being Developed By Catholic Hour

Washington, April 29 ... number of Protestants and persons of no faith at all listen in regularly to the "Catholic Hour" and are favorably impressed by this presentation of Catholic teachings and doctrines, "which they never imagined were so praiseworthy," the Rev. H J. Schafers, pastor of SS. Peter and Paul Church, Cushing, Okla. has written to the headquarters of the National Council of Catholic Men here, sponsors of the broadcast

He has learned this fact, Father Schafers states, through his own observations and from the statements of Catholic workers in the vicinity.

The broadcast does incalculable good in far-away, sparsely settled communities, the priest says, adding, that it makes its hearers less intolerant and "that it is accomplishing a lot."

Stating that it "makes us humble missionaries in these out of the way places feel that our work is greatly aided by your sponsoring of this splendid program," Father Schafers adds that "we can offer you little but our encouragement appreciation and prayers for its continued success."

"We might offer it as a suggestion," he continues, "that all interested hearers like us who cannot help financially, and even all religious Orders, particularly the contemplative, be asked and urged to spend an hour in prayer for the spiritual benefit and success of this great work as well as financial."

B. E. Shlesinger of St. Ambrose parish was elected President. William G. Wynn of Immaculate Conception, Peter J. Connelly of Corpus Christi, William Crissy of St. John the Evangelist, and Charles J. Knapp of St. Andrews were elected Vice-presidents. Andrew Wuest of Holy Family, Secretary and Joseph Antolina of Our Lady of Sorrows, Treasurer.

"Oldest Catholic Sweethearts" Are Parted by Death

London, April 29.—England's "oldest Catholic sweethearts," Mr. and Mrs. Patrick O'Neill, who were married a little over 73 years ago, have been parted. For death has taken Mrs. O'Neill at the age of 91.

Patrick, who is 94, is disconsolate. "It will not be long," he says, "before we are together again."

On the seventy-second anniversary of their wedding last October they received the congratulations of the King and Queen.

The local council at Consett, Durham, where they lived all their lives, on that occasion presented an illuminated address and the whole town turned out for a triumphal procession through the streets when Patrick and his sweetheart drove to St. Mary's Church at Blaydon, nearby, to offer a thanksgiving at the altar at which they were married.

At that time the old couple were claimed to be "England's oldest sweethearts," but the glare of publicity discovered a couple in Lincolnshire who had shared each other's joy and sorrows for 74 years. The O'Neill's didn't mind. "I hope they have been as happy as we have," said Patrick.

Only one child was born to the O'Neill's, a little girl named Bridget, who died when she was three years old.
