The Junior Cook By MOLLY GAVIN

There are too many delicious fruits to be seen in the market and at home just now to let the opportunity of making tart pass.

Mother is often too busy to make any and you can help her out and experiment to your heart's delight.

The thing to remember about pies and tarts is that the easier they are to make the more delicious they will taste when they are done.

Cherries are in season now so let's make cherry tarts. First make pie dough enough for one pie. Then get out mother's muffs pans or gem pans, and line them with the dough. Fill the crust half full with ripe, sweet cherries.

Place a sprinkle of cinnamon and a bit of butter on top.

When ready to eat them place a spoonful of whipped cream or vanilla ice cream on top of the tart. Strawberries can be used instead of cherries.

DO YOU KNOW:
How to prepare spring vegetables in ways that are most attractive and appetizing?

In Molly Gavin's Own Cookbook there is a section devoted to vegetables and their cooking that will give you many suggestions as to improving potatoes if they are soggy and your peas if they are tough. There is also a time-table giving the time various vegetables should be cooked. The book is beautifully bound in a white, washable cover. It may be had for $1.00 postpaid.

The free domestic science circular "Unusual Strawberry Recipes" has proven so popular that it was necessary to have another set run off. It may be had for a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Address: Molly Gavin, 1312 Massachusetts Ave., W. Washington, D. C.

New Mural of Little Flower

One of the beautiful murals in the new Shrine of St. Theresa, the Little Flower of Jesus, in St. Cecilia's Carmelite Church, Englewood, N. Y., which has just been dedicated by the Very Rev. Lawrence C. Diether, O. C. M., Provincial of the American Province of Carmelites. A repository in the shrine contains five major relics of the Little Flower. The mural presents a new representation of St. Theresa and is one of surpassing beauty.

The Holy Sacrifice of the Mass

Tabernacle of grace. He has been chosen and set aside from a world forgetful of his God. He should have nothing in common with it. If he does, his life is wasted and he becomes of the goddess, its supreme type.

His victory over such enticing arguments is only achieved by resting self in the Confidence of God. Many a time he has stood on the abyss of danger and his footing was insecure and it is only by turning his eye to the vision of divine security that he is halted in his advancement to eternal perfection. If his feet are directed slightly, it is simply and solely through the favor and goodness of God. This is the meaning of the Psalm XXV which the celebrant recites as he performs the ablution of the tips of the fingers.

After washing his hands, which, as you know, is performed at the Epistle side of the altar, the priest returns to the middle of the altar. As it were, he has caught an inspiration and he feels jubilant and he puts his confidence in the Saviour, Whose Image, the Crucifix, rests above the altar. Then he lowers his eyes, bows with humility and reverence, places his joined hands upon the altar and in the posture of a suppliant he recites the prayer known as the:

The Prayer: Suscipe, Sancta Trinitas. Receive, O Holy Trinity, this oblation, which we offer unto Thee, in memory of the Passion, Resurrection, and Ascension of our Lord Jesus Christ, and in honor of the blessed Mary ever Virgin, of blessed John the Baptist, of the holy Apostles Peter and Paul, of the Virgin and of all the Saints; that it may be to their honor and to our salvation; and may they vouchsafe to intercede for us in heaven, whose memory we celebrate on earth. Through the same Christ our Lord. Amen.

In this prayer which I have just recited for you there is a development and perfecting of the oblation of the Host and the chalice. Do you recall that in the first two oblation prayers they were directed to God, the Father, that when the invocation was recited that the Holy Ghost was petitioned and in both these cases through Christ, our Lord? Now not to slight in the least the portion which each one, Father, Son and Holy Ghost have in this Divine Sacrifice, the Church through its minister at the altar turns to the Holy Trinity and offers the Sacrifice prepared upon the altar.

Host and chalice are now jointly offered and there is a short allusion to the part which the Mystery of the Life of Christ bears as well as the saints of heaven to the Eucharistic Sacrifice.

The Mass, indeed, is celebrated in memory of the entire work of the Redemption. The principal parts of which are here expressly and prominently set forth. In His Passion the Victim was immolated; in His Resurrection He was glorified and in His Ascension He was raised to the Throne of God in order to make of the glorious Redemption and to perfect our salvation. On the altar that is renewed the joyful, the sorrowful and the glorious mysteries of Christ's Life and He Who seemed as dead even at the Passionlike now lives eternally and offers Himself perpetually.

To God only can Sacrifice be offered. The saints may be employed indeed this commemoration of the saints in the Sacrifice of the altar dates back to Apostolic times. This great honor and distinction was shown them because they offered their lives whilst upon earth as victims on the real personal altar of self-immolation. Further more through the Mass devotion to the saints is spread and their veneration perpetuated. Honor the saints and through them we honor God and bring to ourselves spiritual advantages. For, by thinking of them we think of the place where they are and we long to be united with these, our triumphant brethren.

Fr. Lonergan Pays Short Visit Here

Native Californian
Father Lonergan is a native of San Francisco, an alumnus of the old St. Ignace College and a graduate lawyer. He did his undergraduate work at St. Ignace College, Spokane, Wash., and pursued his theological studies at Woodstock College, Md., where he was ordained a priest in 1920.

On his return to California, Father Lonergan was assigned to the University of Santa Clara where he was dean until 1925. He was then assigned as associate editor of "America." During his editorship, Father Lonergan was widely and deeply on educational and social problems and canon law, on which subject he is an international authority.

Connected with the San Francisco University is the collegiate church of St. Ignace, said to be one of the largest in the United States. Its seating capacity is 2,000. Revenue is derived solely from contributions, as there are no paid students. His university has about 1,000 students and there is a high school connected with it.

Father Lonergan talked animatedly and enthusiastically about Catholic education in his native San Francisco. The University over which he will preside is located in a "cultural center" with various other Catholic institutions nearby and has available considerable room for expansion.

Principles Set Forth in Letter Applicable To-day

"It were vain to object that they were necessary for purposes of State; the property of another is never necessary for us. But it is truly necessary for us to have justice. One may not even pretend that you were justified in retaining certain places because they serve to protect your boundaries. It is your Majesty's duty to ensure this safety by good treaties, by moderation, by forbearing places lying farther back; never however does the need of providing for our safety give us the right to rob our neighbor of his territory. Consult just and informed men and they will agree that my contention is as clear as day."

"This will suffice, Sire, to permit you to continue during the whole of your life you have wandered far from the paths of truth and justice, and hence also far from those of the Gospel. So many terrible disorders which have rendered Europe unhappy for more than twenty years; so much blood that has been shed; so many graves opened; so many countries laid waste; so many cities and villages reduced to ashes—these are the dismal fruits of this war of 1672, which was originally entered upon for the sake of your honor and to disgrace the Dutch newspaper writers and designers of medals. Without flattery yourself, ask honestly whether you may keep everything you hold by virtue of treaties which you have forced upon your enemies by a war for which there is such scant justification."

This is only half of the letter, written almost a hundred years ago by the terrible cynicism which swept on to the guillotine a French king and his consort, occurred. Fenelon, who we believe to be the author of this remarkable document, spoke as a great prophet, truthfully and fearlessly. Louis XIV would not hear, and Louis led an infamous career. The generation of today, all nations in fact, are being appealed to, as was one monarch by a single Bishop, by the Vicar of Christ who, in a series of Encyclicals is speaking to them as plainly regarding their sins and the obligation to repent as did the author of the letter addressed to Louis XIV. Will they hear?

will recall that the Librarian of Congress deposited this copy of its great and catalog in the Vatican Library. The file has proven of the very greatest value to the work of cataloging and to users of the Library who are seeking bibliographical information. There is much gratitude due to Dr. Putnam for this invaluable help. The Library of Congress cards as they arrive from Washington are filed very promptly. I have evidence from my conversations with librarians of other libraries in Rome that they too make occasional, and very important, use of this file of cards.

It feels more than ever before that the Carnegie Endowment has received unusual results from its cooperation with the Vatican Library. I find Mr. Anselmson's complications of cataloging rules and examples constantly cited and referred to in discussions here in Europe. As I predicted, the tangible results of this international cooperation are becoming more and more evident. With the further progress of work on both the catalogs of manuscripts and those of printed books the world of learning will be under great obligation to the Endowment.

Urges Driving Out To Stanley's Place

To people who are well acquainted with the establishment with which Stanley's Place is just a stone's throw away, it is not hard to see why Stanley's Place is not just another hot spot. It is there that Texas and Coney Island hotels are served to countless hungry people daily.

Stanley's Place is known far and near and a drive out to Stanley's Place is just a nice distance to go for a short ride, and a stop at Stanley's for one of these hotels is always a pleasure.

Stanley's Place is located ten miles West from Eastman Kodak—Ridge Road and Sea Breeze.

Only the best of everything is sold to the multitude of customers which flock there morning, noon, and night. Texas and Coney Island hotels, cigars and cigarettes, are among the things which account for the popularity of Stanley's Place.

Stanley's Place is indeed popular in this vicinity and it is one of the few places where you can find any of their famous dishes the next time you're out driving. Insist on stopping there.

Are Specialists In Piano Moving

Furniture and piano moving, especially the latter, has been brought to a high plane. It used to be said that three moves were as bad as a fire, but such a statement, if it ever did have a basis in truth, is certainly not true at the present time.

Take the moving of pianos, as it is done by the Ryan Carting Company of 55 Lyell Avenue, Rochester. Everyone knows that a piano, when it is, is an instrument extremely easy to harm. Behind its polished outer covering is a delicate string board arrangement that careless handling can ruin as far as tone is concerned. The heavy keys of the keyboard also must be gently handled or the whole ship, crack or break off altogether.

This moving firm, from long experience, knows its business and these delicate instruments are moved from residences to residences, often with no impairment of their tonal qualities. Why? Because the piano is equally true of other instruments. Furniture and this firm enjoys an enviable reputation in this field.

The services of the Ryan Carting Company in the moving line can be had by calling Main 1464. They have been doing carting, furniture and piano moving in Rochester for the past twenty-seven years. Five trucks are always at hand to serve the clientele.
