Buckfast Abbey Church

Buckfast Abbey Church of St. Mary, in Devonshire, England, which was consecrated recently by His Eminence Francis Cardinal Bourne, Archbishop of Westminster, acting as Legate of His Holiness Pope Pius XI. The edifice, containing fifteen altars, was built during the last 25 years by the 15th of the Benedictine monks upon the site of a Cistercian monastery which was destroyed during the Reformation. Following the dedication ceremonies, the monks again donned their aprons and resumed their building labors. The completion and ornamentation of the church will take another four or five years. Thousands Witness Closing Sessions Of Indian Girl Beatification Court

(Continued from Page One) The closing sessions of the court, which were held in the city of Rome, were attended by thousands of witnesses. The court was presided over by the Holy See and the proceedings were broadcasted to the world.

The ceremony of the Mass was the Rev. Herbert P. McNally, S. J., Buffalo, with the Rev. William E. X. Sullivan, S. J., Brooklyn, as deacon and the Rev. Charles F. Connor, S. J., Philadelphia, as sub-deacon. The Rev. Joseph F. Husan, S. J., Worcester, Mass., acted as master of ceremonies. The Rev. Msgr. Joseph A. Delaney, vicar general of the diocese, was assistant priest. Deacons of honor to Bishop Gibbons were the Rev. John J. Wynne, S. J., vicar postulator of the cause of the martyr, and the Rev. James P. Sweeney, S. J., also president of Canisius College, Buffalo.

The sermon was preached by the Rev. John J. McGrath, S. J., first assistant director of the shrine. Mass of the Martyrs was sung by the Shrine choir of male voices, under the direction of Hugh P. Donlon, Amsterdam. History of Hells. The relics are fragments of the bones of three of the eight North American martyrs, Brébeuf and Lalemant, missionaries to the Hurons, were executed in the spring of 1633 after the Huron village, now known as Midland, Ontario, was captured by the Iroquois from the English and the Mohawk river. Garner, a missionary to the Petuns, died later that same year. The bones of all three were partly burned but what remained were carefully wrapped and sent to the mission headquarters at Quebec.

MARTYR MADE BY AUTOCRATIC KING

The thought of martyrdom for Christ's sake and the obligations it imposes upon all faithful is apt to be connected in the minds of Catholics of the present day with the names of the times of Nero and Diocletian, or with the attempts of missionaries to christianize either Indians or other heathens, once America had been discovered and the way to Eastern Asia found. The story of the English martyr is quite well known to Catholic readers; but it will be news to many that Frederick the Great made a martyr of a priest during the Seven Years War, because of his refusal to divulge what had been entrusted to him in Confession by a deserter from the king's army.

The story of Father Paulbauer, for this the name of the victim of the arbitrary and cruel sentence of death imposed upon him by the autocratic ruler on the Prussian throne, his imprisonment, trial, and death has now been told by the Rev. Fr. Victoria Dell, D. D., of Cleveland, and published by the Central Bureau of the Catholic Central Vereln of America, under the title "A Victim of the Seal of Confession." The Preface to the well told tragic tale was written by Most Rev. Joseph Schrembs, who recommends the reading of the historical narrative. Both will appeal not only to Catholics, but also to serious-minded non-Catholics, to whom the brochure will demonstrate the seriousness and sacredness of the confessional. It is published at 10 cents the copy; 75 cents the dozen; $2.75 for 50 copies; $4.25 the hundred, postage included. Address: Central Bureau, C. C. V. of A., 3835 Westminster Place, St. Louis, Mo. Nothing can be sent us by the paternal Heart of the Saviour from which we cannot draw what is good and useful.—St. Francis de Sales.

Alumnae Engaged In Varied Work In N. Y. State

The report, however, is incomplete because all did not cooperate. The information furnished by the dioceses of Brooklyn and Rochester gives a probable insight on what will be the case in other cities in New York State and what job is given to the I. C. A. really to attempt to place all Catholic children in Catholic schools. There are in these two dioceses in the elementary schools 248,197 Catholic children and in the Catholic High schools 50,161, making a total of 348,658. In the public elementary and high schools there are 2,012,298 Catholic children. The chief reason given for this condition is a general insufficient building space and this is largely due to financial conditions which prohibit large buildings or the erection of new structures.

There is a large percentage of Catholic teachers in New York State. Catholics have the same standing as non-Catholic teachers if they are certified under the Regents. There is a state law protecting all schools registered under the Regents and approved by the State Board of Education. A great deal of publicity is given to the work of the parochial schools by inspirational and news articles in religious and secular papers, by participation of the schools in general and public affairs, and through the active interest of our Catholic alumnae in their parishes and in the parochial schools. It has been found that the teachers are re-liefery Design. In design the reliquary is a miniature tower about ten inches high. It is made of ten by ten inch mahogany. It is extremely graceful. It rests on eight supports of ivory. Inside of which is carved a life-size miniature of the environment of the missionaries martyrs, Brébeuf and Lalemant, and their companions, Jacques Daniel Chabert, Joseph Lacombe, and others. Above all is a silver gilt reliquary of about two cubic inches, containing three of its faces relics described as distinguished on account of their size, of Brébeuf, Lalemant and Garner. This stands within a crystal cylinder and it is surmounted by an exquisitely carved dome of ivory surmounted by a cluster of miniature columns.

The reliquary is a gift of Mrs. Justice Ward of New York. Its design and execution are by Fernand Py, who was assisted by the Benedictine monks of the Solenne monastery in France. The silver and metal work is by River of Paris. Bishop Schrembs Consecrates His New Auxiliary (Continued from Page One) Lady of the Lake Seminary, was the master. Speakers were Bishop Schrembs, Most Rev. Karl J. Alter, Bishop of Toledo, and the Rev. Joseph J. Schmitt, pastor of St. Clement's Church, Lakewood. Newton Baker Speaks. In the evening a reception was held in Public Hall at which the newly consecrated Bishop was presented with a purse of $10,000. Speakers included Newton D. Baker, Chairman Charles E. Adams of the Community Fund, Bishop Schrembs, Mayor Ray T. Miller, Mrs. William J. Rishua, representing the women of the diocese; Eugene Quigley for the men; and Michael P. Mooney, the chairman. Almost 100 men and women from 10 nationality groups, dressed in native costumes, were in a procession through the main aisle of Public Hall.

Is Cleveland Native. Bishop McManus was born in Cleveland. He made his First Holy Communion, May 22, 1892. He was ordained June 17, 1905 and was the first pastor of St. Agnes Church, Elyria, June 1914. He became rector of St. Mary's Seminary, September 1917, and in 1923 was made diocesan director of the Society for the Propagation of the Faith. After becoming chancellor of the diocese in 1925, he became chairman of the editorial board of the Catholic Universal-Bulletin, official diocesan newspaper, in 1926. In 1927 he was elected to the rank of Domestic Prelate by the Holy Father.

Catholic World Over

Sister Marie Angette, 25 years old, a teacher at St. Rose of Lima School, Detroit, conducted by the Sisters Servants of the Immaculate Heart of Mary who died as the result of injuries received in an automobile accident, near Monroe, Michigan, has just been buried following funeral services in the chapel of the Order's motherhouse and novitiate in Monroe.

The appointment of the Rev. Henry J. O'Brien as the new vice president of St. Thomas Seminary, Bloomfield, Connecticut, to succeed the Most Rev. Joseph E. McCarthy, recently consecrated Bishop of Portland, Maine, has just been announced by Bishop Nolan.

His Holiness Pope Pius XI, through Cardinal Farrell, Papal Secretary of State, has sent to the Most Rev. Edward J. Byrne, Archbishop of Dublin, a letter, just made public, in which he lauds His Excellency for the success of the Eucharistic Congress.

The King's gold medal, awarded annually to a cadet serving in the school ship "Conway" has been won by a Catholic, Wilfred Francis Ross. The award was instituted in the reign of Queen Victoria, in 1885. Poor prisoners and litigants in London have lost a generous friend by the death of Christian Joseph Croft, prominent Catholic attorney of London. On many occasions he refused cases which would have paid him well in order to appear in other courts for people who could compensate him only with a word of thanks.

A recent addition to the Latran Mission Museum is a gift from Takahashi Shoko, a Buddhist in Japan, to the Society of St. Vincent de Paul, an expression of esteem for the Catholic Church and the Holy Father.

Plan Formation Of Catholic Art Guild

Chicago—Plans for the formation of a Catholic art guild have been announced by the Very Rev. Francis V. Corcoran, president of the Catholic Art Association, following a conference with Catholic artists and others interested in this field.

A return to the medieval conception of art as the child of the Church and the vitalization of modern Catholic art will be the object of the guild. A committee of seven has been appointed by Father Corcoran to guide the organization of the guild, the members including Thomas A. O'Shaughnessy, ecclesiastical artist and member of the Municipal Art Commission; Mrs. Mary Zech, president of the Perburre Art Federation; Mrs. W. Buckeneger, Perburre Federation secretary; Joseph J. Birren, graphic artist; Edward J. Timmons, landscape painter; Dr. Howard E. Esan, associate dean of Liberal Arts, De Paul University; Marie O'Hara, art instructor.

A number of prominent Catholic clubs have promised to support the program of the guild. Father Corcoran has announced that the guild will be a series of lectures by internationally famous artists and other national exhibits of artists' work.

For the love of Jesus Christ force the past after the example of St. Paul, and keep your eyes fixed on the great way you have still to run in the path of virtue.
