Presenting Bicentennial Award

Winner in the national essay contest sponsored by the United States Government, Commissioner, Miss Betty Ann Troy, 16-year-old pupil at the Academy of the Sacred Heart, Stamford, Conn., went to Washington as the guest of the Commission to receive her prize from the hand of President Hoover. The above picture was taken on the White House lawn as President Hoover conferred the Bicentennial award—a specially cast gold medal—on Miss Troy. Left to right: Representative, Hon. James C. McHugh, Director of the U. S. George Washington Bicentennial Commission, Miss Troy, and President Hoover. Above them a million high school students all over the United States competed in the essay contest.

Mother Tells How Young Man Walked Again After Visit To Jesuit Martyrs' Shrine in Canada

How a paralyzed youth walked again after praying at the Martyrs' Shrine, Port St. Marie, near Midland, Ont., is contained in a special article in the Toronto Star Weekly. Just out.

The Martyrs' Shrine, which has been visited by many of the clergy and laity from the Rochester diocese, is the historic home of the Jesuit Canadian Martyrs of the 17th century. It is built on the grounds surrounding Fort St. Marie, formerly the Central Mission-Station of the Jesuit Missionaries from 1639 to 1649. Six of the eight Martyr Saints lived for some time at this first great center of civilization and Christianity in the Province of Ontario where they ministered to the twenty thousand Hurons living in that region.

Mother Tells of Cure
The account of the cure of Donald Benninger at the shrine is as follows: Three years ago in July, 1929, when he was fifteen years old, he contracted infantile paralysis. For thirteen months he was paralyzed from the waist down, bedridden most of the time—and after that capable of only the most restricted movement, by using iron braces on both legs, and a pair of crutches. A dozen doctors attended him, as his mother relates, till finally the aid of a London specialist was sought. More than a year the disease had him in its grasp. The specialist held out no hope, but intimated, on the contrary, that Donald must face the facts and learn to make the most of his disability for life.

Just before that," said Mrs. Benninger, "I told our family doctor that I had made up my mind to take him to the Martyrs' Shrine at Midland. Donnie was a bed patient then. The doctor was very stern with me. He said it would be nonsense to take such a boy from his bed on a week's trip like that involved.

Sunday, Aug. 19, 1929, found Donnie, his mother, his paternal grandmother and his brother Hugh, a school teacher, before the shrine in Midland. In the family car, wedged in a crowd of five thousand pilgrims, chiefly from Toronto and Windsor, "Grandmother Benninger took ill. "I thought she would die," Hugh went for medicine to the drug store," said Mrs. Benninger. "I asked someone to call a priest. One came to us and during the conversation he learned why we had come to the Martyrs' Shrine. He said he would like Father Bouvrette of Wauhausho, one of the Jesuit fathers at the shrine at that time, to see Donnie. Later, Hugh was away trying to get a bottle of pop for Donnie, the same priest saw Father Bouvrette and called him.

Effect Electrifying
"Donnie was sitting in the car, where his brother had lifted him, but was not wearing the braces because they were not hinged at the knees and it was difficult to move him with them on.

"Father Bouvrette sat in beside him, and holding the relic of the Jesuit martyrs, prayed for their intercession that God might grant our petition.

"It was electrifying—I can describe it in no other way. I trembled with nervousness as I stood beside the car. He finished, and stepping out of the car, asked Donnie to get out and walk.

Convention Plans Are Announced

and the appointment of committees. Delegates will then be escorted by the Knights of St. John Band and the First Regiment under command of Colonel Frank H. Hill, to St. Joseph's Church, where His Excellency, Bishop O'Hern, will celebrate Solemn Pontifical High Mass. The Rev. Joseph H. Goffel, M. R. P., pastor of the Holy Family Church, is to deliver the welcome.

Local Clergy to Speak
Monday's program includes Requiem Mass for the deceased members at St. Boniface Church at 8 a. m. and business sessions throughout the morning and afternoon will take place at hotel headquarters. Address on vital topics of current Catholic interest will be given at these sessions by the Rev. John M. Duffy, diocesan superintendent of Catholic Schools, and by the Rev. Joseph J. Halter, S. T. D., of St. Bernard.

Convention committee chairmen are as follows: Joseph T. Otto, president; Rev. J. J. Halter, general chairman; Frank C. Hohn, treasurer; Hon. Philip H. Donnelly, reception; George Lecht, entertainment; Charles T. Trotter.

Hotel, Kilian Eckert, automobile, Robert Knittel, church services, Charles Wetzel, music; John J. Stark, printing; Rudolph Menzel, badges; Joseph Tschiederer, finance; John Bittner; ushers, A. William Kuttel and publicity, Arthur T. Farren.

Assisting General Chairman Otto on the general committee are: Rt. Rev. Msgr. John F. Boppal, Rt. Rev. Msgr. John P. Schellhorn, and the Reverend Louis Vollmer, C. S. S. R., Joseph H. Goffel, George W. Ekl, F. William Stauder, Ferdinand Seibert, J. Emil Gieffel and Francis X. Kunz. In the laymen's group are: William J. Fuchter, Charles Trent, Edward J. Herle, Lawrence May, George Kaseman, George Gugel, John L. Stark, Lawrence Welder and William Wittman.

Rome Gives Approval To Josephites

Raleigh, Richmond, St. Augustine Toledo and Wilmington. In many of these ecclesiastical districts they have a large number of establishments.

Epiphany Apostolic College at New York City is the preparatory school for candidates aspiring to become members of St. Joseph's Society. It depends, in a great measure, upon the charity of the Catholic people of this country for its support.

Every dollar given towards the college of Epiphany College is a dollar given to the work of preaching the doctrine of Christ amongst the growing colored population of this country. It is a dollar given to help some young man towards the altar where he will act the part of "Another Christ," upon a life in heaven, lifting the load from the hearts of people who must be dear to the Divine Lover of Souls. Towards this end Archbishop Curley of Baltimore says: "I do not know of any congregation of priests in this country who deserve better of the Catholic public than the Josephites. It is an appeal for help than the Fathers of the Congregation of St. Joseph."

Priest Scores Sensational Newspapers

"We have an obligation to protect the good name of our neighbors," Father Graham declared, as he gave three essential tests to meet in the "It is true, it is true, it is true," newspaper field—and in private life—should be the test, he continued, adding: "The spreading of false news is based entirely on selfishness" and that in the event of realizing that such news was false, then "there should be an immediate and full retraction."

Including in his censure also individuals who spread false news about their neighbors and others, Father Graham said: "If you can't say anything good, then, please, in the name of God, refrain from saying anything harmful. When we say charitable things about others we are radiating kindness and charity."

It may be that people think they hurt others by scandal and gossip, but in the long run they hurt themselves, he added.

Filipino Journal Defends Jesuits Of Spain in Special Articles' Series

Manila, P. I.—A "Society of Jesus Supplement" for the "vindication of Spain's Jesuits" has just been published by the Philippines Herald, a regular newspaper which circulates throughout the islands. Senators and members of the Philippine Legislature contributed articles paying tribute to the Jesuits' contributions to the welfare of Spain.

World Figure Passes

Msgr. Ignaz Seipel, twice Chancellor of Austria and internationally termed "the savior of his country," who has just died at the age of 58 years. Msgr. Seipel, who will go down in history as one of Austria's major heroes, never fully recovered from a bullet wound received in 1924 when an attempt was made to assassinate him. The prelate is shown here as he exercised his priestly office.

Priest, Former Chancellor, Msgr. Seipel Is Dead

Vienna. Monsignor Ignaz Seipel, former Chancellor of Austria and generally regarded as the greatest statesman who has presided since the war, died Tuesday of last week in a sanitarium at Perntz, from the combined effects of a heart attack and long-standing diabetes and tuberculous.

Although he resigned from the Chancellorship in 1929 and had been out of public life except for two months' service as Foreign Minister in the Vaucon Von Starheimers Cabinet in 1930, Monsignor Seipel continued to play an important part behind the scenes in Austrian politics. From his sickbed he welcomed and may have inspired last week's pronouncement by one of the leaders of the Christian Social party in favor of acceptance of the Lausanne reparations agreement and the independent existence of Austria as opposed to union with Germany.

Monsignor Seipel was only fifty-six, but with two wasting diseases, a bullet still in his lung as the result of an attempted assassination in 1924 and a temperament that gave him neither rest nor halt it was almost a wonder that he lived as long as he did.

One of his greatest achievements was the rehabilitation of Austria through the Geneva protocol of 1923 and the accompanying loan, which rescued her finances from inflation. The Catholic Church loses in him one of her most capable figures who, if he had not preferred public activity, would have become a Cardinal in the opinion of many. As a statesman he ever forgot that he was a priest, and that was partly responsible for his uncompromising attitude toward Socialism and the forty odd per cent of the Austrian electorate who supported it.

Monsignor Seipel came into politics first as a loyal supporter of the Hapsburgs. An inconspicuous teacher in a fashionable school for girls he rose to become a professor of moral theology and social science at the University of Vienna. He attracted the attention of the last Hapsburg Emperor Karl, who made him Minister of Social Welfare in the Cabinet that saw the empire crash.

After the collapse of the Austro-Hungarian Empire he succeeded in preventing a split of the Christian Social party and was elected to the National Constituent Assembly in 1919. Then, three years later, he became the Chancellor.

1831—Rochester's Oldest Financial Institution—1922

Rediscovered
The emergencies of the past few years have brought many people face to face with the realization that a dependable reserve of cash in a savings account is indispensable. Thousands have learned that a savings account is the first requirement of financial security.
The result is that many people, though perhaps earning less, are now saving more.
As the first step in reorganizing your financial affairs on a secure foundation, build up a Cash Reserve—by having a growing Savings Account in Rochester's oldest Bank.
Twenty Dollars a month saved in this Bank will give you $1,000 in less than four years. Doesn't that sound worth while? Come in and let us show you how.
